FRICK DISPUTE IN HANDS OF ROOSEVELT

Today

The Country Is Rich.
Germany's Big Plan.
5 Per Cent of Painted Toenails.
Another Soul Saved.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PLENTY OF money is here, apparently. And, apparently, those that possess it mean to keep it hidden where it will be safe and not too active. President Roosevelt offered five hundred millions in bonds and is offered nearly two thousand million dollars.

Already more than twenty thousand millions are locked up in government bonds.

With our dollar, off the gold basis, worth whatever Europe chooses to pay, with that same dollar scarcer than it used to be, and all the note shavers and others that deal in money telling the President "You must not inflate," something unpleasant may happen.

GERMANY DEMANDS from the League of Nations the right, in spite of the Versailles treaty, to spend in gold for new armaments the considerable sum of one billion two hundred and thirteen million dollars in the next eight years.

German intelligence is shown in the fact that expenditures would include three hundred military airplanes and three hundred fighting tanks. Where will the money be found? Nations can always get money for war.

JAPAN WORRIES about a probable deficit of a thousand million yen, something more than a quarter of a billion dollars, in 1934. Nevertheless, the money will be found for military activities in Manchuria, a bigger navy, and reasonable preparation for trouble with Russia.

Friends of Japan will be glad to hear that Japanese industry and commerce are flourishing, foreign trade for the first nine months of 1933 being 39 per cent ahead of the same period in 1932.

CIVILIZATION is spreading. Students at the co-educational University of Minnesota report:

"One in every twenty of the girl students paints her toenails."

Farther east the number of toenail painters is considerably greater. Many wear stockings and shoes that reveal the painted toenails, for it is useless to paint your toenails if nobody sees them.

MRS. AIMEE SEMPLE McPHERSON is having an interesting time in Boston, saving souls. Imagine her delight when her fervid eloquence caused Mrs. Jessie Costello, recently acquitted of murdering her husband, to "hit the sawdust trail" and kneel while Sister McPherson prayed for her.

It seems a pity that Mr. Costello could not be present. But he probably knows about it.

AN IRISH M. P. is supposed to have said:

"I cannot be in two places at once; I am not a bird."

The more versatile Gerard Swope, president of General Electric Company, said by Henry Ford to be "the greatest salesman in America," has proved that he can attend to two jobs at once.

He has been in Washington, working on NRA problems for months, and under a large blue eagle the General Electric's report shows for the third quarter of this year "bookings" seventy per cent in excess of the same quarter of last year, and almost twenty per cent greater than bookings in this year's preceding quarter.

THE GOVERNMENT is preparing a complicated menu to help the starving idle and help the farmer.

Uncle Sam already has on hand one hundred million pounds of pork and expects to increase that supply to five hundred million pounds.

He will buy also about nine million pounds of butter every month and millions of bushels of wheat to be ground into flour. These products will be purchased through the relief corporation, and distributed.

It is discovered that poultrymen have "too many chickens and too many eggs" and the government will buy and give them away, several million dozen eggs at intervals.

Chicken is not on the menu yet, but may appear later. At least the government is rich.

THE DOLLAR went down again yesterday, the franc went up. Worth twenty-five francs not long ago, the dollar is worth only seventeen francs and twenty-five centimes now.

That ought to please the French, since it takes fewer francs now to buy a dollar's worth of goods in America. But nothing seems to please anybody in this troubled world.

MISS PERKINS, Secretary of Labor, announces that, thanks to NRA, 620,000 more jobs were provided last month, and ten million dollars added to payrolls. That is the day's pleasant item.

200 PUPILS STRIKE OVER FOOTBALL

Ligonier School Ban On 3 Grid Players Stirs Protest

LIGONIER, Pa., Oct. 19.—With a slogan of "no football—no school," 200 students of Ligonier High School were out on strike today.

The high school strikers left school yesterday led by the entire football squad as a protest against a ruling by Principal R. E. Connelley which would keep Charles Brown, Robert Frank and Nick Wuchina out of the game because of poor scholastic standing.

Today student strikers drew picket lines around the high school, and a chorus of "boos" greeted pupils who entered the building. Posters were also displayed reading "Down with Connelley" and "We want a new principal."

Following a "pep" meeting at the athletic field, the striking students paraded through town, shouting and cheering.

Westmoreland County school authorities took a hand in the strike today as charges of politics were hurled by Principal Connelley against defeated school board candidates. Connelley said he had heard that a disgruntled school board candidate had addressed striking students and promised to get the ineligible players reinstated.

In the controversy, the Ligonier School Board is apparently of divided opinion.

Dr. C. A. Hamill, of the board, said:

"The only solution I see is removal of the principal."

But Harry Frye, president of the board, said:

"How are they going to remove the principal. You've got to have a reason and there is no reason."

Connelley first ordered one of the Ligonier players out of the line-up during the game with Johnstown Catholic High School last week. Early this week he certified all three players ineligible.

TINY GUN-GIRL FIGHTS POLICE

A young 80-pound woman almost demoralized the city's detective bureau today.

Police don't know whether she's Jean or Geraldine O'Connor, of Cicero street, Chicago, or Phyllis Walker, of Baltimore.

She battled 175-pound Detective Charles Waizenhafer and 150-pound Detective William Sullivan when they took her into custody in her room in the Seventh Avenue Hotel this afternoon.

Seeing her by chance open a baggage-checking cabinet in a bus station on Liberty avenue, and extract a blue-steel, snub-nosed .38 caliber revolver, the pair had followed her to the hotel. They took the gun from her first, and she struck, kicked, wrestled, until the detectives were forced to carry her to a waiting car.

At the detective bureau, she aimed a kick at Inspector Frank R. Boyd, sarcastically telling him it was none of his business why she was in Pittsburgh. She defiantly refused to submit to fingerprinting or being photographed. After a half hour spent heapin gsarcasm on Sergt. Edward Bishop, he sent her to the matron's room, saying:

"Go down there and cool off."

She replied:

"When I come back I'll be rarin' to go."

The woman was registered at the hotel as Jean O'Connor, or Chicago. Letters were found which indicated she might be Geraldine O'Connor, or Phyllis Walker or Jean L. Thompson, of 18 East Preston street, Baltimore. One letter was addressed to a Mrs. Frank Decker, 227 North Seventh street, Ellwood, Ind., and was addressed to "mother."

Paderewski, Caruso Loom as Ghosts Of Gayer Days

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 19.—Here, then, is the piano whose keys Paderewski nudged.

Over yonder a few paces is the gold-glittering dining room where Caruso scowled and sang.

Up the stairs of English oak are the bedrooms of mystery.

But in the library the wallpaper has wasted away and the plaster is pushed impudently out of line.

And in his bedroom, Josiah V. Thompson, as he lay down to die, was saved from detecting the tenement cracks in the walls only by his long-departed eyesight.

This is Oak Hill, the neglected mansion whose master was once at ease among the world's richest. This is the mansion which next week goes to figurative pieces under an auctioneer's hammer.

This is the castle built by the emperor of coal who married three women and reared one fabulous fortune—the emperor who, even in death, would not admit that he was without a kingdom.

This is where Josiah V. Thompson hid his secrets.

What did he mean when, in his last will and testament, he so meticulously directed his wife and step-children to take a key "from my pants pockets" to unlock his

Riverview Bandits Escape With Loot

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 19.—Their lives threatened if police were informed, the John Zani family at Riverview waited until today to report they had been held up, bound hand and foot and their home and restaurant ransacked yesterday by six bandits. The bandits tied up Zani, his wife, Romilda, and their daughters, Therese, 21, and Edith, 20. When Mrs. Zani fainted as one of the men tied her arms, the gang leader went into the storeroom, drew a glass of water and gave it to her. The men escaped with two diamond rings, a small amount of cash and other valuables.

ROBBERS' AUTO INJURES MAN

Two robbers were sought by police today as hit-run motorists after they had held up the Atlantic gasoline station at Western and Allegheny avenues and escaped with $35.

R. A. Stroyd, of 1610 Braddock avenue, Swissvale, the attendant, told police they held him up after purchasing 10 gallons of gasoline. He said they drove an automobile bearing Ohio license plates.

Ten minutes after the holdup, Thomas McKenna, 23, of 11 Federal street, was found lying in the street at Federal and Robinson streets, suffering a head injury. Police believed McKenna was struck as the bandit car sped away. McKenna was treated at Allegheny General Hospital.

Beauty Racket Victims Cheer Holding of Four

More than 100 women cheered today in the Little Theater of Woods Run as handcuffs were slipped on four male defendants at the conclusion of a "beauty shop racket" hearing.

The women had flocked to the theater at 3035 Preble avenue, when Alderman George A. Young, who conducted the hearing, didn't have room in his office to accommodate the throng of fair complainants.

Constable Norbert Sexton, who investigated the case, had sent postcards to all women who had complained to the Better Business Bureau of misrepresentations by beauty parlor solicitors.

Eight young women were freed by the alderman, who held they had not intentionally misrepresented certificates for permanent waves.

The men held, all charged with conspiracy to cheat and defraud, are Wilbur Freeman, 24; Joseph Devine, 23; J. R. Goodwin, 33, all of 402 Collins avenue, and Frank DeGillis, 31, of 222 Meyran avenue. Bond was fixed at $2,000. It was alleged all the men are representatives of the National Beauty Corporation, with offices at 413 Fourth avenue, and operating a beauty shop at 233 Oliver avenue. According to the Prothonotary's records, the organization is owned and operated by a Herbert T. Frankham, of Chicago.

The system used by the beauty firm's solicitors, it is said, was to distribute certificates costing 25 and 50 cents each, which, if read carefully, informed the customer she would receive a permanent wave free, if in addition to the cost of the certificate cash was paid for a shampoo and wave set. Complainants said the conditions, as set forth in the certificates, were not explained fully to them by solicitors from whom they purchased the certificates.

FILE M'DADE MORALITY CHARGE

Man Held With Girl For Coroner's Probe Of Triangle Death

Edward J. McDade, 24, movie theater owner, was turned over to the Coroner today to await the action of a Coroner's jury, while detectives swore out information on a morality charge.

Mary K. Danahey, 16, was turned over to the Coroner as a material witness.

The Coroner's jury will hear testimony concerning the fatal injuries McDade's wife, Grace, received early Monday after falling or jumping from her husband's car near their Charles street home.

The wife, 21, died Tuesday.

Mary Danahey is his loyal, if child-like sweetheart.

McDade was turned over following a hearing in Morals Court this morning. There, Mary Danahey told of waiting for more than four hours in his automobile, outside St. John's Hospital, while McDade's wife was dying. She said he came to the machine once, then returned into the hospital.

Magistrate Jones asked the girl:

"What did you think about it?"

And she answered:

"I didn't want her to die; neither did Ed."

Mrs. McDade, mother of the two young children, died from a fractured skull.

At the hearing this morning, Detective Sergt. Samuel Wheeler testified as to the relations of McDade and the young girl.

Her brother, Earl Danahey, of 407 Michigan street, Beltzhoover, stating that he was speaking in behalf of his parents, asked that the court be lenient. Her parents want her back home, and want her to give up McDade, the man explained, adding:

"All her troubles should be a lesson to her."

But detectives detained her for further questioning.

The girl and McDade have protested their love for each other, consistently, since detectives brought both in to clear up the fatal leap of Mrs. McDade.

DERBY, West Australia, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Charles T. P. Ulm and three companions arrived here today establishing a new record for a flight from England. Their time was 6 days 17 hours and 45 minutes.

$3,000 TAKEN FROM BANK RETURNED

Package From Arizona Clue to Missing Elizabeth Woman

A roll of bills containing $3,000, which disappeared from the State Bank at Elizabeth along with Miss Hazel B. Weigal, assistant cashier, nearly a month ago, was reported today to have been returned to the bank.

The package is said to have been mailed to an official of the bank from Tucson, Ariz.

Police and Pennsylvania banking officials have been unsuccessful in their hunt for Miss Weigal, charged with embezzling $7.384 of the bank's funds. She was a trusted employe, having been with the bank for 17 years' years and known throughout the community for her charitable activities.

Officials of the bank are also reported to have received a deed to Miss Weigal's home in Pangborn Hollow, but to be in doubt as to her signature, turning the property over to the bank.

Miss Weigal disappeared September 22. She was seen in McKeesport two days later. Her automobile, abandoned, was found near the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Station, McKeesport.

L. M. Beatty, cashier, declined to affirm or deny reports of the return of the $3,000. Te denied emphatically, however, that Miss Weigal had deeded her home to the bank. B. E. Wylie, president, referred inquiries to Beatty.

LINDY KIDNAP HUNT SPURRED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Recent success in rounding up kidnapers has prompted the Department of Justice to undertake a fuller, co-ordinated investigation of the 20-month-old Lindbergh kidnaping.

Sanctioned by President Roosevelt in his desire to consolidate all kidnaping investigations under the Justice Department, the move follows disclosure of the withdrawal from the case of the lone income tax investigator who has been working on it.

This agent, Frank Wilson, of Capone income tax investigation fame, was taken off the case this week by Elmer L. Irey, chief of the Internal Revenue Bureau's intelligence unit, and returned to his former duties.

Lindy, Thomas Seen In Downing Street

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindberg today appeared in Downing street in the company of J. H. Thomas, the Dominions secretary.

The American, who arrived here recently with Mrs. Lindbergh after an air tour of Northern Europe, chatted with the Secretary a few moments, then entered a taxicab and drove away.

Captured?

GEORGE C. SKIDMORE

SUSPECT HELD AS SKIDMORE

A three-year search for George C. Skidmore, 23, alleged killer of a crippled Mt. Washington gas station attendant, was believed at an end today in Los Angeles.

City detectives are awaiting positive indentification of a man held by United States Navy authorities as Ashley George Skidmore, Jr., an enlisted man aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, before taking steps to bring him back to Pennsylvania for trial.

Skidmore was arrested by Los Angeles police on October 8 on a charge of harboring a Chicago runaway in his apartment at San Pedro. During investigation of the charge officers learned Skidmore had been absent without leave from his ship since October 2. He was remanded to the custody of Naval authorities.

Detectives here have wired Los Angeles police for pictures and description of the suspect hunted here since September 20, 1930, when Charles Hammond, a cripple, was shot and killed during a holdup at the Liberty Bell Service Station at Warrington and Boggs avenue.

The pictures are expected to

UNION HEAD APPEALS TO PRESIDENT

Murray Says Moses Has Discontinued Negotiations

Negotiations between the owners and workers of the captive coal mines are in the hands of President Roosevelt, Philip Murray, union leader, said today.

Murray reiterated the status of the peace parleys and gave reasons for asking the President to take up the arbitration. Meanwhile, other commercial mines reopened, leaving only a small percentage still closed in sympathy with the captive mine holiday.

Murray said:

"Regardless of Mr. Moses' denial that negotiations are off, there have been no meetings for a week; and when there is no negotiating, there are no negotiations.

"When the President ordered Mr. Moses and myself to negotiate, he made it understood that if an impasse was reached, he would step in and arbitrate the differences himself. There is such an impasse now. I asked the President, through Mr. Lewis, to step in. It is now in the government's hands."

MYSTERY HEARING

Murray, saying that nearly all the commercial mines were working, declared he had not heard that the National Labor Board was planning hearings in Uniontown. The United Mine Workers, of which Murray is international vice president, and two brotherhoods, which the United Mine Workers' leader declare are company unions, were to be heard.

Attorney Anthony Cavalcante, adviser of groups of miners in the Fayette fields, and Gov. Pinchot's personal representative, declared he did not know about the hearings, although he was reported to have made the announcement.

3,000 AT WORK

It was estimated that between 2,000 and 3,000 of the coke region's 9,000 miners were back to work, with indications that the steady stream of returning men would continue.

All captive mines remained closed. They are picketed as a protest against the captive mine owners' refusal to recognize the United Mine Workers. Pickets made no appearance at commercial mines.

At a meeting in Fredericktown last night a motion to return to work at the W. J. Rainey mines was shouted down. Other operations resuming included the Bitner, Melrose, Pike Run, Oliver Nos. 2 and 3, and other small mines. Only clean-up men went into the large Thompson mine.

R. F. C. Offers Aid To Freeport Bank

The First National Bank of Freeport, Pa., is to receive $25,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which has agreed to purchase that amount of its preferred stock, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington. The purchase depends on the sale of an equal amount of common stock in the community. The bank succeeds the Farmers National Bank of Freeport.

Weirton Strike Leader Returns to Mill

By DAVID ROSENTHAL
Staff Correspondent.

WEIRTON, W. Va., Oct. 19.—William J. Long, leader of the Weirton Steel Company strike, was back at his old job in the tin mill last night.

Long, a crack roller, had been busy in conferences with other strikes leaders here as well as attending meetings of the National Labor Board in Washington. Last night he bought a new pair of gloves, and went into the mill. He came out at 8 a. m. today weary from his all-night toil.

The strike chief said he went back because he had promised Senator Robert F. Wagner, of the Labor Board, he would set an example to the other strikers and because he wanted to help President Roosevelt's program.

Many of Long's former fellow-strikers, however, were not so fortunate. Several hundred were informed when they reported for work today that there was nothing for them now. They were told to go home and they would be notified when work was available.

Long himself signed a telegram to Senator Wagner charging that the company was discriminating against men and girls who had refused to return to work until the strike was settled in favor of those who had gone back during the strike. This Long charged, was in violation of the agreement signed by him, E. T. Weir, head of the company, and Senator Wagner. A reply was awaited today.

All was quiet today here. West Virginia state police cruised the streets at intervals.

CHASE BANK SEEKS TO BLOCK CUBAN LOAN PROBE

SENATE LIKELY TO PUSH INQUIRY

Financiers' Plea Cites 'Uncertain Situation' In Island

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Senate investigators today said Chase National Bank officials were seeking to prevent an inquiry into their loans to Cuba, because of the uncertain situation in the island republic.

Chairman Fletcher told newspapermen, however, the committee probably would go into the matter to determine what the practices had been.

He said at yesterday's executive session that W. W. Aldrich, president of the bank, urged the committee not to go into the Cuban loan situation for fear it would bring additional disturbance on the island.

POOL REVEALED

He did not go into detail with the committee about the bank's activities, but said all individual loans to Cubans had been repaid.

American banks aided in floating two big loans aggregating $225,000,000 for the old Machado administration in Cuba in which Chase participated.

One of the loans was used for construction of a capitol building and the other for highways.

Evidence that the Chase Securities Corporation participated through a subsidiary in a pool in Chase National Bank stock in 1930 with power to sell short was presented today to Senate investigators.

Earlier, Albert H. Wiggin, retired chairman of the bank, told the Senate Banking Committee his family was buying the bank stock during operations in it by a pool in 1928.

The 1930 pool was formed by Chase Securities Corporation and Dominick & Dominick with the latter as managers.

DEFINES 'SPECULATION'

Chase Securities Corporation later allotted its participation to its subsidiary, the Metpotan Corporation and the Shermar Corporation, a personal company belonging to Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the bank and his family.

Wiggin, in his testimony defined speculation as "unsuccessful investments."

The questioning by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, precipitated laughter from the audience at one point when the banker forgot his previous definition. He admitted it with a smile. Pecora asked:

"Speculative operations are very often profitable, aren't they?"

Wiggin answered:

"They used to be."

CUBAN SOLDIERS GUARD HAVANA

HAVANA, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Soldiers armed with sub-machine guns patrolled the streets today as a precaution against any recurrence of disorders marked by the wounding of a sailor last night.

Government authorities announced that the seaman was shot by snipers who fired on soldiers during the night from automobiles and rooftops.

No indication was given today of new turns in the government's drive on Communism after the arrest of 34 men and six women charged with having Communist affiliations.

After questioning, the women were freed. The men were permitted to continue at work under guard.

Officials of American oil companies categorically denied a Havana newspaper story that they were refusing to ship gasoline to Cuba. The officials also denied that there was any danger of a shortage, as the newspaper alleged.

Frederic March's Condition Better

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Frederic March, screen actor, whose condition had been reported as serious after he suffered a relapse while recovering from an attack of influenza, was reported today by his physicians to be "well on the road to recovery." March was said to have passed the crisis of his illness last night.

Schenck, Goldwyn Fight NRA Pay Control Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Joseph M. Schenck and Samuel Goldwyn, veteran film producers, took up the battle for the actors and writers of the film colony today with the statement:

"You can't make a crime out of earning capacity."

Goldwyn said:

"I'd rather pay an artist $250,000 if he earned it than $2,000 if he did not."

The alignment of the two producers with the actors and writers came after representatives of the film extras had joined in the fight against the proposed motion picture industry code.

A telegram to President Roosevelt was sent by the board of the Screen Actors' Guild, protesting the third revision of the proposed code by Sol A. Rosenblat, deputy NRA administrator. The revised code failed to eliminate provisions objectionable to the actors and writers—the salary control board and the anti-raiding clause.

The actors and writers also oppose Article 5, which they claim restricts free bargaining between players and producers.

Schenck issued the following statement of his policy on the proposed code:

"I am opposed to the establishment of a code authority for several reasons. It would result in peonage for the artists. It would tend to establish maximum salaries which would be illegal, unfair and un-American."

Goldwyn said

"There is but one Charlie Chaplin, one Garbo, one Cantor, one Dressler. They have unique personalities. They are entitled to everything they can make."

WAGNER WARNS NRA CHEATS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Industry today had a forcible reminder from Chairman Wagner that NRA's ultimate enforcement penalties of heavy fines or imprisonment stood behind National Labor Board decisions. In a discussion of labor policies Senator Wagner said:

"I want to stress the fact that the board has power. It is an essential part of the recovery program and is working hand in hand with the Recovery Administration.

"Any group which flouts the decisions of the board may be placed under a code embodying the conditions approved by the board. If the code is violated the licensing provision and other penalties of the Recovery Act may be invoked. There will be no escape for the misguided minority."

RAILROADS DEFY WHEAT EDICT

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Wheat moved across the North Dakota border today despite the embargo of Gov. William Langer, who told his adjutant general to call out National Guardsmen to enforce his edict.

As the railroads announced their belief that the embargo was illegal and chose to obey the laws of Congress respecting interstate commerce, Gov. Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota, formally declined Langer's invitation to join in the embargo. He urged federal control of production, marketing and price fixing to aid the farmer.

Railroad executives said they would continue to accept wheat in North Dakota and ship it until interfered with, when recourse to courts by them or a shipper was probable.

Langer, in reply, said his troops would halt shipments as soon as a direct report of violation was made. Railroad men at Fargo said wheat was moving into Minnesota from there.

PRICE FIX SNAGS RETAIL CODE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—For four hours key members of the Roosevelt recovery units argued the controversial retail code with its disputed cost-plus provisions, but at the end they apparently were no nearer an agreement.

Hugh S. Johnson, Recovery Administrator, said yesterday as he left the White House that a final decision could not be reached "for a couple of days."

Still foremost in official discussion of the dispute which has brought two of the major recovery administrations into conflict was a belief that President Roosevelt would be compelled in the end to take his choice between the stands of Johnson and Secretary Wallace.

The situation revolves about the NRA provision — staunchly backed by Johnson and what he described as a top-heavy majority of the retail trade—that retailers be prohibited from selling at less than wholesale invoice cost plus 10 per cent for labor costs.

Secretary Wallace and George N. Peek, the farm administrator and a long-time business associate of Johnson, contended this would play havoc with the buying power of farmers and consumers generally.

FORD ORDERS STRIKE PARLEY

International News Service.

EDGEWATER, N. J., Oct. 19.—With a direct wire at the plant open to Detroit, officials of the Ford factory here today, on orders of Henry Ford, received a workers' committee of 14 to arbitrate the three-week-old strike of 2,000 employes.

Ford's order for his officials to sit with the workers' committee, under auspices of the National Labor Board, is interpreted as a final capitulation to the NRA on the part of the manufacturer.

Ford's orders to arbitrate were extended not only to the Edgewater plant, but also to Chester, Pa., where workers of his factory began the strike in which the Edgewater men joined soon afterward.

NORRIS APPEALS FOR CURRENCY INFLATION

Urges Billion and Half New Money Plan On Roosevelt

International News Service.

M'COOK, Neb., Oct. 19.—Because the farmer "is rapidly losing confidence" as a result of higher prices for everything he buys and lower prices for everything he sells, Senator George W. Norris, Republican Progressive, today urged President Roosevelt to launch a currency inflation program that would circulate at least $1,500,000,000 in "new money."

In a telegram to the President, Senator Norris declared:

"Western newspapers headline action of various Nebraska organizations in asking you to do something to aid the farmer. They describe the distressful condition of the farmer. Their description of conditions is no exaggeration. The farmer is rapidly losing confidence in relief attempts.

Advocating currency inflation that would restore the purchasing power of the farmer, Senator Norris further suggested in his telegram that redemption of $1,500,000,000 of the Liberty "Fours" be accomplished through issuance of new money to that extent.

Bryan Urges Inflation, Scores Recovery Program

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Agricultural areas today were described as a "seething mass of unrest" by Gov. Chas. W. Bryan in a general attack on the entire national recovery program.

Bryan, brother of "The Commoner," William Jennings Byran, said he did not know what the farmers' unrest might lead to but said it was "bringing on a condition we can't shut our eyes to."

He called the administration's agricultural plans a "one-sided so-called farm relief program," said it appeared that "all of the anti-trust laws have been either nullified or overridden," that "the people are now being plundered," and that "the remedies so far suggested by the federal government were to loan more money which in itself is hastening the downfall of everyone who borrows under present conditions."

The Governor, once himself a Democratic candidate for Vice President and now in his third term as governor, said the policy of "pouring money in at the top" again had failed.

He indorsed Senator George W. Norris' recommendation that Liberty Bonds be paid with new currency instead of being refunded and said he now favored payment of the soldiers' bonus in new currency as a means of putting money into circulation in every precinct and every grocery store.

MRS. PINCHOT HERE TONIGHT

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, pushing her campaign on behalf of labor unionization, will address New Kensington and Tarentum workers at mass meetings tonight.

Burgess Daniel Burns will welcome the Governor's wife to New Kensington, where she will speak at an open air meeting at 7:30 p. m. She will make another speech under auspices of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers in the Tarentum High School at 9:15 o'clock.

UNION LEADERS WARNED BY RICHBERG

NRA Ready to Act To End Violence, Counsel Says

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Labor union leaders have no more right than employers to provoke disorders of any sort in connection with labor disputes and under the National Recovery Act can be fined or checked in their actions by court injunctions whenever the NRA finds it necessary.

This ruling was announced today by Donald R. Richberg, chief counsel for the NRA, when the question was raised during a press interview regarding his reports on the dispute among rival unions in the Illinois coal fields.

The ruling, however, applies to all labor in all industries. Richberg said:

"It is clearly the purpose of the recovery administration to be impartial in its levying of fines and injunctions on violators of codes."

Richberg said that as long as rival union organizers try to "sell" membership to workers the recovery administration considered they are functioning in an orderly fashion.

He made it clear, however, that when "high pressure" salesmanship of organizers reaches such a pitch that they begin using "strong-arm methods" to increase their membership the administration will "crack down" on them and their superiors with all the penalizing force of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

This marks the first time that the NRA has had to threaten union leaders with the same action that they have many times had to use in forcing employers to permit the National Labor Board to arbitrate a labor dispute.

Richberg said he found that both the United Mine Workers and the Progressive Miners were in effect, trying to "muscle in" on each other's mines in Illinois, where wage agreements were signed with one or the other unions.

Illinois Capital Stormed After Fatal Mine Clash

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—A horde of coal miners invaded the state capital here today to protest against alleged federal inaction in settling the miners' labor difficulties of more than a year's standing.

Some 5,000 miners filtered into the city and 15,000 more were expected by the mine leaders during the day.

National Guardsmen were on duty to prevent violence.

One street row caused the death of one of the miners, but otherwise the demonstrators were quiet.

Doors to the Governor's office were heavily guarded.

The one fatality was the result of a street brawl between a Progressive miner and a member of the United Mine Workers Union. Melvin Staples, a Progressive, was shot and killed. His brother-in-law, Harry Groves, charged that Peter Haynes, past provisional president of Local 7 of the United Mine Workers Union at Kincaid, shot Staples and swore to a warrant calling for the arrest of Haynes.

Tear Gas Routs 300 Ford Strike Pickets

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Enforcing an order which permits only half a dozen pickets near the plant's gates, police used tear gas to disperse 300 strikers and sympathizers at the Chester assembly factory of the Ford Motor Company.

The plant reopened four days ago, but strikers assert they will remain out until granted higher wages and union recognition.

MRS. LORENA P. BEATTY

3RD MATE SUED BY MRS. BEATTY

Charging cruel and barbarous treatment, Mrs. Lorena Palmer Grise Beatty, of 6212 Penn avenue, yesterday entered suit for divorce from her third husband, William F. Beatty, of 316 South Dithridge street. The couple was married April 7, 1933, at New Cumberland, W. Va.

The Beattys figured in the news last June when Mrs. Beatty was alleged to have "kidnaped" her 14-month-old son, Frank Grise, from her home, and returned him a short time later.

Two months afterwards the Beattys again broke into the news when a mysterious explosion leveled Beatty's home at 7032 Chaucer streeet.

Besides her son, Mrs. Beatty has two daughters, Idella and Mercedes Palmer, aged 17 and 16, respectively. Vaudeville performers, the daughters are known on the stage as Joyce and Sally Ann Palmer.

U. S. CLUBS DRYS SAYS M'BRIDE

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The Roosevelt administration is accused by Dr. F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, of using the public works fund to coerce states into taking immediate action on prohibition repeal.

Addressing a rally of drys last night, Dr. McBride told of visiting the governor of a western state, who complained he was forced into calling a repeal convention by President Roosevelt and Postmaster General Farley.

It was implied the governor's state would run the risk of losing a $50,000,000 loan if action on the prohibition question were not taken, Dr. McBride said. He did not name the governor or the state.

QUIZ LAUNCHED IN MARYLAND LYNCHING

Gov. Ritchie Orders Seizure of All Mob Leaders

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—State, county and the Circuit Court District today launched investigations into last night's lynching at Princess Anne, of George Armwood, Negro, charged with an attack on an 81-year-old white woman.

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie ordered Attorney General William Preston Lane to take charge. He secured detectives from Baltimore to aid in the search and ordered the commander of the state police, 13 members of which were injured in the fight at the jail door, to give Lane its full co-operation.

Ritchie also notified State's Attorney John B. Robins and Circuit Judge Robert F. Duer, whom he publicly blamed for the fact that the Negro was here rather than in Baltimore last night, that he expected them to do everything possible to bring the mob leaders into court.

Mob Storms Maryland Jail, Hangs, Burns Negro

International News Service.

PRINCESS ANNE, Md., Oct. 19.—Two companies of Maryland National Guards were encamped here today, following last night's lynching of George Armwood, 40-year-old Negro. Armwood was taken from the Somerset County Jail and hanged by a mob of more than a thousand men, women and children. His body was burned on the public square.

Armwood was accused of attacking Mrs. Mary Denston, 71, wife of a Somerset County farmer, on Monday. John Richardson, a white man also accused in the case, was removed to Baltimore.

OVERPOWER TROOPERS

The Negro was dragged from his cell by a mob which overpowered 25 state troopers on guard, after refusing to heed the pleas of Judge Robert F. Duer, who resides next to the jail.

The mob attempted to hang Armwood to a tree on Judge Duer's grounds, but found none strong enough and moved to a neighboring lot.

The mob gathered shortly after nightfall, and after retreating before an attack of tear gas, returned with timbers and battered their way into the jail. Most of them were masked.

BURNED IN SQUARE

After Armwood's body was cut down it was tied to an automobile and dragged through the streets to the public square. The crowd gathered fuel and tinder and set fire to the body.

Armwood had been held in the Baltimore jail until yesterday morning, when county officials prevailed upon Gov. Ritchie to return him to the scene of the alleged crime.

HOLD PICKETS IN AMBRIDGE

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Two men charged with having assaulted and beaten Thayer Peters, 54, a Wyckoff Drawn Steel Company worker, when he attempted to gain entrance to the barricaded Wyckoff plant during the labor riots of two weeks ago, were held for Beaver County Court at hearings before Justice of the Peace J. V. Lewis, late yesterday.

The men, John Kapusto, of 1518 Beaver road, and Dan Benning, of 1108 Beaver road, were identified by W. F. McNalley, a deputy sheriff, as the pickets who beat Peters. They were held on charges of aggravated assault and battery and inciting to riot.

Peters, under the care of a physician since he was clubbed by strikers on the night of October 5, was unable to appear at the hearing.

Coal Barges Move Again After Strike

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—For the first time since September 26, when the mine "holiday" made itself felt in the Monongahela Valley, coal barges moved toward Pittsburgh today.

Loaded with 48,000 tons of coal, one tow was propelled by the steamer H. A. Henlot, Pittsburgh Coal Company officials said the cargo was destined for Pittsburgh retail consumption.

U. S. Bans Rum Imports, 'Too Much Whisky'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—The United States has clamped an embargo upon importation of all wines and liquors, it is learned.

Dr. James M. Doran, Commissioner of Industrial Alcohol, has ordered all shipments of wines and liquors to the United States halted, except those now on the high seas.

This halts the clearance of millions of gallons of liquors, in warehouses of European ports, awaiting shipment here. It was to have been stored in bonded warehouses here until after repeal.

The embargo includes every foreign country, including Canada, Cuba, Mexico, England, Scotland and France.

It was ordered after a conference participated in by Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, and with the knowledge of President Roosevelt.

Dr. Doran explained the reason for the embargo thus:

"Until a month ago it appeared that there would be a shortage of liquor in the United States after repeal and that prices would be raised to exorbitant heights.

"Since that time distillers have embarked upon a vast blending campaign. Millions of gallons are being prepared, and it appears that with European imports the country will be flooded. There threatens to be too much whisky.

"The embargo will give American distillers the first chance at the market."

Dr. Doran explained that his rule would only hold good until after repeal.

HAND-CARVED TEAKWOOD CABINET . . SECOND-FLOOR LOBBY

The great cabinet, its proportions terrifying, reputed to have come from a Japanese temple to embellish the upstairs hallway in "Oak Hill," the tumbledown million-dollar Uniontown house that was J. V. Thompson's. Outside the weeds grow higher and higher.

A SECRETLY-LOCKED CABINET UNOPENED FOR 21 YEARS

The cabinet reputed to contain a scarf that once belonged to Dolly Madison, early "First Lady" of the land. It has not been opened since Mr. Thompson's second wife, "Honey" Hawes, left with the keys, then divorced him. These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

FRENCH BUDGET PERILS CABINET

PARIS, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The cabinet today suddenly confronted serious opposition in the Chamber of Deputies over balancing the budget and officials frankly said there was danger of an overthrow.

The government was notified by the finance committee of the chamber that it was impossible to push through the budget measures within the week fixed by Premier Edouard Daladier in a speech before Parliament this week.

M. Daladier has said that the budget must be balanced completely or the country must find a new government.

The attitude of Chancellor Adolf Hitler was considered by government officials as strengthening the cabinet, but the political squabbling was viewed as overshadowing the international crisis.

War debts, which trouble the Franco-American relations, were more than ever in the discard as the Premier was obliged to humor Parliament, which showed no sign of a change of mind.

The Premier's friends said he had planned to initiate negotiations toward a reduced payment after the British debts have been settled, basing the talks on the English result.

HITLER DENIES WAR INTENT

BERLIN, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, in an interview today with a British newspaperman, denied Germany was preparing for war and re-emphasized a desire to come to an understanding with France.

He also denied Germany desired to regain forcibly the Pomorze and the colonies, and sidestepped the monarchist issue. The Chancellor said:

"We leaders of the Nazi movement served almost without exception in the trenches. I would like to see the trench soldier who prepares enthusiastically for a new war."

Meanwhile, a Foreign Office spokesman said today that the belief of the French Foreign Affairs Commission that the four-power European peace pact was killed by Germany's withdrawal from the Disarmament Conference does not mean that Germany considers the agreement dead. He added:

"In this, as in all other matters arising from Germany's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the arms parley, it is up to other nations to make the next move."

Catholic Party Aids Hitler Arms Stand

BERLIN, Oct. 19. — (INS.)—Heeding Chancellor Hitler's call for a united front against European powers in their resistance to Germany's disarmament demand, the Catholic Centrist group in the Berlin City Council today voted to join the Nazis.

The Nationalists took similar action last month; consequently the Nazis now have 100 per cent control of the council.

desk? What was in the desk?

If the rest of Josiah Thompson's possessions are indicative, the locked desk contains naught but another mass of personal papers and antedated bank books.

Did he place any store in the purported autograph of Button Gwinnett which he left to his favorite step-child, Rose Mary Maloney, 17, an autograph which, if genuine, might bring a modest fortune?

His third wife, a kindly, elderly woman whom he married four years ago when he was 75, is convinced that he did. Her faith in him unshaken, she defied the experts who have pronounced the autograph a fake:

"Mr. Thompson was too brilliant a man to be taken in like that. Don't you think so? There must be something to it."

Mrs. Thompson would say nothing of the will, the strange will which disposed of seemingly invaluable treasures, yet mentioned not an actual penny. Nor would she confirm or deny the report that she was the beneficiary of a $100,000 insurance policy.

CONFIDENT OF VINDICATION

She is confident that, when the disorder that prevails now in the Thompson mansion is eliminated, her husband's last testament will be, if necessary, vindicated.

She is reconciled to the sale which Auctioneer Lawrence Cook will conduct next week. There is no doubt in her mind that she will be able to produce from Josiah Thompson's voluminous records the autographs not only of Gwinnett, but of all other signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Genuine or not, the autograph of Button Gwinnett is of little interest to bewildered little Pasquale Pallini and his neat and articulate wife, Augusta. Servants to Thompson for 26 years, they remain alone in the mansion, wondering where they'll go when next month the big house is converted into a convent.

BUSY FINGERS POINT

They point busy fingers to the Thompson treasures. They tell you that when "J. V." married "Honey" Hawes, the free-spending belle of Johnstown, they toured Europe for 14 months collecting treasures.

Rugs from Persia, Italy and France—rugs that inspire envious exclamation from all women.

Seventeen gold-backed chairs in the huge Doges dining room.

A Madame DuBarry bedroom for the mistress—curios from the four corners in the Marquis room, the Dutch room, the Empire room, the Louis XVI room.

A hand-carved teakwood cabinet of massive proportions reputed to have come from a Japanese temple.

'SLAVES FOR SALE'

A Boulanger painting of a nude, "Slaves For Sale."

The walls and beams of sixteenth century English oak.

The champagne goblets, centuries old, from Venice.

The countless volumes of Voltaire, Balzac, Emerson, Jane Austin, Maupaussant, Goethe.

The tall, silent Tudor clock that stands in the main hallway.

The tables of Jacobean oak.

The charcoal burner said to have been traced from the palace of the Empress Eugenie.

'HONEY' HAWES TOOK KEY

The cabinet in the Louis XVI room which has remained locked for 21 years because "Honey" Hawes left with a divorce, a $1,000,000 settlement and the key to a secret lock.

The Elizabethan tables, the Flemish chairs, the hand-built porcelain table which depicts Louis XVI and his court of ladies—all imported, just as all of Thompson's one-time staff of 40 or more servants were imported, one from a country.

Pasquale Pallini and Augusta Pallini haven't been paid their $150 monthly salary since 1925. And from 1914 to 1925 they were paid, he tells, now and then.

But their devotion was great and their knowledge of a master who was always kind to them was greater. They knew him well.

Never did he criticize. Always he was superstitious. He adopted 11 as his lucky number. He insisted that Pasquale ring the resounding Bombay dinner drum of steel, not once, but 11 times—even to his death.

BLAMES GARY FOR RUIN

To his last days he was confident he would come back to millions. Often he assured Pasquale that he would be paid many fold. On his deathbed he told Pasquale a bit of history.

Paderewski, Caruso Loom as Ghosts Of Gayer Era

It wasn't. Thompson related, Frick who "ruined" him, as many thought; it was Judge Gary.,

It was Judge Gary who convinced the Interstate Commerce Commission that southern coal should be shipped north at cheaper rates than Thompson, with his vast coal lands in Pennsylvania, could combat—so the coal baron told his servant.

Once Thompson weighed 256. In his last days he was 90 pounds. And devoted Pasquale would listen to his plans for recouping his millions, then lift the tiny man into his arms to bathe him.

GAY PARTY DAYS

Pasquale knows many things. Parties? Ah, yes, in the old days the parties were as numerous as the millions. One day his master made $5,000,000 in a deal with Frick. Another day a party started. People came from San Francisco, from everywhere. How long did the party last?

Four months.

And one lady on the party, she was fat, she wanted to reduce.

So they installed a steam cabinet for her!

All this in the mansion where a million dollars was once a penny.

Cardinal, Editor White Share Piano Honors

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, arrived on the liner Vulcania today after a visit to the Vatican.

On the same boat was William Allen White, sage of Emporia, Kansas.

The Cardinal told of an audience with the Pope and said that it was "the most delightful incident in my life."

The sage of Emporia was enthusiastic about the Cardinal. He said:

"He's the most democratic fellow. Yesterday he and I played the piano for each other.

"We were in the conservatory alone. I played the 'Hymn to the Evening Star.' He played the 'Pilgrim's March' from 'Tannhauser.'

"Then I played 'Cavalleria Rusticana.' The Cardinal popped up and said, 'Let me play that for you.' He did, and it was splendid.

"Then he sang 'Marguerite' and 'Last Night the Nightingale Waked Me'; sort of hummed them in a fine tenor voice.

"I didn't sing, but our piano contest was horse and horse.

"There was no audience. It was too bad."

Mother-in-Law Problem Solved by Science

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—For the bride who wishes to get along with her mother-in-law and be happy, science has come forth with a few suggestions. Here they are:

Don't criticize her "old-fashioned" ideas.

Don't try to reform her methods of household management.

Don't (out loud) resent dealings she has with her son.

Don't begrudge waiting on her.

Don't belittle her real or fancied ailments.

Don't criticize her personal habits.

Don't forget to practice tolerance, always.

If the bride will just do these things all will be well with her relations with her mother-in-law, said Dr. E. W. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago. He arrived at his solution by sifting and studying the answers to 6,000 questionnaires sent to married couples to find out how persons can be happy and married.

DEROSA FRIEND NAMED SLEUTH

A new detective was added to the city's bomb and arson squad today.

He is Louis Monaco, of 36 Carver street, a protege of Michael DeRosa, Sr., Republican chairman of the Twelfth Ward and a power in East Liberty's politics. To make room him James L. (Troubles) McInerney was demoted to a patrolman and assigned to plainclothes duty in the automobile division.

McInerney, a veteran of 18 years, was reinstated as a detective last September. He was dismissed five years ago shortly after his single-handed capture of a bandit gang.

Police Superintendent Franklin T. McQuaide said Monaco was appointed because he wanted another Italian-speaking detective to work with Michael Tortorelli, head of the bomb and arson squad.

WOULD DIVORCE SHUNNED WIFE

Friends shunned his wife's company, according to John P. Fleming, superintendent of the American Locomotive Company's Dunkirk (N. Y.) plant, today in divorce proceedings against Mrs. Grace S. Fleming, formerly of Bellevue and now living in Dunkirk.

Fleming, who maintains a residence at 1901 St. Ives street, North Side, was formerly superintendent of the Pittsburgh Forge and Iron Company here.

Fleming testified before Judge Thomas M. Marshall his wife had threatened to kill him—"to drill me full of holes"—and to put "dope" in his food. He charged she went to spiritualists and fortune tellers seeking information about his conduct. While he attended night courses at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Fleming said his wife continually accused him of being in company of other women.

The couple has one child. They were married in 1924 and separated in 1931.

Silk-Lined Cash Not Necessary; Cotton Will Do

—By ARTHUR (Bugs) BAER—

What we need now is sound money. A dollar that will bounce and a check that won't.

Our personal idea of getting money into circulation is to print five billion paper dollars. Then put them on a tin roof in a high breeze.

They don't have to put silk threads in the new currency. We'll wear cotton.

You have got to make money easier to get without waiting for a dark night.

The greatest treasurer since Alex Hamilton kept us out of the Mellon patch for years. Why not print a popular edition of shinplasters and watch the financial Indians jump back to the government reservation?

All the gold that isn't in federal vaults is in teeth.

Which means you can't finger either of our two great reserves without getting bitten.

DOOMED KILLER GETS WHISKY

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Gov. James Rolph has instructed Dr. L. L. Stanley, acting warden of San Quentin Prison, to give Dallas Eagan "all the whisky he can safely stand up under" before he mounts the gallows tomorrow to be executed for a Los Angeles murder.

These instructions followed the Governor's receipt of a letter from Stanley quoting Eagan as inquiring "what brand of whisky" might be served him.

The physician named a brand of bourbon. The Governor said:

"Well, take care of him, and say goodby for me, too."

Eagan declined the Governor's offer of a clemency hearing, saying that he "could think of nothing better than to drop through the gallows."

2,000 Ask Mercy For Slayer of Boy

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—More than 2,000 persons sought clemency for Ted Patton, 25-year-old convicted slayer, but Gov. William H. Murray has given no indication he will intervene in the scheduled electrocution at midnight.

Patton was convicted of the murder of Robert Wall, 19, his boyhood friend. W. B. Wall, father of the slain youth, was a special prosecutor at Patton's trial.

INSURANCE PLOT DEATH DOOMS 4

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—(AP.)—For the murder of "Durable Mike" Malloy—who survived a diet of wood alcohol, poisoned oysters and chopped pins only to die with a gas tube is his mouth—four men must pay with their lives.

Frank Pasqua, an undertaker, and three co-defendants turned pale when a jury found them guilty just before dawn today of murder in the first degree.

They were accused of killing Malloy, a speakeasy derelict, to collect $800 insurance.

As the state told the story, Pasqua, Anthony Marino, 27; Daniel Kreisberg, 29, and Joseph Murphy, 28, insured Malloy's life in their favor. Then he was fed poisoned oysters and sardines mixed with chopped pins, with wood alcohol to wash the diet down.

That didn't kill him, so he was run over by a taxi in a carefully staged "accident." After a few days, he got up from his hospital cot, walked into a speakeasy conducted by Marino, and said:

"Let's have some more of that good liquor."

He finally was stupified by wood alcohol and then killed with gas. Pasqua buried him in a pauper's grave.

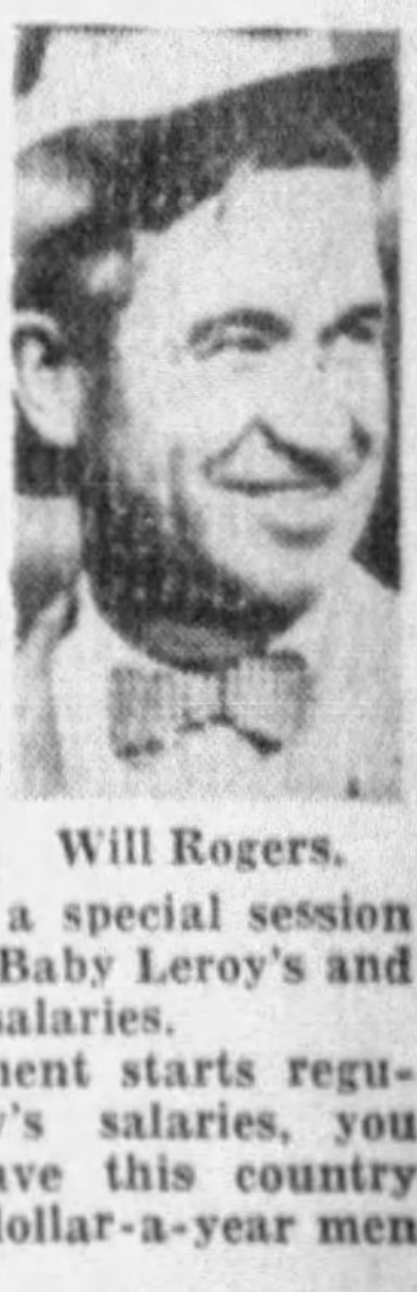
Gary Cooper Bags Elk in Montana

HAMILTON, Mont., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Bewhiskered and wet from head to foot, Gary Cooper of the films reached Hamilton this evening after a week's hunting trip over the Moose Creek country in the Clearwater Hills of Idaho.

Gary had killed an elk. His desire to bag a bear went unfilled, however, for none was seen. He and his brother, Arthur, of Helena, Mont., encountered rain several days.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 19.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:



Will Rogers.

Nothing really disastrous to this country can ever happen, for right in the middle of serious troubles will come up some fool thing. "The world is about to go to war," "farm mortgages are selling for 50 cents a bushel." "The American dollar is bouncing like a rubber check."

But in the midst of all this Washington is excited and about to declare a special session of Congress over Baby Leroy's and Jackie Cooper's salaries.

If the government starts regulating everybody's salaries, you are going to have this country clogged up with dollar-a-year men again.

Thousands pay voluntarily to see Baby Leroy, but before they can get the Senate gallery full (free of admission), they have to advertise that two Senators will probably kill each other. That's what makes us a great country. The little things are serious, and the big ones are not.

Yours, Will.

VOLPES LINKED IN ICE PICK MURDER

County detectives today were trying to find where the slaying of John Aliberti, flashy little Sicilian gangster, fitted into the massacre of the Wilmerding Volpes and the complex series of killings that followed it.

Reasons for the killing of Aliberti are as numerous as the 60 ice-pick wounds in his body, which was found behind a culvert on the Long Run road, near McKeesport, early yesterday, according to detectives.

Aliberti was no stranger to the Police Department. For a felonious shooting and cutting he served a term in Western Penitentiary, and at the time of his death he was one of those under indictment for the bombing of the Ban Box Night Club.

Except that his body wasn't placed in a sack, the murder of Aliberti wasn't unlike that of John Bazzano, business partner of the Volpes, who died a gangster's death in Brooklyn's Red Hook district a week or so after the Volpes—John, James and Arthur—had been shot down in their Wylie avenue coffee shop.

Moreover, not only was Aliberti known to have been on intimate terms with Big Mike Spinelli, who, now in Naples, Italy, is under indictment for the Volpe murder, but he also was a pal of the Volpe clan, detectives point out.

ORDERED FROM CITY

Aliberti was one of those arrested when city detectives raided Louis Volpe's suite in the Penn-Shady Hotel recently in an effort to break up what they thought to be a gigantic alcohol ring. He was fined $25 and ordered to leave town at that time by Magistrate Jones.

And then again, detectives point out, Aliberti's standing hasn't been so good among fellow-gangsters since he alibied his way to freedom during his trial for the torch murder of a gangster down in New Maftinsville, W. Va., in 1932.

Louis Zambrano, his pal, arrested with him in connection with that killing, is now serving a term in the Moundsville Penitentiary, and gangland isn't so sure that Aliberti didn't have something to do with his conviction, detectives say.

MYSTERY AUTO

Another possibility, according to detectives, is that he might have been killed to prevent a repetition at the Ban Box bombing trial of what they think he did at the New Martinsville trial.

Dressed in the new top coat and hat which he was wearing when a school boy saw his battered body behind the culvert, Aliberti was last seen in East Liberty early yesterday arguing with two men and two women. The five drove away in an automobile which might have been the car in which the murder was committed, police say.

At least, detectives agree he was not killed where his body was found. There was no blood near the scene, a fact which led the officers to believe he had been killed in Pittsburgh and tossed out in Long Run road.

ICE PICK LEAVES MARK

Marks of the ice pick were all over his body, some of them even puncturing his legs and ankles. His head and face were battered badly, which might have been the result of a fall, according to the Coroner. A fractured skull was reported to be the cause of death.

County detectives would not announce the lines along which their investigation would be made. That many of the victim's racketeering friends are scheduled for a grilling is certain, and County Detective Joseph Bodner indicated some of the Volpe brothers would be among them.

Asked whether the Volpes would be questioned Bodner replied:

"Well, yes, but not right away. We have something else to find out first."

JOHN ALIBERTI, 35

Aliberti, Ban Box bombing suspect last summer, put on the spot and given a squealer's punishment, detectives say, for his part in sending his pal, Louis Zambrani, to prison. He was found with 65 ice pick wounds in his lifeless body.

WABASH BRIDGE LOAN ASKED

Formal application for a loan of $9,104,000 to complete the purchase of the Wabash bridge and tunnel and construct related improvements was made today by Allegheny County to the State Public Works Advisory Board, according to word from Harrisburg.

This group of projects, which state engineers inspected recently, includes widening Banksville road, lengthening Sawmill Run boulevard, and building a traffic circle at the south end of the Liberty tubes.

3-Wheeled Auto Seen for Future

TORONTO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Describing the automobile of the future before the Canadian section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Frank E. Spring, of Detroit, said today it will have three wheels, two in front and one in back, and the engine at the rear.

Spring said it was not possible to design a perfectly streamlined car with four wheels.

SPIRITS 'HEARD' BY GUESTS IN BALLROOM

Offered as proof of the spiritualist doctrine that the dead do not pass to a world beyond, "spirit greetings" were conveyed to many persons in the large audience at the National Spiritualist Association convention in the ball room of the Hotel William Penn last night.

A woman who left a birthday dinner to attend the meeting had the dinner and the occasion described to her. She was told her father sent his greetings.

There were many other incidents—little happenings in the lives of persons whom the Rev. Myrtle Larson, of East St. Louis, Ill., professed to have contacted in communion with persons who have died.

Mrs. Larson, a beautiful, smiling woman, offered the "spirit greetings" after the Rev. H. G. Burroughs, of Chicago, had spoken on the doctrine of spiritualism, which, he said, accepts the good in all religions.

Mr. Burroughs said the dead "do not go anywhere," and added:

"When they have passed over, they have only forsaken the flesh. After all, I do not see you; you do not see me. All we see is these bodies; the movement of an arm, the expression of the face."

He said Christian Science, Catholicism, Protestantism, psychology and mental science "and all the other isms" have their good, but also limitations that could not be accepted by the scientific mind.

Reports of bureaus and committees within the association occupied the business sessions of the convention today.

Two mediums are scheduled to receive spirit greetings at the public session tonight. They are Bessie Woodworth, of Chicago, and George Cutter, Boston. Loui A. Ward will deliver the sermon.

SQUIRE FACES 'FIX' CHARGE

Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of McKees Rocks, was accused of embracery today. An information charging him with attempting to "fix" the jury that was to try him in Criminal Court last week, was made before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan late yesterday by County Detective David Drexler, on orders of District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Squire Westwood was not arrested at once. Both he and his attorneys had been notified of the action, and he was given a reasonable time to appear and furnish bail.

James Connor, of Oakdale, was the first arrested, being taken into custody last Thursday night when the trial of Westwood and two constables was nearly over. Judge Elder W. Marshall stopped the trial.

Westwood is charged with attempting to influence Mrs. Mary Stevens, of Oakdale, a member of the jury panel, on October 5. It was Mrs. Stevens' reporting to the court that Connor had approached her that led to the embracery charges.

SUSPECT HELD IN WEST AS SKIDMORE

arrive here tonight or early tomorrow by airplane. Police also sent to Los Angeles a minute description of the youth. If identification is reasonably established, Superintendent of Police F. T. McQuade said someone will be sent immediately to return the suspect.

The identity of the killer was learned five days after the holdup when Eugene Batsdorf confessed that Skidmore and Henry Ucellino, alias Henry White, of 130 Oneida street, had committed the crime. Batsdorf is now serving a life sentence for part in the murder.

Skidmore, known as a crack rifle and pistol shot in the Pennsylvania National Guard, fled with 400 rounds of ammunition, two revolvers, a 30-30 rifle and a bandolier of cartridges.

He had been a corporal in Battery B, 176th Field Artillery, for two years, and was an instrument operator—a range finder. His associates declared his fondness for firearms had become almost an obsession.

First trace of him was found in a cabin hidden in the forest around Bellefonte. Skidmore shot his way to freedom when a possee of 200 officers surrounded his hideout, his bullets wounding Private J. G. Olme, of the Highway Patrol, and William Fox of Uniontown. Olme recovered, but Fox died in May, 1932.

BETRAYED BY BROTHER

Skidmore's woodland hideaway was revealed to the posse by Leonard J. Skidmore, 18-year-old brother of the fugitive. He was later indicted by the grand jury on a charge of accessory after the fact in connection with the killing.

The next news of Skidmore following the battle in the mountainous retreat was from Shanghai, China, where he was said to have been an officer in the Chinese army.

City detectives communicated with United States and Chinese authorities with a request that Skidmore be arrested and held for extradition.

Meanwhile circulars bearing a description of the fugitive had been broadcast throughout North America.

The arrest of the suspect in Los Angeles was the first word city detectives had of Skidmore since the Shanghai tip failed.

During Batsdorf's trial the accused insisted that Skidmore fired the shot that killed the crippled gas station attendant.

BLESSED RELIEF FROM TIRED, ACHING FEET

Corns—Bunions—Painful Arches

No need to suffer the tortures of tired, aching feet—corns, bunions, callouses, ingrowing nails and painful arches. Now you can get quick relief in a natural, simple way.

Most all foot trouble is the result of congestion in certain parts of the feet, which is usually caused by improper or ill-fitting shoes. Any doctor or foot specialist will tell you this. When the blood doesn't have a chance to circulate properly, you defeat the very thing which Nature is trying to do, that is, keep your feet healthy and comfortable.

Various preparations such as lotions, creams and drugs, only give slight, temporary relief. The only way to get sure-fire, lasting comfort is to promote blood circulation and relieve the congested areas as Nature intended. When blood starts circulating again, that tired aching feeling disappears almost instantly. Corns, bunions and callouses slough off and don't come back.

Any foot specialist will advise you to get a pair of shoes made by people who have been studying orthopedic science for years. They can take one look at your feet and recommend the type of shoe that will relieve the congested spots almost instantly. Ordinary shoe fitting is not enough—you must get shoes scientifically constructed to lift the pressure from tender nerves and blood vessels.

Scientific shoes were ugly in appearance a few years ago but now they are made in the height of fashion. You not only have happy, healthy feet but handsome feet as well. Don't suffer longer. Investigate Ground Gripper Shoes at once, enjoy foot comfort that you have never experienced before—combined with style and wearing qualities. Ground Gripper shoes are made for men, women and children at reasonable cost. No obligation to call. Do it today! Ground Gripper Shop, 203 Stanwix St., Jenkins Bldg., Pittsburgh, Pa.

'CITIZEN' GROUP OFF BALLOT

The Citizens' Committee party of McKees Rocks has been refused the right to have its name on the ballot next month, the County Bureau of Elections ruling the title name was too much like that of the Citizens' party, already preempted for the entire county.

The Citizens' party did not nominate candidates for McKees Rocks. The borough group wished only to name candidates for election boards. Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, who ruled against it, was upheld by the County Commissioners.

Are You Fat

Hollywood's Famous Reducing Formula Now Available to the Public.

To take off fat—and know you are not injuring your health is what made HOLLYWOOD 18 so successful. And now, by popular demand, you, too, can reduce with the original HOLLYWOOD 18 formula, just like so many overweight movie stars use, who must constantly keep their trim, lovely figures.

Many report weight reductions from 14 to 41 pounds and it's so easy and pleasant if you just take a little HOLLYWOOD 18 in a glass of water before breakfast. Just ask Mayflower, Economy, Sun, Peoples, or any good druggist for HOLLYWOOD 18.

Modern Home · Making

TOMORROW!

OPENS

Sensing the lively public interest in home subjects, we have arranged a Modern Home-Making Exposition, occupying three floors, which will be opened tomorrow and will continue until October 28th.

Our object in this Exposition is to show people the newest materials, the most modern ideas in decorative treatment, and the latest conveniences and comforts for making their homes more comfortable, attractive and inviting. We have deliberately avoided the bizarre and the extreme, thinking of the modern home in the terms of the cultured home-maker of average circumstances, who is ambitious to make her home as charming and livable as possible.

And so everything that you will see here will be practical and applicable to your purposes and plans. There are architectural suggestions for those who are contemplating building. There are modern decorative schemes for those who are furnishing new homes, and there are helpful ideas for adapting old fashioned rooms to new fashioned ideas. There are suggestions for rejuvenating and reclaiming old furniture and other possessions of family pride. There is, indeed, everything that might well be thought of to serve present lively interest in home improvement.

Everybody is invited and urged to see this Home-Making Exposition. It will well justify your time and efforts. Come tomorrow or Saturday, as the crowds are certain to increase as it goes on.

ROOM DECORATING CONTEST

How often have you said "if one had unlimited means, what a beautiful room one could furnish!" Twelve leading women's clubs of Pittsburgh have joined in a contest to demonstrate the truth of this statement. Committees representing each club have been given carte blanche of our drapery, floor covering, and other home furnishing stocks to furnish complete rooms according to their fancy. Irwin furniture was chosen throughout. The result is the most novel and exciting exhibition of room ideas that Pittsburgh has ever seen. We predict that before the week is over these rooms will be the most talked of subject in Pittsburgh. See them tomorrow.

Roosevelt Declines Network

By AIRCASTER

Much has been said about President Roosevelt's good taste in matters concerning radio.

He is aware that too much radio is bad showmanship.

He gave another example of this yesterday when he requested that only two stations, one in Washington, and the other in Baltimore, be cut in on the ceremony October 23, when he is given a degree by Washington College at Chestertown, Md., saying:

"The incident is not of sufficient public interest to warrant a general hookup."

Hill Billy Mystery

You have seen them and stared at their high, larded boots, their flopping stetsons, corduroy trousers and the radiantly-flowered calico shirts.

And you must have marveled at the Hill Billies' naive indifference to curious glances.

Pappy, Ezra, Zeke and Elton, the Arkansas Hill Billies, who have been playing in a big way to the Ed. Wynn network audiences, are typical, yet unique.

Only three remain now, for Zeke, the most naive of them, the lad who coaxed much haunting melody from his accordion while he dumb-cracked, has vanished.

Because I suspected a publicity stunt, I delayed recording the fact, which has brought on a tragic situation. For unless Zeke comes out of hiding, the network is going to fire the "act."

Like Zeke, the program men know that the accordionist was the show's vertebrae.

Faded Out

Zeke faded out with only $10 and his bizarre costume.

You are led by the sentimental reporters to believe that he is making his way back to the Arkansas foothills because he was rebuked by Pappy for singing out of turn.

The truth is, Zeke wanted to run the whole show and sulked when Pappy, the boss, thwarted him.

It may surprise the audience to learn that the Arkansas trek is merely "sob sister" stuff, and that Elton, the youngest and newest member of the troupe, is the only authentic Arkansan in it.

Pappy, who sports a Lincoln beard, is a swell old-timer, name of Murray. You like the way he says "concerteeney" and "practyze." And you don't suspect that, in reality, he was a professor of English in a California university. Catalina was as near as he ever got to the "mountings."

Disguised

Ezra, the fiddler, with the apostolic whiskers, is a vaudeville yodeler who won first fame at Grauman's in Hollywood.

And Zeke! A psychological puzzle is he! It was Rudy Wiedoeft, the sax wizard, who first tipped me. When he saw Zeke fingering the accordion keys, Rudy whispered:

"That's no hill billy. His technique is that of a conservatory-trained musician."

Which was true enough! The missing Zeke really is a celebrity. It is a greater mystery than his disappearance why he was content to parade, penniless, in a calico shirt, when, simply by putting on his store clothes, he might have been instantly recognized as the celebrated "mystery organist" of the West Coast, who manipulated the manual for a network a few years ago, and proved himself one of the finest of living performers. His real tag is Mannis.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Since Creatore, the famous maestro, spoke the other night, I have been bombarded with questions (three constitute a bombardment, five would call for "deluged") about his conducting.

Old-time Pittsburghers remember him not so much by the music but by his fantastic, energetic methods of baton swinging.

People want to know whether his flowing locks still wave wildly while his arms are swinging violently.

I tried in a delicate manner while he was here to get the answer, but his reaction gave proof of his sincerity of conducting. He did not feel like discussing anything that might tend to detract from the seriousness of his art.

Pete Quinn likes cabbage so well that he doesn't grow them just one head to a stalk. He sent me a picture of three heads of cabbage growing from one stalk.

Perhaps the Carnegie atmosphere had something to do with his crop. His garden, at home, is located at 602 Grandview avenue.

I met another Globe Trotter the other night.

His name was Ferdinand Dempsher, a member of the Saint Barbara's Good Will Club of Presto.

At the club entertainment, he impersonated the Globe Trotter, and I got some good ideas about announcing birthdays.

For the young ladies in the audience whose names he was mentioning, he added several years to their actual birthday count.

The howl that followed indicated that the audience liked it, but I haven't heard from the girls yet. I bet Ferdy will.

The pupils of the James E. Rogers School, Columbo street, deserve lots of compliments for the manner in which they conduct themselves.

They have self government. They conduct their own assemblies and have student patrols which act to protect the younger children at dangerous intersections. Miss M. Elizabeth Wolf is the principal.

WELDED STEEL HOMES SEEN

Welded steel homes were predicted as the construction of the future to overcome the high cost of housing by Bennett Chapple before members of the Association of Iron and Steel Electrical Engineers today in convention at the Hotel William Penn.

Pointing out the advantage of the fire-safe construction, Chapple, who is vice president of the American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown, O., said:

"We believe in the possibilities of a tremendous tonnage in the new field. If this tonnage materializes it means, too, a substantial increase in the welding industry."

Awards will be announced in the "New Uses for Steel" campaign conducted by the association at its formal reception tonight, which closes the convention. It was predicted if manufacturers adopt any of the many suggestions for new uses a marked increase in steel tonnage will be found.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—(INS.) Struck upon the head with a gun while he searched the clothing of a hunter for illegally killed game, Clarence William Morton, 36, of Harrisonville, a deputy game warden, was confined to Chambersburg Hospital today with a fractured skull.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Let's hear from you, captains! It has been quite a while now since we had any news from some of the first captains to whom we sent armbands. Do you have any more members? What are you doing to help others? Does your patrol have a football team? Are you planning a party soon? Write and tell us.

Today we have a letter Capt. Irene Pearson, of 644 Doyle avenue, West Homestead, captain of the Junior Patrol Club of West Homestead. Listen!

"I am very glad to say that my club has added 15 new members, which makes it 26 altogether. Every time before we start our club meeting we give the NRA salute. Instead of having our club meeting every day during school we have it on Saturdays. We are planning to have a Halloween party and in order to identify members they have to have their pins. Please send the new members their pins as soon as possible.

"Every week we make new rules. This week's was that when Halloween comes they should not play harmful pranks so as to hurt anybody. They wouldn't want to picture themselves sick on Halloween by anyone playing pranks on them.

"I want you to know that I have a parody for the club from the tune of "The Old Kitchen Kettle." I composed it myself. Here are the words:

"Oh! The Junior Patrol is quite a club, quite a club you see,
And as long as we are helping the others to smile
We're happy as can be.
We have our ups, we have our downs,
But we keep smiling when the whole world frowns,
And if you are blue and feeling down,
Don't wear a frown but a smile.

"I am also sending you a picture of the cheer leader at our school. I hope Junior, Spike, and Snuggins will be able to reform those other bad boys. I would like that girl who played the guitar out at West View Park to sing the parody over the radio. If not, anyone can sing it because I can't get down there."

Isn't that a dandy letter? And full of ideas, too. Let's hear from you often, Irene. And lot's of luck with your club.

Ex-Pittsburgher Killed by Train

A young man identified as George Novak, 22, formerly of Pittsburgh, was killed by a train of the Lackawanna Railroad at Scranton, Pa., today, according to an International News Service dispatch.

A brother, John Novak, lives at 729 Fordam avenue, police said.

TELLS OF HUNT FOR HUSBAND

Helen F. V. McLennan, 28, whose husband, Roland J. McLennan, disappeared March 16, 1929, yesterday asked Judge W. Heber Dithrich for a divorce. The Judge inquired:

"Did you check up to find out if anything had happened to him?"

Mrs. McLennan said she had communicated with relatives at Bergenfield, N. J., where he formerly lived, but they had not heard from him. She added:

"I advertised for him in the daily papers and a carpenters' paper, but could get no trace of him."

McLennan, a carpenter, failed to come home for lunch one day and has been away since, his wife said.

Butler Entertainer Dies of Pneumonia

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Two weeks ago fire destroyed the home of William Bryson Ross, entertainer.

Yesterday Ross died of pneumonia that developed from exposure while he was fighting the blaze.

ITCHING, PAINFUL SKIN IRRITATION SOON HEALED

"A while ago" writes a man in New York City, "my leg got red, swollen, and itched terribly. Then it broke out in several places and the pain was intense. I used all kinds of treatments without success and I walked the floor at night in pain. A friend told me he used Resinol Ointment, so I tried it. In two hours I had relief and after using two and one-half large jars the leg was completely healed"

If you suffer from some itching, burning skin disorder, try Resinol Ointment—your druggist sells it—and see if it doesn't help you as it has thousands of others.

Officer in Chase Slips, Falls On Porcupine

DENVER, Col., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Patrolman James Van Horn picked porcupine needles from his pants and opined that what Denver needs is a professional porcupine catcher. He explained:

"I slipped and sat down on that last one. Porcupine catching is no job for an amateur. We've had as high as 20 calls in one night to come and remove porcupines nesting on doorsteps."

Zoo officials said the cool weather drives the porkies to town from the mountains.

FIVE SENTENCED FOR FAKE BILLS

Guilty pleas were entered today by five counterfeiters in Federal Court who faced charges of manufacturing and passing bogus $10 Federal Reserve Bank notes in Western Pennsylvania.

They were arrested by government secret service agents after a printing press was found buried on a farm near Grove City last August.

Judge R. M. Gibson imposed penitentiary sentences as follows: Penrod J. Spangler, of Esplen street, Pittsburgh, four terms of four years each to run concurrently; Frank C. Collier, Uniontown, two terms of four years; Richard C. Breese, owner of farm near Grove City; Davis T. Moore, Uniontown, and David C. Spangler, Homewood, each one year and one day.

WHEEL OF FORTUNE PATTERN 517

Charming Colorful Scrap Quilt

Fortune has always been considered fickle. As many ingredients go towards successfully winning her as there are varied patches in this Wheel of Fortune. Like the chase after Fortune, this pattern offers diversity in each block and with it the fascination of a new arrangement of the scraps of material. Some old-time quiltmakers preferred to use the same scraps in each block as shown in the illustration.

Pattern 517 comes to you with complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

Send 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridge Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Will you please tell me the correct way to answer an invitation to a bridge tea, to be given at a hotel?

2—Is it proper to use your own calling cards for this purpose? If so, how should this be done?

3—If the calling card is used, should it be mailed in a small envelope? M.

1—How we answer a bridge invitation depends on the kind of invitation that we receive. If it is a formal one, we answer it formally, and if it is informal, for instance a note, we answer it "in kind," that is, in the form of a note.

However, I judge from your second question, that the invitation you refer to is one written on a visiting card. And this should be answered formally. Like this:

Mrs. George Williams accepts with pleasure
Mrs. Edward Worthington's kind invitation for bridge on Tuesday, the first of November at three o'clock

2—No. It is not correct to answer an invitation on your visiting-card. Use note-paper, and write the acknowledgment on the first page, spacing carefully, as I have indicated in my first answer.

3—When a visiting-card is used for an invitation or for any similar use, it is mailed in a small envelope.

Bread-and-Butter Letters

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

How long should I wait before sending a bread and butter letter?

Don't wait at all. Write the note the very first opportunity you have, after your return home. And the sooner, the better, for a bread and butter letter written immediately after one returns from a visit registers a hearty enthusiasm that a delayed letter never can indicate.

Let's go to ISALY'S

JUST LAST SUNDAY we helped Mrs. S—— give her unexpected guests a supper. She told our store manager about it next day. "I was so glad you were open. The bread, cake, minced ham and potato salad, with what I had at home, made a perfectly delightful supper. Your store certainly fills a need in this neighborhood."

We like to be of service that way. Besides our ice cream and other dairy products, our stores can also meet your needs for bread, cake, cold meats, pickles, coffee, etc. Our stores are open early and late . . . day in and day out.

So when the unexpected guest drops in at your home, just remember that Isaly's is ready to help you serve a delicious supper on the spur of the moment.

ALMOST A MEAL IN ITSELF ! !

ASK us for a milk shake, and then watch. First, you get a big scoop of ice cream. Then a ladle of rich flavoring, so full it's running over. Plus a lot of good wholesome milk. And then onto the whirring mixer for a minute.

Off the mixer comes your milk shake—and into a huge paper cup (a brand new one, spotlessly clean, for you). And it almost fills this huge cup —what a dime's worth! You've seen it made. You know it will be good . . . and it is. You'll find it almost a meal in itself.

Mutiny

You, who taught me that all love is fleeting,
  That eternal vows are but a day long,
That tomorrow's kiss may cry no greeting
  To my questing heart that finds the way long.

You must guard the citadel you fashioned,
  And make sure no wanton smile or knavery
Wanders through to breathe of an impassioned
  Prisoner who likes too well her slavery.

Else I might, in mockery of my capture,
  Lock myself within—and with a "heigh-ho"
Fling afar the key and find my rapture
  In the bright new dress to match my eye, oh

If you could not enter to behold me,
What would be the good of lies you told me?

—Gretchen Hood.

Oop!

As noted here before, Jerry Lester, the master of proceedings at the Hollywood, is gayer when he is being bothered by customers who talk out of turn. The other night, frinstance, A stew at the ringside kept teasing him and finally chucked a hunk of ice at Jerry.

"Lissen here!" snapped the annoyed entertainer, as he picked up the ice, "when I'm sleeping peacefully until noon tomorrow—you'll still be delivering this!"

Merciless Truth

Joseph Hylton Smyth sums up our feverish midst with this observation:

"Ride the town or the town will ride you!"

Just a Pal

When George Arliss arrived from Europe the other morning he was, of course, met with all possible dignity. Friends, officials, et al, grouped about him and all was most circumspect, until the porter, after strapping the bags to the cab, turned to Arliss and said:

"Okay, George?"

Arliss wasn't startled, but you should have seen Mrs. Arliss, who stifled her astonishment by saying:

"Oh, a friend of the family."

Gag

It happened in one of the gayer spots the other night. They were discussing a chorus girl who was hit hard by the depression.

"Poor kid," remarked one of us, "she's now on 10th Ave. leading a dog's life."

"Yes," sighed a flip-quipper, "I can remember when she was on Park Ave.—leading a dog's life—on a leash."

As If You Didn't Know

Husbands don't send orchids

Heheheh

The Tenafly (N. J.) papers do not mince wordage. They tell of a bank near Tenafly which got this letter:

"Gentlemen: Your letter received and it struck me at a particularly bad time. I know I owe that note and I will pay it just as soon as I possibly can.

"I am going to ask you as a favor to please give me a little more time, for if this were Judgment Day and you were no better prepared to meet your Maker than I am to meet this note, you would all go to hell.

"I trust that you will do this."

Observations of a Fan

S. J. Moritz offers these interesting observations on the recent World Series: George Davis, about the best hitter in the series, had a pinch hitter bat for him in the second game... Ott hit 23 homers in 1933, mostly all to right field. He won the series with a homer to left field ... Mancuso in 144 games didn't theft a single base but in the series he beat out a bunt which was perfectly fielded... O'Doul during 1933 drove in one run every seven times at bat (55 runs in 388 times at bat) and drove in two runs with only one time at bat in the series... Ryan, fast man on the Giants, stole lewer bases than Lombardi, about the slowest man in the Nat'l League... The president of the American League said it was outrageous to banish a Senator for those few innings. He fined Bill Dickey of the Yanks, however, $1,000 and suspended him for 30 days... Philadelphia, last in the Nat'l League, assured the Giants the pennant by beating Pittsburgh... 222 is considered an ill omen to the team on the field, Ott made his winning homer in the final game when the board read two strikes, two balls and two out.

Musical

Joan Blondell has a prominent role in "Footlight Parade," big musical film that will open its second downtown week Friday, moving from the Stanley to the Warner.

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Recommended for the best similes dictionary: Don Herold: As much sex appeal as a Roxyette from the last row of the third mezzanine . . . Walter Hoban: As square as a santaloupe and as straight as a telephone cord . . . Sidney Munden: Hungry as moths before Adam and Eve wore clothes . . . Will Rogers: He swept the country like a new tooth paste. . . . Ted Cook: About as cordial as an ex-candidate, also, as hostile as a friendly game of bridge . . . By Way of Report

A letter signed "Two Chinese Fans" corrects a recent statement that a gong is sounded during Chinese plays to awaken the audience when an actor has an important line to read.

"The gong," says the note, "is sounded to show the importance of the actor—just as a President would be given an ovation. Please do not be offended."

Velly solly.

Round-up of Real Drama During Last Season Not So Bad

By GEORGE SEIBEL

That the legitimate theater is again on the upgrade is good news. Word from London says that every available theater there is now occupied, with many plays on the waiting list. The Billboard, America's national theatrical weekly, has an editorial in the current issue which says of the new New York season that "after a bad start, the year now getting under way shows signs of becoming the best that the Broadway theater has had since the 1928 boom days. Not a great many plays are being produced, but there has never been in the memory of playgoers so sustained a run of productions worthy of interest."

Mr. Seibel

The same publication has issued its annual index of the previous season, with some figures that should be heartening to any pessimist, considering how other professions fared during the same period.

There were 115 commercial dramatic premieres in New York last season, compared with 150 the previous season—23 musical premieres compared with 26. About 82 per cent of the new productions were failures, by which is meant that they ran less than 100 performances. The average run was 51 performances. The number of theaters used was 57, six less than the preceding year.

The most prolific playwright was Shakespeare, while the largest repertoire was offered by the Irish Players, who put on 18 plays, some of them one-act plays. Fifteen plays of Shakespeare were seen, due to the activities of the Shakespeare Repertory Players at popular prices.

HOW MANY PLAYERS

The number of people involved in the season's dramatic activities shows the startling total of 4,110, which does not include the chorus in musical comedies. The actual players were 3,462—of this number 2,164 appeared in drama. There were 204 authors, 28 librettists, 75 composers, 49 lyric writers and 58 scene designers.

The Theater Guild and William A. Brady each presented five new plays. The most popular librettist was W. S. Gilbert, which also makes Sir Arthur Sullivan the most popular composer, though Harold Arlen wrote the music for the same number of productions, five in all.

The total seating capacity of all theaters involved was 59,930, a drop of about 4,000 from the previous season.

These figures indicate that the condition of the dramatic stage is not nearly as parlous as some people imagine.

OUR LITTLE THEATERS

Meanwhile Little Theater activities in Pittsburgh are filling the big theater interim. Last week saw the launching of an ambitious "experimental theater" in the tiny old church building where Shady Side Academy was born. Freeman M. Hammond, an actor of considerable experience, is at the head of the undertaking. The old church building has been brightened up; a stage has been erected; classes for playwrights, actors and directors are being organized.

Over 100 people were at the opening session. I ventured the remark that this building wasn't much smaller than Ole Bull's theater, at Bergen in Norway, where Ibsen got his start, while the stage was actually much larger than Ibsen's stage. All that was needed, I added, was one or two Ibsens and two or three Mansfields.

It may have sounded a bit discouraging, but who knows? There are Ibsens and Mansfields everywhere. I once told the Girls' Friendly Society at Trinity Church that there were at least 20 Mary Pickfords among them—and I meant it. It doesn't really take much to become eminent in a profession where common sense has for some time been at a premium. And it doesn't take a big theater to develop genius.

Thinks Again Of Hamlet

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Residents around the Hollywood Bowl can sleep quietly now. The man who has been reciting Hamlet's soliloquy to an audience of one sitting in the last row of seats is not crazy. He is John Barrymore and he merely is testing the accoustics of the place.

The actor has revived his idea to play "Hamlet" in the Bowl, and this time he'll probably go through with it. In a Los Angeles storage house he has an entire production of the Shakespearean tragedy, which he recently purchasel in the East. John also has okayed a musical score, and he now plans to do the play after his return from a South Seas vacation.

When and if he does, the production will have an all-Hollywood cast.

John can't sail from here until he finishes "Long Lost Father" at RKO and probably another picture at M-G-M.

Clara Bow and Rex Bell are moving into the Beverly Hills home that Marlene Dietrich made into an armed fortress after she received those threatening letters against her daughter, Maria. La Dietrich, incidentally, is house-shopping herself and she is again refusing to move until the iron bars are installed on exposed windows.

They're still talking about the party Clara Bow threw for the cast and crew of the "Hoopla" company after the last scene was shot Saturday night. The hilarity went on until 4 a. m. and the redhead danced with all the boys.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Folks who want to see "Music In the Air" in the Nixon next week, began to make their wishes known at the box-office window this morning. This operetta will be presented as the original New York production, the cast of which includes Reinald Werrenrath, Walter Slezak, Donald Brian, Al Shean, Ann Barrie, Desiree Tabor, Harry Mestayer and others. Al Shean is the "Mr. Shean" of the famous song in which he lyrically conversed with "Mr. Gallagher," his vaudeville partner. For many years he was a member of another popular vaudeville group, the Manhattan Comedy Four. As an actor he has covered much of the world. He is the principal comedian of "Music In the Air."

The Pitt's new bill of vaudeville, with a feature picture, will be on view tomorrow, the program to include O'Neil and Manners, singers, dancers and comedians. The picture will be Betty Compson in "Notorious But Nice."

* * *

Hazel Miller, singer and dancer, who includes an oriental number in her repertoire, will make her first Pittsburgh appearance in "Biff, Bang, Bing," opening Sunday midnight in the Varety.

Pitt vs. Navy On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first important major football game of the season, Pitt vs. Navy, is among events pictorially reviewed in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Players runs and enthusiasm of 45,000 fans are pictured.

There are pictures also of Alcatraz, America's "Devil's Island" in San Francisco Harbor. Attorney General Cummings tells how the government for some time has been seeking a place where criminals who present a menace to any penal institution may be confined, and selected Alcatraz, long a military prison from which no person ever escaped. It is here that "Machine Gun" Kelly and his cohorts probably will spend the remainder of their lives.

Views of a drag hunt on the estate of A. L. Haskell at Redbank, N. J., are presented. The hunt represents a trial for famous jumpers from all over the world in preparation for the national horse show in Madison Square Garden in November. The whole field totals 75 riders. The Globe Trotter describes the hunt.

Feverish activity in the wineries of America is shown as repeal approaches. California plants are running full blast with extra employes and every available piece of machinery in use. That the prohibition law is still being enforced is shown as United States customs men unload 28,000 cases of liquor, valued at $1,000,000, from the seized steamer Holmswood.

Demon auto drivers speed around the track in thick clouds of dust in Deer Park, N. Y.

Co-eds of Shanghai University give an odd concert on instruments made from kitchen utensils. There is even operatic music.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs on time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Red and Green

SAMSON had been planning the thing day after day, during the long hours when he had nothing else to do. Ever since he'd lost his job. Ever since he'd sworn revenge on the firm he'd worked for—and upon Bill Jones.

Bill Jones wasn't directly responsible for his being fired. But he'd been promoted to Samson's job. And that fact, in Samson's fevered brain, had assumed unnatural proportions until his desire for revenge centered itself on Bill Jones.

Well, he had it all planned now. He had conceived a plot whereby he could live in comparative luxury for a long time, and, in addition, throw the blame for his act on Bill. He knew, through his familiarity with the job, that there were nights when Bill had to work late at the office. He knew that Bill had access to the safe. Along these lines, Samson laid his plans.

The last of his savings went to purchase a second-hand car. A car that he registered in Bill's name. And on the night of the month when Jones would be toiling over a balance sheet in the deserted office, Samson slid his car into the darkened street and parked it in front of the building where he had worked for so many years.

He could see the single square of light in the room where Bill Jones was working. When it grew late and he was certain that the man would be alone, Samson slipped out of the machine trudged up two flights of stairs, and banged on the outer door of the office.

Bill came out, a pen behind his ear, his fingers ink-stained. And instantly a gun was thrust against his ribs, and he was pushed back into the reception room.

Samson shot a quick glance around the office.

"Made a collection late today, didn't you?" he demanded. "Too late for the bank. Listen, Jones, go over there and open up that safe. Gimme everything that's in it—the bonds and the cash, and no funny business!"

Bill stepped back hastily. He began to protest, but the nose of the gun was pushed further into his side. He shrugged and moved over to the safe.

"Here. That all you want?"

He handed over an envelope of bank notes, a sheaf of bonds.

Samson shook his head.

"Not by a long shot. Think I'm going to leave you here, so's you can call the cops the minute I get out? Grab your hat. You're coming with me!"

Bill's face was white. His fingers twitched nervously.

"I don't get it," he muttered. "What's the big idea?"

"This is it." Samson's face was fiendish with glee. "I got a car outside registered in your name, see? You're driving me up to the border. When they find the dough gone tomorrow, it'll be you they'll start looking for. I'll be on my way then. And when you come back, if you do, who's going to believe any story you could tell 'em about somebody else taking the money? No, my friend, you're on the spot this time."

Jones tried to speak, but the other man stopped him.

"Come on!" he rasped. "We ain't got time for arguments. Walk ahead down the stairs, and anything funny you pull will be just too bad."

When they reached the street he motioned to the car and ordered, "Get in! You're driving, see? Then if anybody spots us it'll be you they'll notice."

Once more Bill tried to demur.

"Listen," he begged, "don't ask me to drive, Sam. I haven't had my hand on a wheel for almost five years. I can't. Listen—"

"Shut up!" Samson's face grew dark with anger. "Don't give me that. Get in there and do as you're told."

Bill bent over the wheel and said nothing. He stepped on the gas, and the car shot forward. His eyes were riveted on the street in front of him. Samson sat tense in his seat, the gun in his pocket pressed against the man beside him.

Again he cautioned, "Take it easy now, see? We don't want to get stopped for anything."

Bill nodded, his eyes still fastened straight ahead. Samson leaned back in his seat, noting his surroundings only idly. Ahead of them, a traffic light winked from green to red, and, as the car failed to slow down, he sat up with a word of warning.

But it came too late. The small car sped across the corner. A taxicab shot out of the intersecting street. There was a sickening crash and the sound of splintered glass . . .

The following morning, Samson awoke in the accident ward in a hospital. In the bed next to his Bill Jones was sitting up, grinning triumphantly. He held up the morning paper for Samson to see. Spread across its headlines was the story of the attempted robbery. There was a picture, too, of the heroic employe who had braved death to save his firm's money.

Samson groaned and turned his face away, muttering bitterly.

But Bill wasn't finished with him. He had one more jibe to make, one that he couldn't resist.

"You planned things pretty good, Sam," he chuckled. "Only there was one thing you didn't know. I told you I hadn't driven for five years. You wouldn't believe me, but it was the truth. I turned in my driving license when I found out that I couldn't distinguish traffic lights any longer.

"Tell me, Sam," he asked, "haven't you ever heard of color blindness?" . . .

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

All the glorious colors of autumnal foliage were repeated in the flowers decorating the Twentieth Century Club last night and in the gowns of the attendants of Alberta Pressley Friesell, who became Mrs. Harry Kay Voelp, Jr., at a distinctive wedding ceremony in the clubhouse.

The bride is the daughter of the William Henrici Friesells, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Harry Kay Voelp, of Cathedral Mansions. The Rev. Dr. A. R. Robinson, of the Sixth United Presbyterian Church, officiated.

Bride In White

A contrast to the rich-hued gowns of her attendants was that of the bride, given in marriage by her father. She wore traditional white satin in the princess style, cut high at the neckline and having long sleeves, full at the shoulder and tight at the wrist.

Her veil was of Brussels lace and tulle. She carried lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Rust satin formed the gown of her matron of honor, Mrs. Edward McKee Aiken, her sister; gold satin that of Audrey Voelp, the maid of honor; and copper-green those of Mrs. Walter F. Friday and Mrs. Stanley James Rush, of Greensburg, the bridesmaids.

They all carried arm bouquets of dahlias and chrysanthemums in autumn colors.

Autumn Bouquets

Henry Schroeder was best man, and W. H. Freisell, Jr., William Blackburn, George Ewing, Ernest Reis, Walter F. Friday and Stanley M. Rush were ushers.

A reception at the clubhouse followed. Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. Voelp and his bride will be at home in the Hollenden Apartments.

Art Critics Absent but Society Folk Attend Exhibit Preview

At the press view of the International Art Exhibit last night at Carnegie Institute, there were fewer newspaper folks than usual, and no art critics, for their judgments of the exhibits were already in type.

But everyone else was there. Hundreds and hundreds walked about greeting friends, and trying to catch a glimpse of the paintings. Evening dresses, dinner dresses galore, street frocks, theater suits and even sports clothes were worn.

The Baroness Pellenc, there with her mother, Mrs. Frank J. Kier, chose a street dress of brown crepe and a brown felt hat.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby appeared in a theater suit, having a graceful black velvet skirt and a blouse of orange lame. With it she wore a jaunty black velvet hat, with orange for accent. Mrs. Homer Saint-Gaudens chose a brocaded black lace gown with a bertha cape of the material and touches of green chiffon.

An interesting black crepe dinner dress having a flared cape collar and belt of cloth of gold, with gold nail-head all-over design, was the choice of Katharine Frazer. With her was Rita Borntraeger in a red crepe dress and a sapphire blue velvet cape.

Debutante Florence Willock in red crepe was there with her mother, Mrs. George J. Willock, and Mrs. C. H. Borntraeger. Mrs. Mortimer Miller was there, Mrs. Herbert duPuy, Mrs. C. S. Wunder, the Clark Millers, Mrs. George Phelps Rose, Mrs. C. S. B. Ward, and Mrs. Mildred Floyd Schmertz and Miss Anna Belle Craig, both Pittsburgh artists.

Others there were the Edwin Rheas (she was Clara Dorothea Jenkins), Mrs. Hugh Campbell Shaw, Mrs. George P. Bassett, Mrs. A. S. F. Keister, in a copper crepe dinner dress; Mrs. Frank Orr Johnson, Mrs. Mary Jane Cowley, Mrs. D. B. Frampton and her debutante daughter, Frances.

Petite Laura Oliver was there with her mother, Mrs. George S. Oliver, and others there were Mrs. B. F. Jones III, Miss Laetitia Hunter, Mrs. A. P. Brill, Margaret Brainard, Adele Lippincott, Blossom Lomax, another Pittsburgh artist; Mrs. Henry Oliver Evans Dr. Thomas S. Baker, Mrs. Elizabeth Moorhead Vermorcken, Pittsburgh novelist; Mrs. Clinton Childs and her daughter, Laura.

The Samuel Harden Churches attended, of course. With them was their daughter, Mrs. Henry Lawrence Jones II, of Wilkes-Barre. The junior John Gibsons were there, as were Mrs. Charles Howard West, Mrs. Alexander Logan Wilson, the J. F. Hillmans, Mrs. John E. Nelson and her daughter, Peggy, Mrs. James Edward Lewis, Mrs. Hanson Rose, Katherine May Edwards, Mrs. Harmar Denny, and many others including many of the faculty of Carnegie Tech.

Alpha Gamma Delta Alumnae Bridge Saturday

Prevention Is Better Than Cure

An opiate will dull periodic pain. But isn't it better to prevent the pain? Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Tablets three or four days before the expected discomfort and notice the difference. If yours is a stubborn case, you may need to take these tablets regularly for a few months. Persistent use brings permanent relief. Clinical tests prove it.

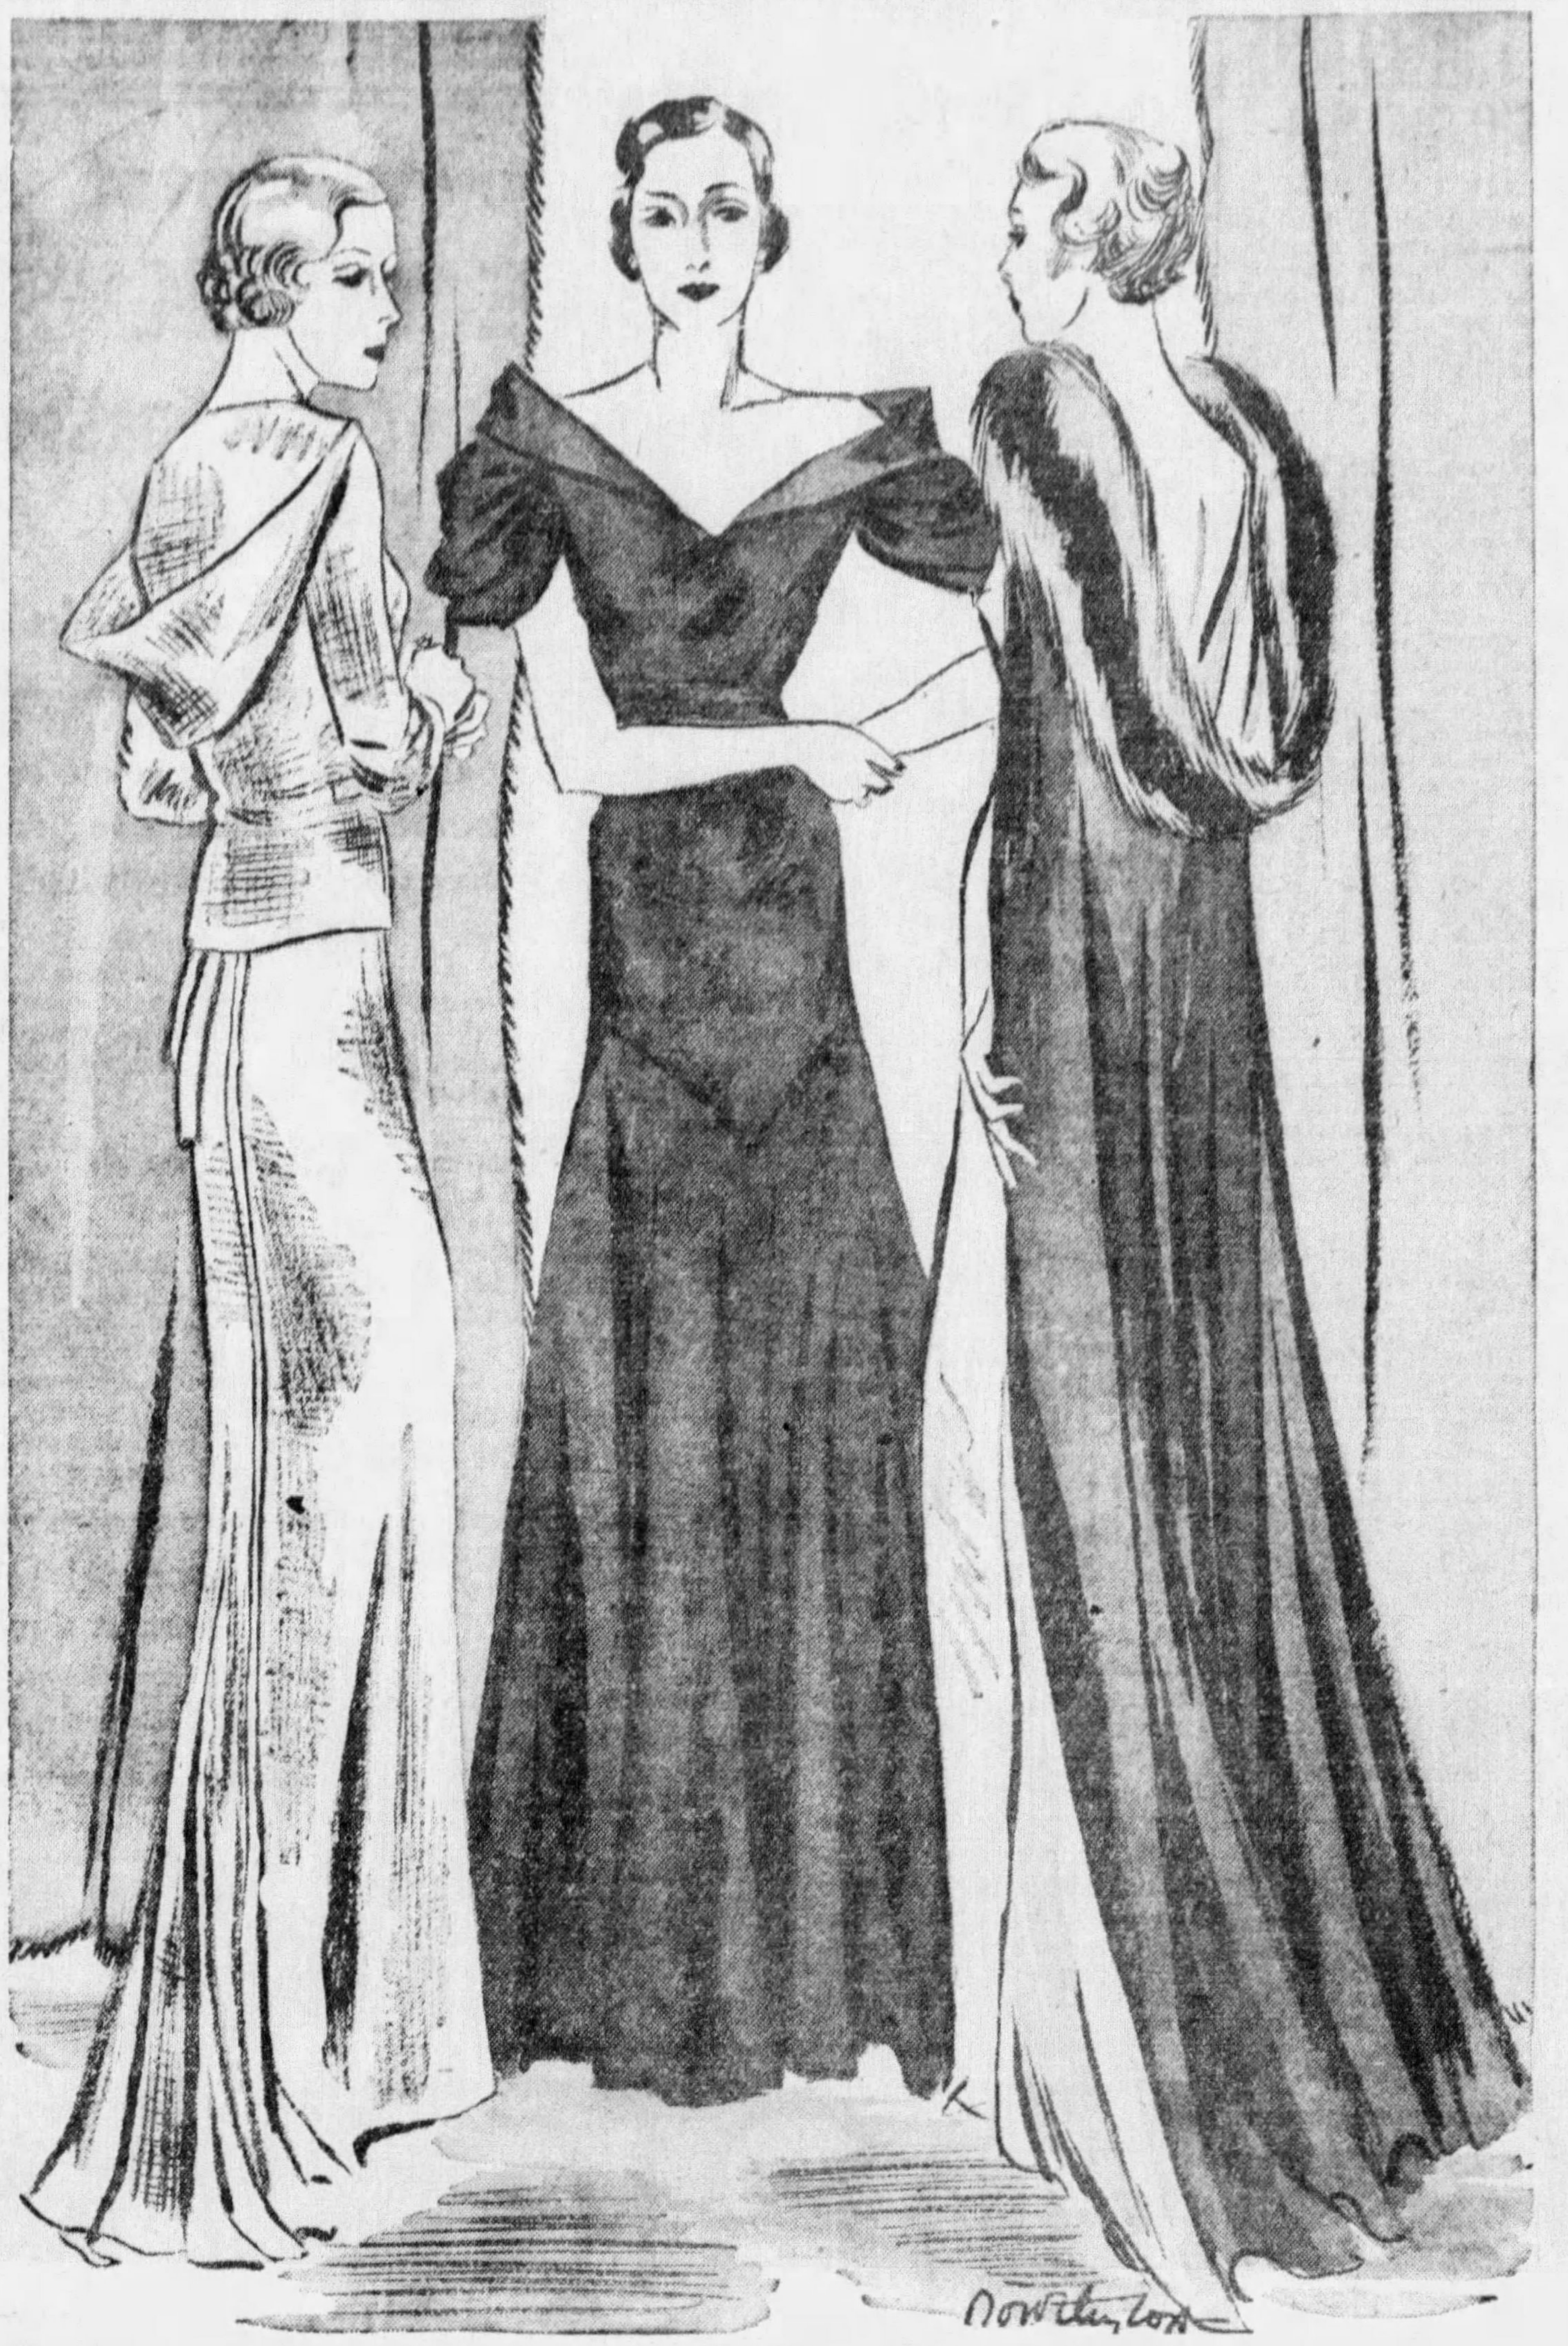
LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S TABLETS

DRAMA IN THE EVENING TOILETTE



By PRUNELLA WOOD

THREE of the handsomest neckline treatments seen in many a season of lovely clothes are sketched above, and among them, they offer something new and unusual for almost any type of figure and beauty.

The costume at the left is what the younger generation would call a honey—and it is in just that shade, made of shimmering pale gold lame. The gown has that moulded silhouette which blends youth and dignity so well for the important young matron, with a high line at the neck in front, and a split to the waistline in back. The back flung cowl on the trig little jacket is very, very new.

IN the center we have the debutante who is set off by a combination of quaint charm and 1933 sophistication. The material of the gown in a stiffish taffeta—lovely in blue or rose—and the wide decolletage with its tiny draped puff sleeves is awfully flattering to pretty young shoulders and arms. The skirt is moulded a bit, and then goes Spanish with a freedom which means dancing room.

AT the right is one of the most dramatic moments Mme. Vionnet ever had. It involves a full length cape which ends in a bit of a train, made of black velvet which is lined with brilliant poinsetta scarlet. The cowl is sumptuous fur which clasps under the chin in front. Of course, the gown beneath is plain white, marvelously simple and expertly fitted.

Any woman, younger or older, who has enough height or imagination to boast regal carriage can wear this ensemble, which is as aristocratic as it is arresting.

D.A.R. Regent Nominated President

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. John Brown Heron, of Pittsburgh, former vice president general, presented the name of Mrs. William H. Alexander, state regent, as a candidate for president general of the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, at the state conference here yesterday. The 500 delegates indorsed the nomination.

Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson College, addressing the conference, says prohibition failed because "the forces of education failed."

Dr. Hutchison asserted that education in prohibition should have gone forward after the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

The development of our social order depends not upon compulsion but upon education, he said.

RECIPES OFFER HALLOWEEN DANTIES

During the last few days many attractive recipes have come in for good things to serve for Halloween. Several of these will be published as an aid to housewives and others who wish to entertain when the goblins begin to dance.

In the meantime there is no letup in the number of favorite recipes submitted in the Sun-Telegraph-Prudence Penny favorite contest. In fact Prudence Penny never dreamed that the women of Pittsburgh and vicinity would respond to this idea with such really keen and wide interest.

Eleven cash prizes totaling $15 are awarded every day for the best recipes submitted by the housewives of Pittsburgh and vicinity—66 prizes every week. The first prize every day is $5 in cash and there are also 10 other $1 daily awards. All prize-winning recipes are printed. If you have a favorite that has been enjoyed by your family and friends, send it to Prudence Penny, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Louis Jousse, chef de cuisine at the Schenley Hotel, and Camille Mauclair, chef de cuisine at the William Penn Hotel, are the judges in this contest.

When the decoration is set add one-quarter inch more gelatine and again allow to become firm. Leave the rest of the cherries whole, cut the apricots in eighths and pare the orange and remove the sections and add them to the remaining gelatine. Pour into the molds and chill. SNOW BALL CANDY
(With variations)

Two heaping cups white sugar.
Two egg whites.
One-half cup crystal corn syrup.
One cup shredded cocoanut.
Three cups boiling water.
One-half teaspoon nectar flavoring (use your preference).

Dissolve sugar and corn syrup in water. Let boil until mixture forms a hard mass when dropped in cold water. Have ready in a large bowl the stiffly-beaten egg-whites. Pour boiling syrup slowly into egg-whites, beating all the while. Beat with dover egg-beater until mixture begins to thicken, then finish with large spoon. Add flavoring. When mass holds its shape, turn quickly onto buttered pan about two inches deep. Let set for a few minutes, then mark off in squares. Brush hands with powdered sugar and from each square form a snow ball. Make all the squares into balls, then roll each one in shredded cocoanut and lay on waxed paper. When firm wrap each snow ball in a square of cellophane and twist ends tightly.

Cocoanut may be toasted in the oven, giving it a carmel taste and a golden brown color. The mixture proper may be tinted with fruit coloring—nuts or candied fruit may also be used to suit the occasion.

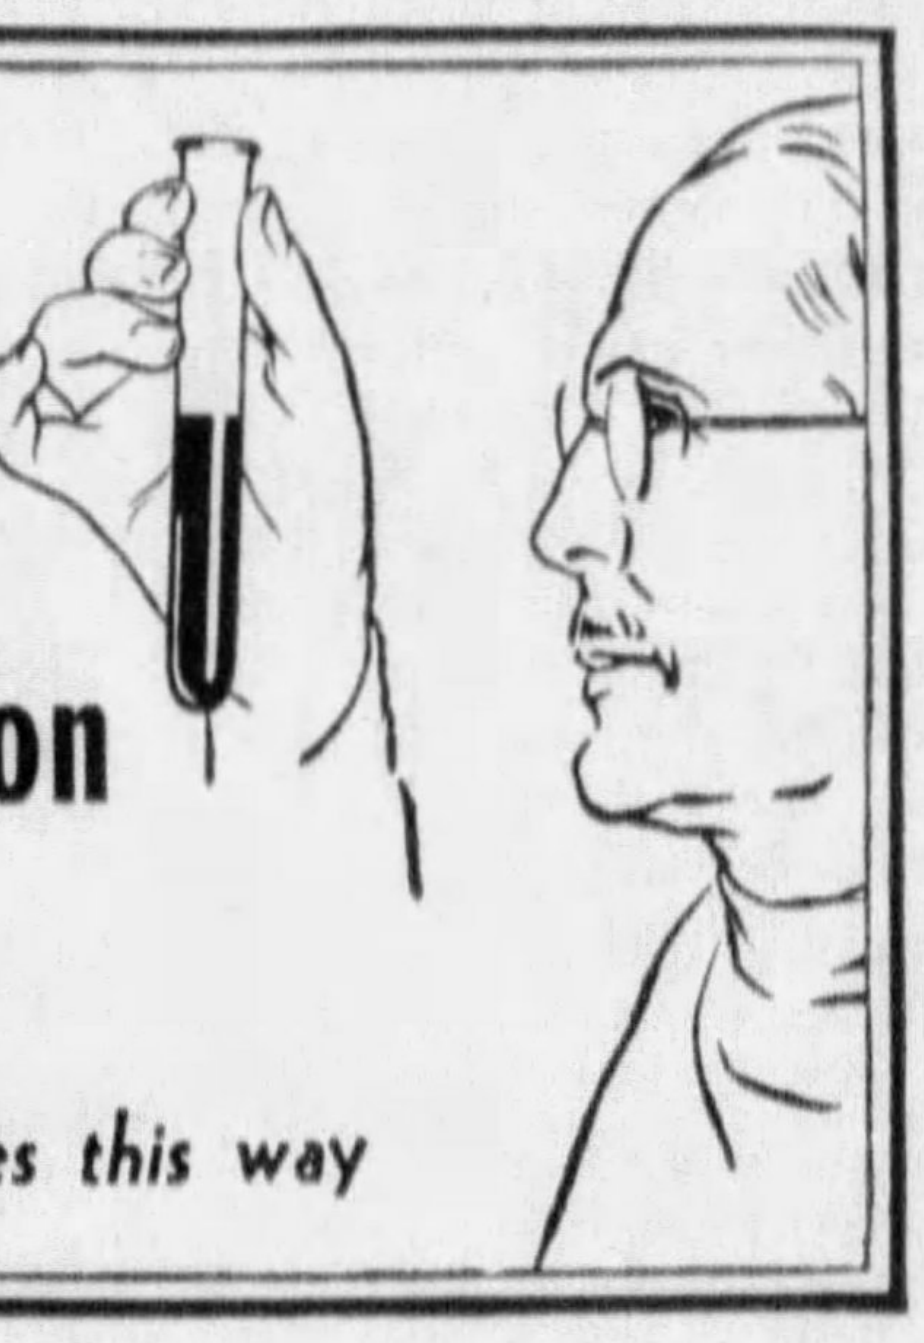
Will you experiment ONE WEEK To be RID of Constipation FOR LIFE?



Thousands have ended their bowel troubles this way

❶ Get a liquid laxative that can be measured to the drop.
❷ Take the amount found to bring a perfect movement.
❸ Reduce the dose, as bowels begin to move without help.

Can constipation be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" say thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not likely to cure your constipation with salts, pills, tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can correct this condition by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right liquid laxative brings a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it! And the habitual use of irritating salts, or of powerful drugs in the highly concentrated form of pills and tablets may prove injurious to the bowels and other organs.

What is a Safe Laxative?

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains one doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know anything about a preparation, ask some doctor about it. Temporary relief that you get from some habit-forming cathartic is very apt to be dearly bought.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation with nothing to conceal. Its ingredients are stated on the label. By using it, you can avoid danger of bowel strain. You can keep the bowels regular, and comfortable. You can make constipated spells as rare as colds.

The dimes and quarters spent on "popular" laxatives count up quickly, and their use quickly becomes a habit. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will save you money, give you real relief, and it is safe.

For your OWN sake make this Test with a liquid laxative:

A week with a properly prepared liquid laxative will prove to you that you are on the right track. A few weeks' time, and your bowels can be as regular as clockwork.

The secret is the right laxative, and the right dose. A laxative you can measure out, and reduce the dose as the need for help is reduced.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which every druggist keeps ready for use. It bears this signature;

GIRL, 19, BURIED AS BRIDE

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Yesterday was to have been Audrey Garrett's wedding day. Also her nineteenth birthday.

But she died the night before.

Funeral services were to be held today for "Mrs. Audrey Marie Gates." Her father said:

"She and John Gates had been going together a year. John asked if she could be buried as his wife. I said it would be all right."

Audrey Marie was injured fatally when the motorcycle she and Gates were riding collided with a motor car.

HIT THAT COLD A KNOCKOUT BLOW!

Don't Invite Serious Complications with Makeshift Remedies!

A cold is something to be dealt with promptly and decisively. You never can tell where it will end. Many a "slight cold" has been the start of a serious illness. Get after a cold quickly and get after it in the right way. A cold, being an internal infection, requires internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a "cure-all."

The wise thing to take is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine—for several reasons. Instead of a "cure-all," it is expressly a cold remedy. It is also an internal treatment which a cold, an internal infection, requires. And it is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and helps fortify against further attack. Anything less than that is not complete treatment.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine, 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't offer a substitute for the sake of an extra profit.

When a cold attacks, don't waste time with makeshift methods, but go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

FOURTH OF CITY SCHOOL PUPILS UNDERFED

Approximately one-fourth the children in city public and parochial schools are undernourished.

This conclusion was reached in a survey by Dr. Henry J. Benz, chief of the city's school physicians, and Dr. A. M. Kerr, medical supervisor for the Board of Education.

The survey was based on a height-weight index. Children falling below 12½ per cent of the index standard are considered undernourished.

Dr. Benz, director of the survey in 76 elementary and parochial high schools of the city, examined 36,330 children and found 13,036 or 35 per cent underfed. His study, began the second week of September, was completed this week.

Dr. Kerr's survey covered about 61,000 pupils in the public elementary and high schools and takes in the 1932-33 school year ending in June. He found 24.4 per cent of the children examined were undernourished.

The difference in percentage between the two school systems, Dr. Benz said, is partly due to the fact that the public schools are better equipped to serve meals than are the parochial schools.

He explained that a similar survey made by him in the parochial schools last year should be compared with the public school survey of 1932-33 instead of with the one just finished. Last year's percentage of undernourished parochial school children was 25 per cent.

SENATE EYED BY M'CLOSKEY

International News Service.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 19.—Mayor Eddie McCloskey, Johnstown's stormy chief executive, may be a candidate for the United States Senate in next year's primaries.

Mayor McCloskey tagged himself a potential candidate today through a statement in which he gave several reasons for declining an invitation to a Senator Reed testimonial dinner.

Characterizing Pennsylvania's senior Senator as a "servant of the Mellons . . . little known to the rank and file of the voters," McCloskey stated he could not "stretch my conscience enough" to attend a testimonial banquet in Senator Reed's honor.

Hinting at a possible "jam" between Gov. Gifford Pinchot, also rumored as harboring a desire for a senatorship, and the incumbent, the Mayor continued:

"Then there also is the ethical side of the question. I could not attend the event because I likely will be his opponent at the primary next year."

WOMEN UPHOLD METRO PLAN

The metropolitan plan amendment for Greater Pittsburgh, to be voted upon November 7, was indorsed by the Allegheny County League of Women Voters today.

In its announcement of support, the league commended change of the constitutional requirement for consolidation from a two-thirds to a majority vote, terming it "a more reasonable provision."

SCHOOL BOARD URGED TO CUT TAX 1 MILL

The Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League was on record today with a demand that school taxes for 1934 be reduced by at least one mill.

The executive committee of the league last night urged this cut from the present levy of 11¾ mills, and called upon a committee of 25 citizens who investigated the Board of Public Education, to fulfill its pledge that taxes would be lowered.

A resolution was adopted citing that a request be made upon members of the school board "to reduce the tax rate on real estate for school purposes by at least one mill in 1934."

Copies were ordered sent each member of the board and to members of the special committee named by the general school investigating group. Members of the special committee were W. L. Monro, chairman; Frank W. Main, H. H. McClintic, E. T. Weir and J. C. W. White.

Last night's action by the league executive committee was described as the opening gun in a drive to gain tax relief for property owners.

The league, contending the present school tax is exorbitant, sought in court to compel the school board to apply $2,000,000 insurance and general funds to reduction of the tax levy. The move was blocked by a demurrer filed by the board.

SLOW BIDDING IRKS M'GOVERN

A threat to take the contracts for printing ballots and election supplies to firms outside the city has been made by the County Commissioners. But one company sought two contracts, awarded yesterday. Chief Clerk W. T. Rees was instructed to write to all firms in neighboring states. Chairman C. C. McGovern said:

"The sooner we get out of the county and bring these people (the local bidders) to their feet, the better it will be for the taxpayers."

The Pittsburgh Printing Company was the only bidder on the regular ballots and got the contract at $23,800. The only bidder on voting machine labels, it received that contract at $5,465.40. McGovern opposed both awards.

The Herbic & Held Company was awarded the 12 constitutional amendments ballots at $17,563 and the S. and S. Printing Company the repeal ballots at a bid of $3,660. The William G. Johnson Company got a contract for vote machine supplies at $13,320 and one for paper ballot supplies at $7,176.65.

Bids on Sunday sports ballots were rejected and ordered readvertised.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

THEFT WARRANT SENT FOR READ

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19. — A warrant for the arrest of Alfred C. Read, Jr., young San Francisco broker-boxer, on a charge of petty theft of $11 from Claire Windsor, film star, today was forwarded by police to Oakland for service on Read.

Read's former wife, Mrs. Marian Read, Oakland socialite, recently won a $75,000 judgment in an alienation of affections suit against Miss Windsor, who denied she had stolen Read's love.

Miss Windsor said Read took the $11 from her purse when he visited her on a business matter in Hollywood Saturday night, but Read contended that Miss Windsor had given him the money for expenses from Oakland where he went assertedly to obtain new evidence for use in Miss Windsor's plea for a new trial of the "love balm" suit.

Read, in Oakland, said he would come here today to "straighten it all out." Municipal Judge Clement Nye has fixed bond at $500.

THREE ROBBERY SUSPECTS HELD

Police Chief Dominick George, of Glassport, said the screw driver, found following the alleged recent looting of the Davis hardware store in Monongahela avenue, aided an investigation resulting in the arrests.

POLITICS

The Campaign Opens But It Is So Feeble

By MARK SHIELDS

Well, the municipal political campaign that Quin Hall was trying to find a few days ago, finally has lifted its head into the open. But only hesitantly.

Yesterday afternoon the Republicans opened up with a headquarters meeting, with an attendance of ward chairmen, candidates, Senator James J. Coyne, and that unterrified leader of the party in the state, Gen. Edward Martin. It was pretty much of a professional affair, designed to pep up the practical workers.

Mr Shields

And the Democrats, not to be outdone, kicked off with a mass meeting in Frick Training School last night, with their mayoralty candidate, their councilmanic offerings and their judicial nominess speaking to an audience of less than 600 which exhibited much more fire and enthusiasm and determination to win than did the candidates who addressed them.

So the campaign finally has begun. But it is about the most vapid and lumpy mess which ever has been laid before an electorate. It is so slow that Communists or Socialists, if they go out and ripped things wide open, snorted up the issues and hollered "Stop thief" with sufficient enthusiasm, might upset the entire works with the aid of citizens who are ripe for a change of any kind, but need to have their desire fused through political incitement.

Republicans Thrive on Lack of Enthusiasm

On the part of the Republicans there is some excuse for this disinclination to stir the electorate animals. They thrive on small votes and a lack of enthusiastic attention to the issues which surround a general election. They have a minimum reservoir of votes which always can be relied upon, and if the other fellow doesn't want to create enthusiasm it is all right with the Republicans.

But that isn't true of the Democrats, or any other party of protest in the situation which now confronts the voters. Their only opportunity is to rouse antagonisms and prejudices through well-riveted accusation, and convince the voters that this is a holy crusade and that a vote against the Republican organization is akin to a blow for God and country.

They aren't doing it.

At the meeting last night there was plenty of attack upon Senator Coyne and Mr. Mellon, as well as upon Mayor John S. Herron. But when Senator Coyne was called an evil influence by the Democratic candidates they struck with 16-ounce gloves, they lacked accusatory fire, there was not present the spirit of livid distaste and the apparent conviction on the part of the speakers that if the Senator and his crowd won again the Allegheny and the Monongahela would start to run up hill, or even dry up.

The Spectators Want Their Attacks Rough

In their attacks upon Senator Coyne and Mr. Mellon the Democratic speakers cited the record of past acts. Their guns were well loaded, but they fired with apparent doubts in their own minds as to whether they would hit the targets. And that isn't the way for the Democrats to win. It wasn't the way the audience wanted the story, for there was much more crusading zeal among the spectators than was displayed by the speakers.

The sting just wasn't there, and without that sting the Democrats are not going places. This criticism might be misplaced if it was an incitement to the Democrats to say things they don't believe. But in private conversation they say they do believe these gentlemen are malign influences, they are too terrible for words, and then the Democratic speakers proceed to prove that by failing to find the words to get their auditors to a fighting pitch.

Gen. Martin yesterday illustrated perfectly that this campaign is tied in with the state fight of next year. He endeavored to inspire the ward chairmen with the cry of patriotism, intimating the state would go to the dogs if the Republicans were defeated in Pittsburgh—and all the time the ward chairmen were thinking of patronage and not patriotism, which may have been what the general meant. To the Republicans this is a professional movement and another mosaic in the pattern of domination of public affairs.

Some Memory Work for Gen. Edward Martin

He called the Mayor "John H." instead of "John S." and for a time couldn't remember what the name of the Republican county chairman is. It is William H. Coleman. That's Republican solidarity for you.

The same old doctrine was preached, the old story of loyalty to the party as the paramount issue of the whole campaign, though there are as candidates of the party for the general election gentlemen whom the faithful before September 19 thought were fellows of low origin and worthy of no assistance.

Here is a campaign in which a party of protest, such as the Democrats, never had a better chance, if it wanted to get out and holler "stop thief" as though it meant it, and as though the people were in jeopardy. And yet it is such a fight that Councilman W. Y. English can say without blushing that there have been no crimes charged to the Republican party, and that nothing but a slight "misdemeanor occurred during the Kline administration.

ART AWARDS FOUNDER'S DAY FEATURE

International Winners To Be Named at Annual Exercises

The massive doors of Carnegie Institute open today to afford the public its first view of the thirty-first International Exhibition of Paintings.

And, if the public's interest is as high as that of the throngs attending a private view of the show—resumed last night after a year's lapse caused by the depression—the exhibition this year is an assured success.

That private view brought out its usual kaleidoscopic pattern of Pittsburgh society, near-society, artists, pseudo-artists and a few ordinary fellows, who came along for what they could see.

To them went the big thrill of pulling aside the curtains of the new show.

But a thrill was reserved for the general public.

'IN AT THE DEATH'

It had the chance to witness the bestowal of prizes by Dr. Samuel Harden Church, president of the Institute, at Founder's Day ceremonies this afternoon.

It had the chance to be "in at the death," so to speak—for most excitement starts in disputes over prizes.

The announcement of the paintings selected by the jury of museum officials as the cream of the crop was to be made from the stage of Carnegie Music Hall this afternoon.

Starting at 2:30 p. m., the annual exercises were to have as an added attraction Dr. Harold Willis Dodds, president of Princeton University. He was to talk on "Science and Politics."

BUSINESS OF APPRAISING

And with all the ceremonies past and done with, Pittsburghers and many scores of visitors could tonight get down to the serious business of appraising another edition of the show that has made Pittsburgh famous wherever paintings are painted.

What little actual appraising of the show was accomplished last night indicated that the 351 canvases from 11 nations will keep conversation over Pittsburgh tea cups lively for a while.

Of course there are those who think there wasn't a whole lot

CHANGES SEEN BY DR. DODDS

A nation in which statesmen take an increasing part in daily industrial life was seen today by Dr. Harold Willis Dodds, president of Princeton University.

He was the principal speaker at the thirty-sixth annual founders day observance of Carnegie Institute in Carnegie Music Hall this afternoon. He spoke on "Science and Politics."

From a platform banked with ferns and flags of all nations which contributed to the thirty-first international exposition of oil paintings, which opened simultaneously in Carnegie Museum, Dr. Dodds declared his faith in the ultimate success of the present experiment in planned economics. He said:

"Thoroughly frightened, we have turned to experimentation as a solvent for our economic difficulties. While we shall probably never know just what part of the succeeded and what part failed, even moderate success will pustify our willingness to experiment and will set the trend of our political development for the next 50 years.

"Although not a single word of our Constitution may be altred, we are probably at the beginning of sweeping changes in the underlying character of our government. Industry is being called into partnership with government. To it are being delegated the decision and authority heretofore reserved to the government."

3-Year Hunt Nets Dry Murder Suspect

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—Nicholas Delmore, one of eight men named in an indictment charging them with the murder of John J. Finiello, federal prohibition agent who was killed September 19, 1930, in the Rising Sun brewery here, was arrested today in his home in Berkley Heights, N. J., culminating a three-year search by police.

Finiello at one time was attached to the Pittsburgh office of the Prohibition Bureau.

Recluse, 100, Dies Digging Own Grave

MOREHEAD, Ky., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Joe Crawford, 100-year-old recluse, has marked the last cross on calendars he used to keep track of the days, months and years.

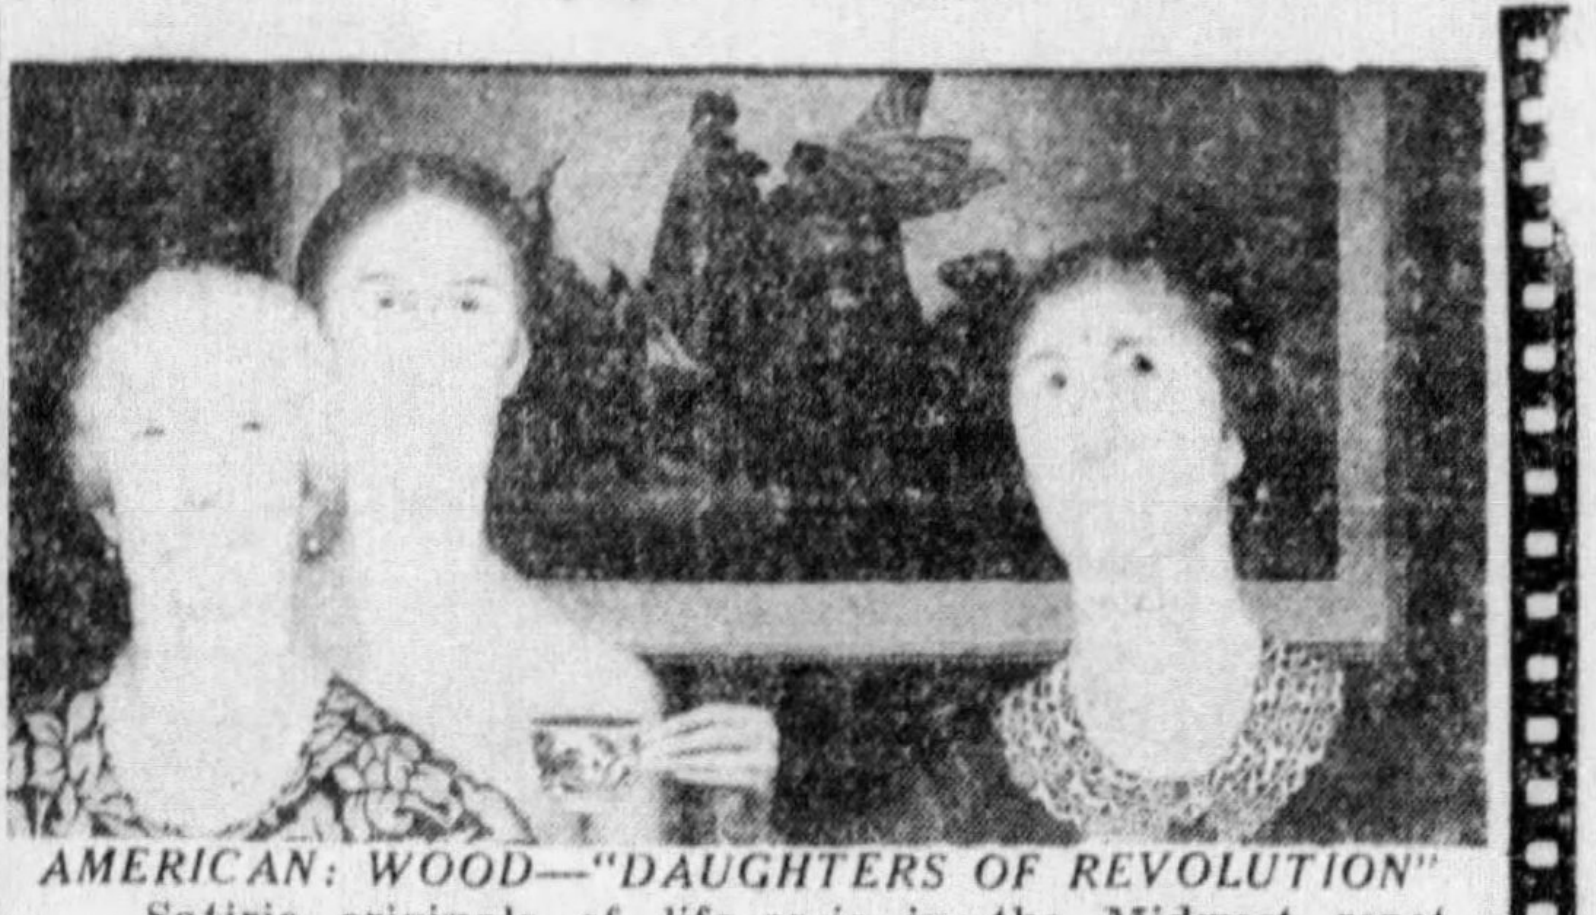
Today his body rested in a grave he started digging last week when he told a neighbor he felt ill. He never completed the task, but friends who found his body finished it for him and buried him in a home-made casket.

Thirty-First Carnegie International Art Exhibit Opens With 351 Canvases Done by 274 Artists

Reel One
International Review

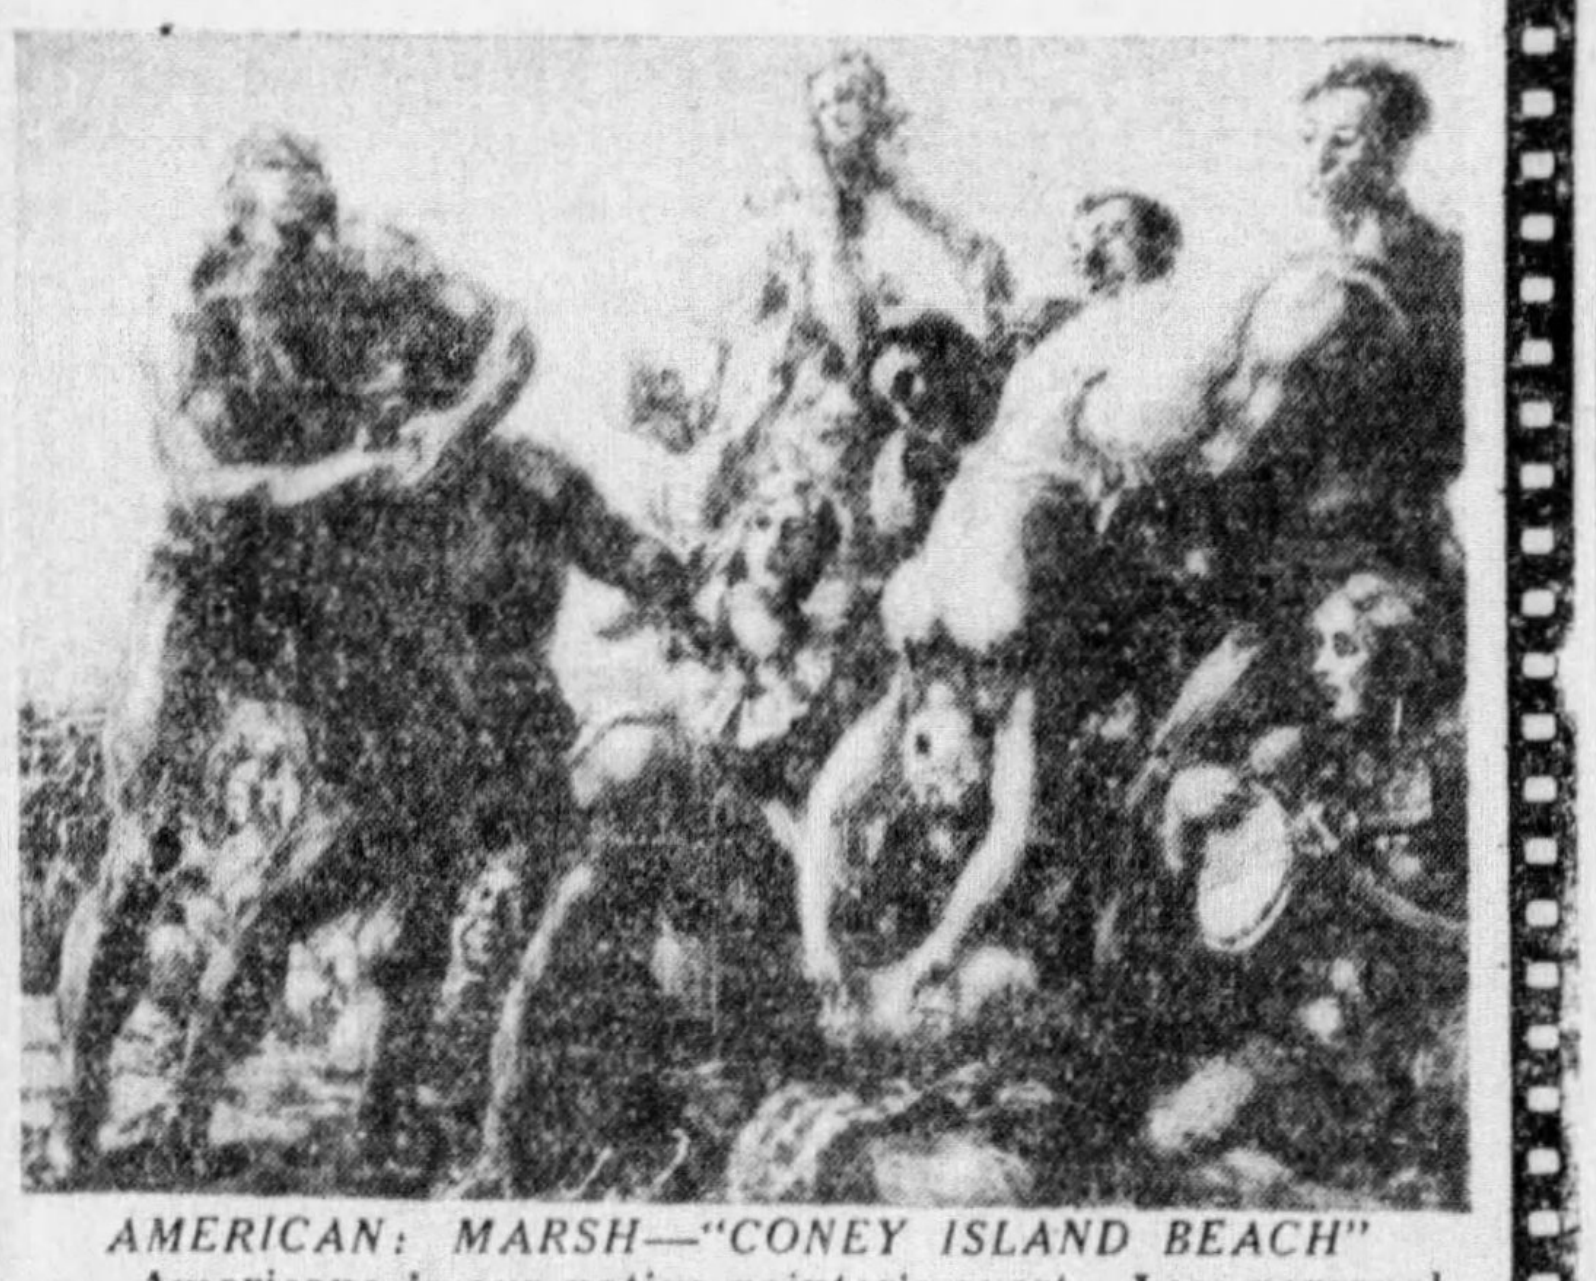
A condensed, graphic review of the 31st Carnegie Institute International Exhibition of Paintings. These selected pictures are typical, not necessarily the most important ones.

Camera: Sun-Telegraph—Sub-Titles: Penelope Redd



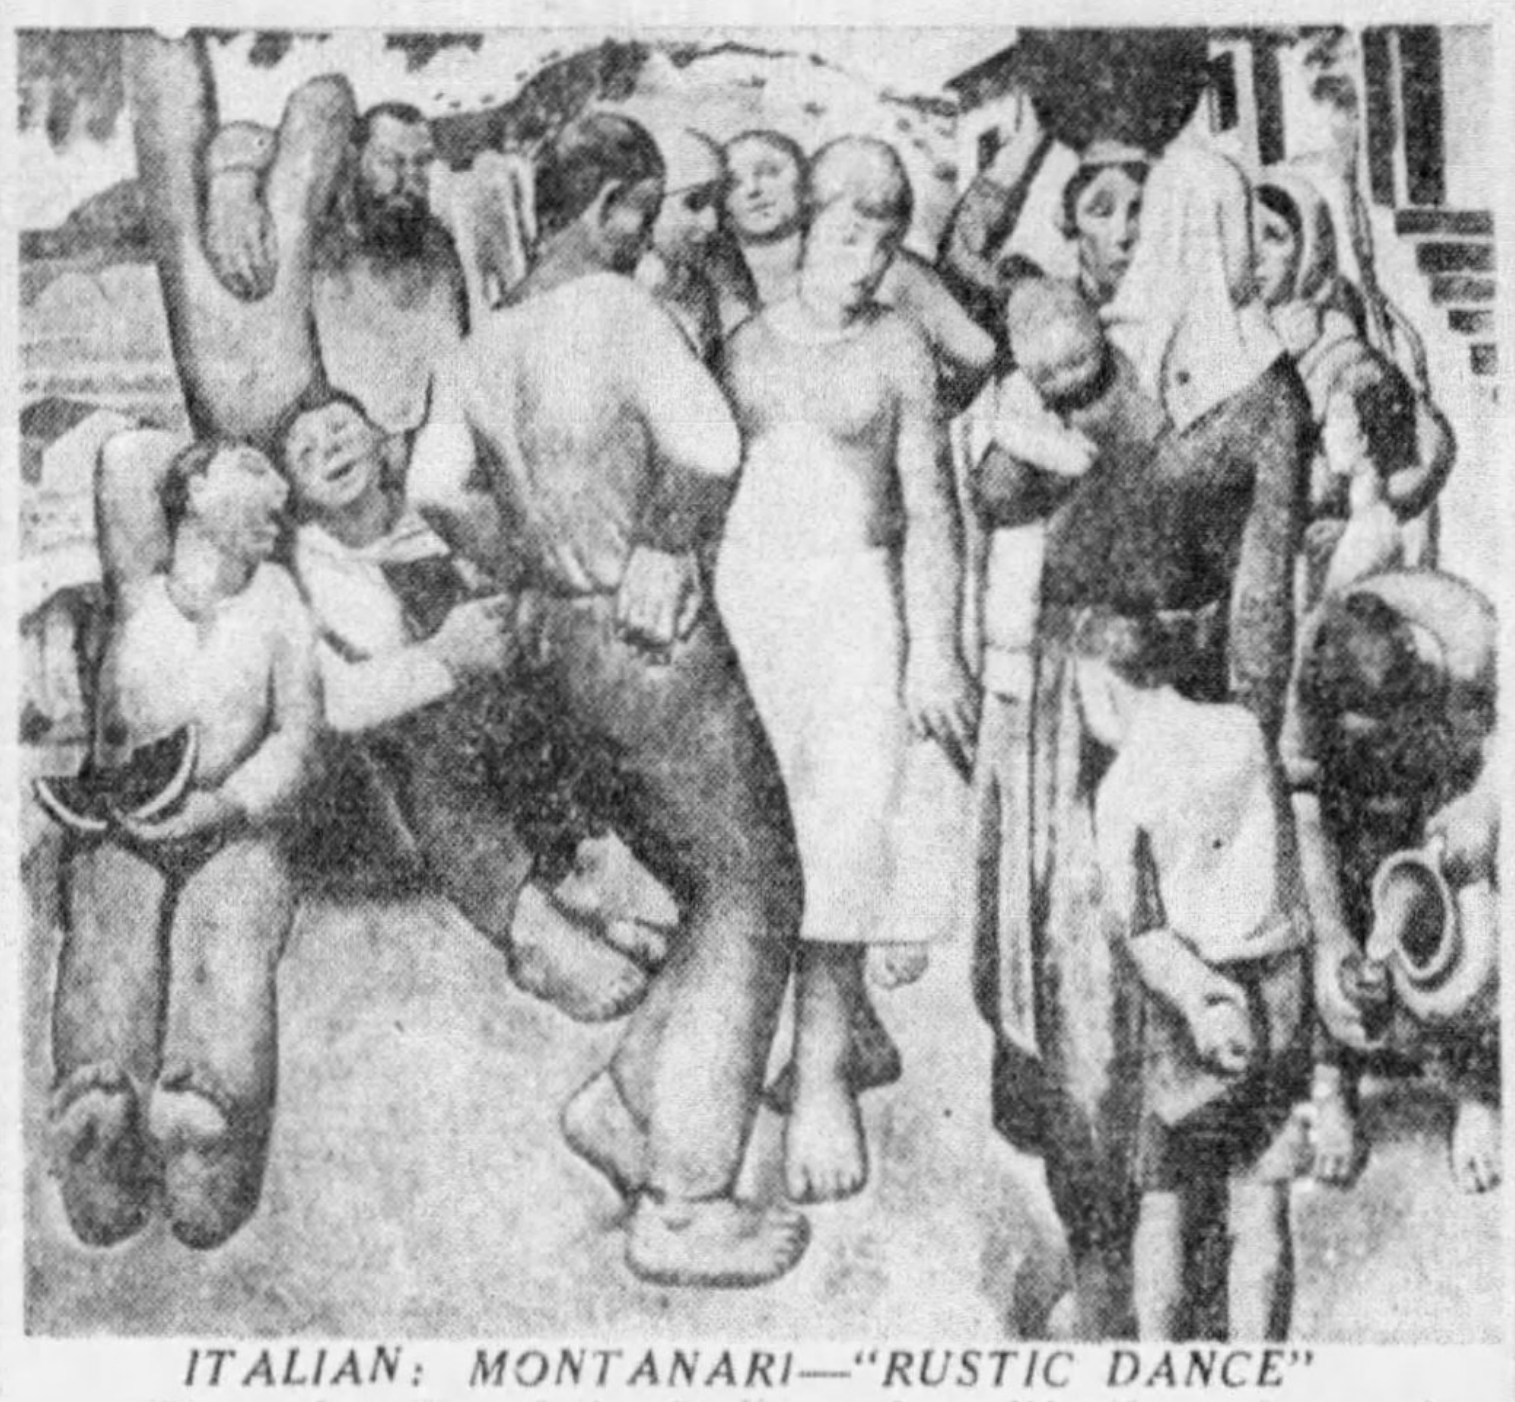
AMERICAN: WOOD—"DAUGHTERS OF REVOLUTION"

Satiric originals of life-as-is in the Midwest react against once-favored imported stencils. In the East, French-derived sterile still life and nudes both trail, while pure American landscape is regalvanized.



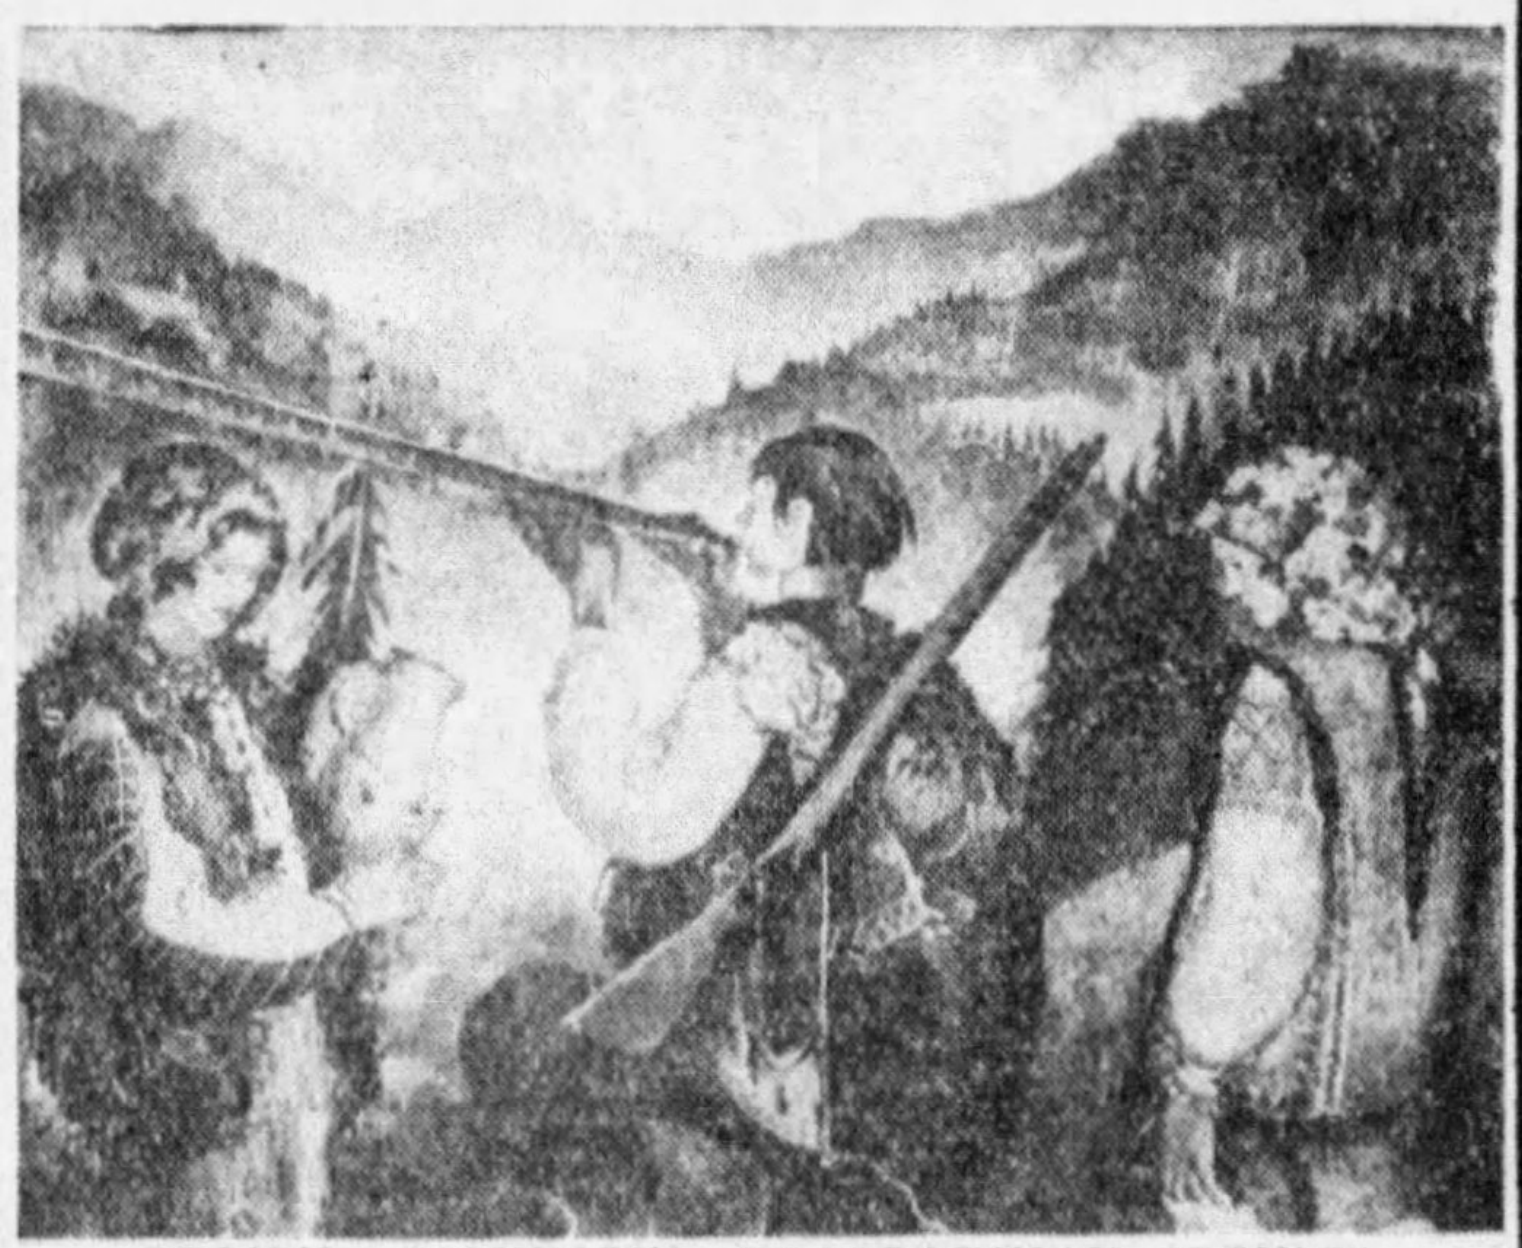
AMERICAN: MARSH—"CONEY ISLAND BEACH"

Americana is our native painter's quest. Less personal than the French; less inhibited than the British; our young American painters project our stressful life, using aesthetic theory to illustrate earthy facts.



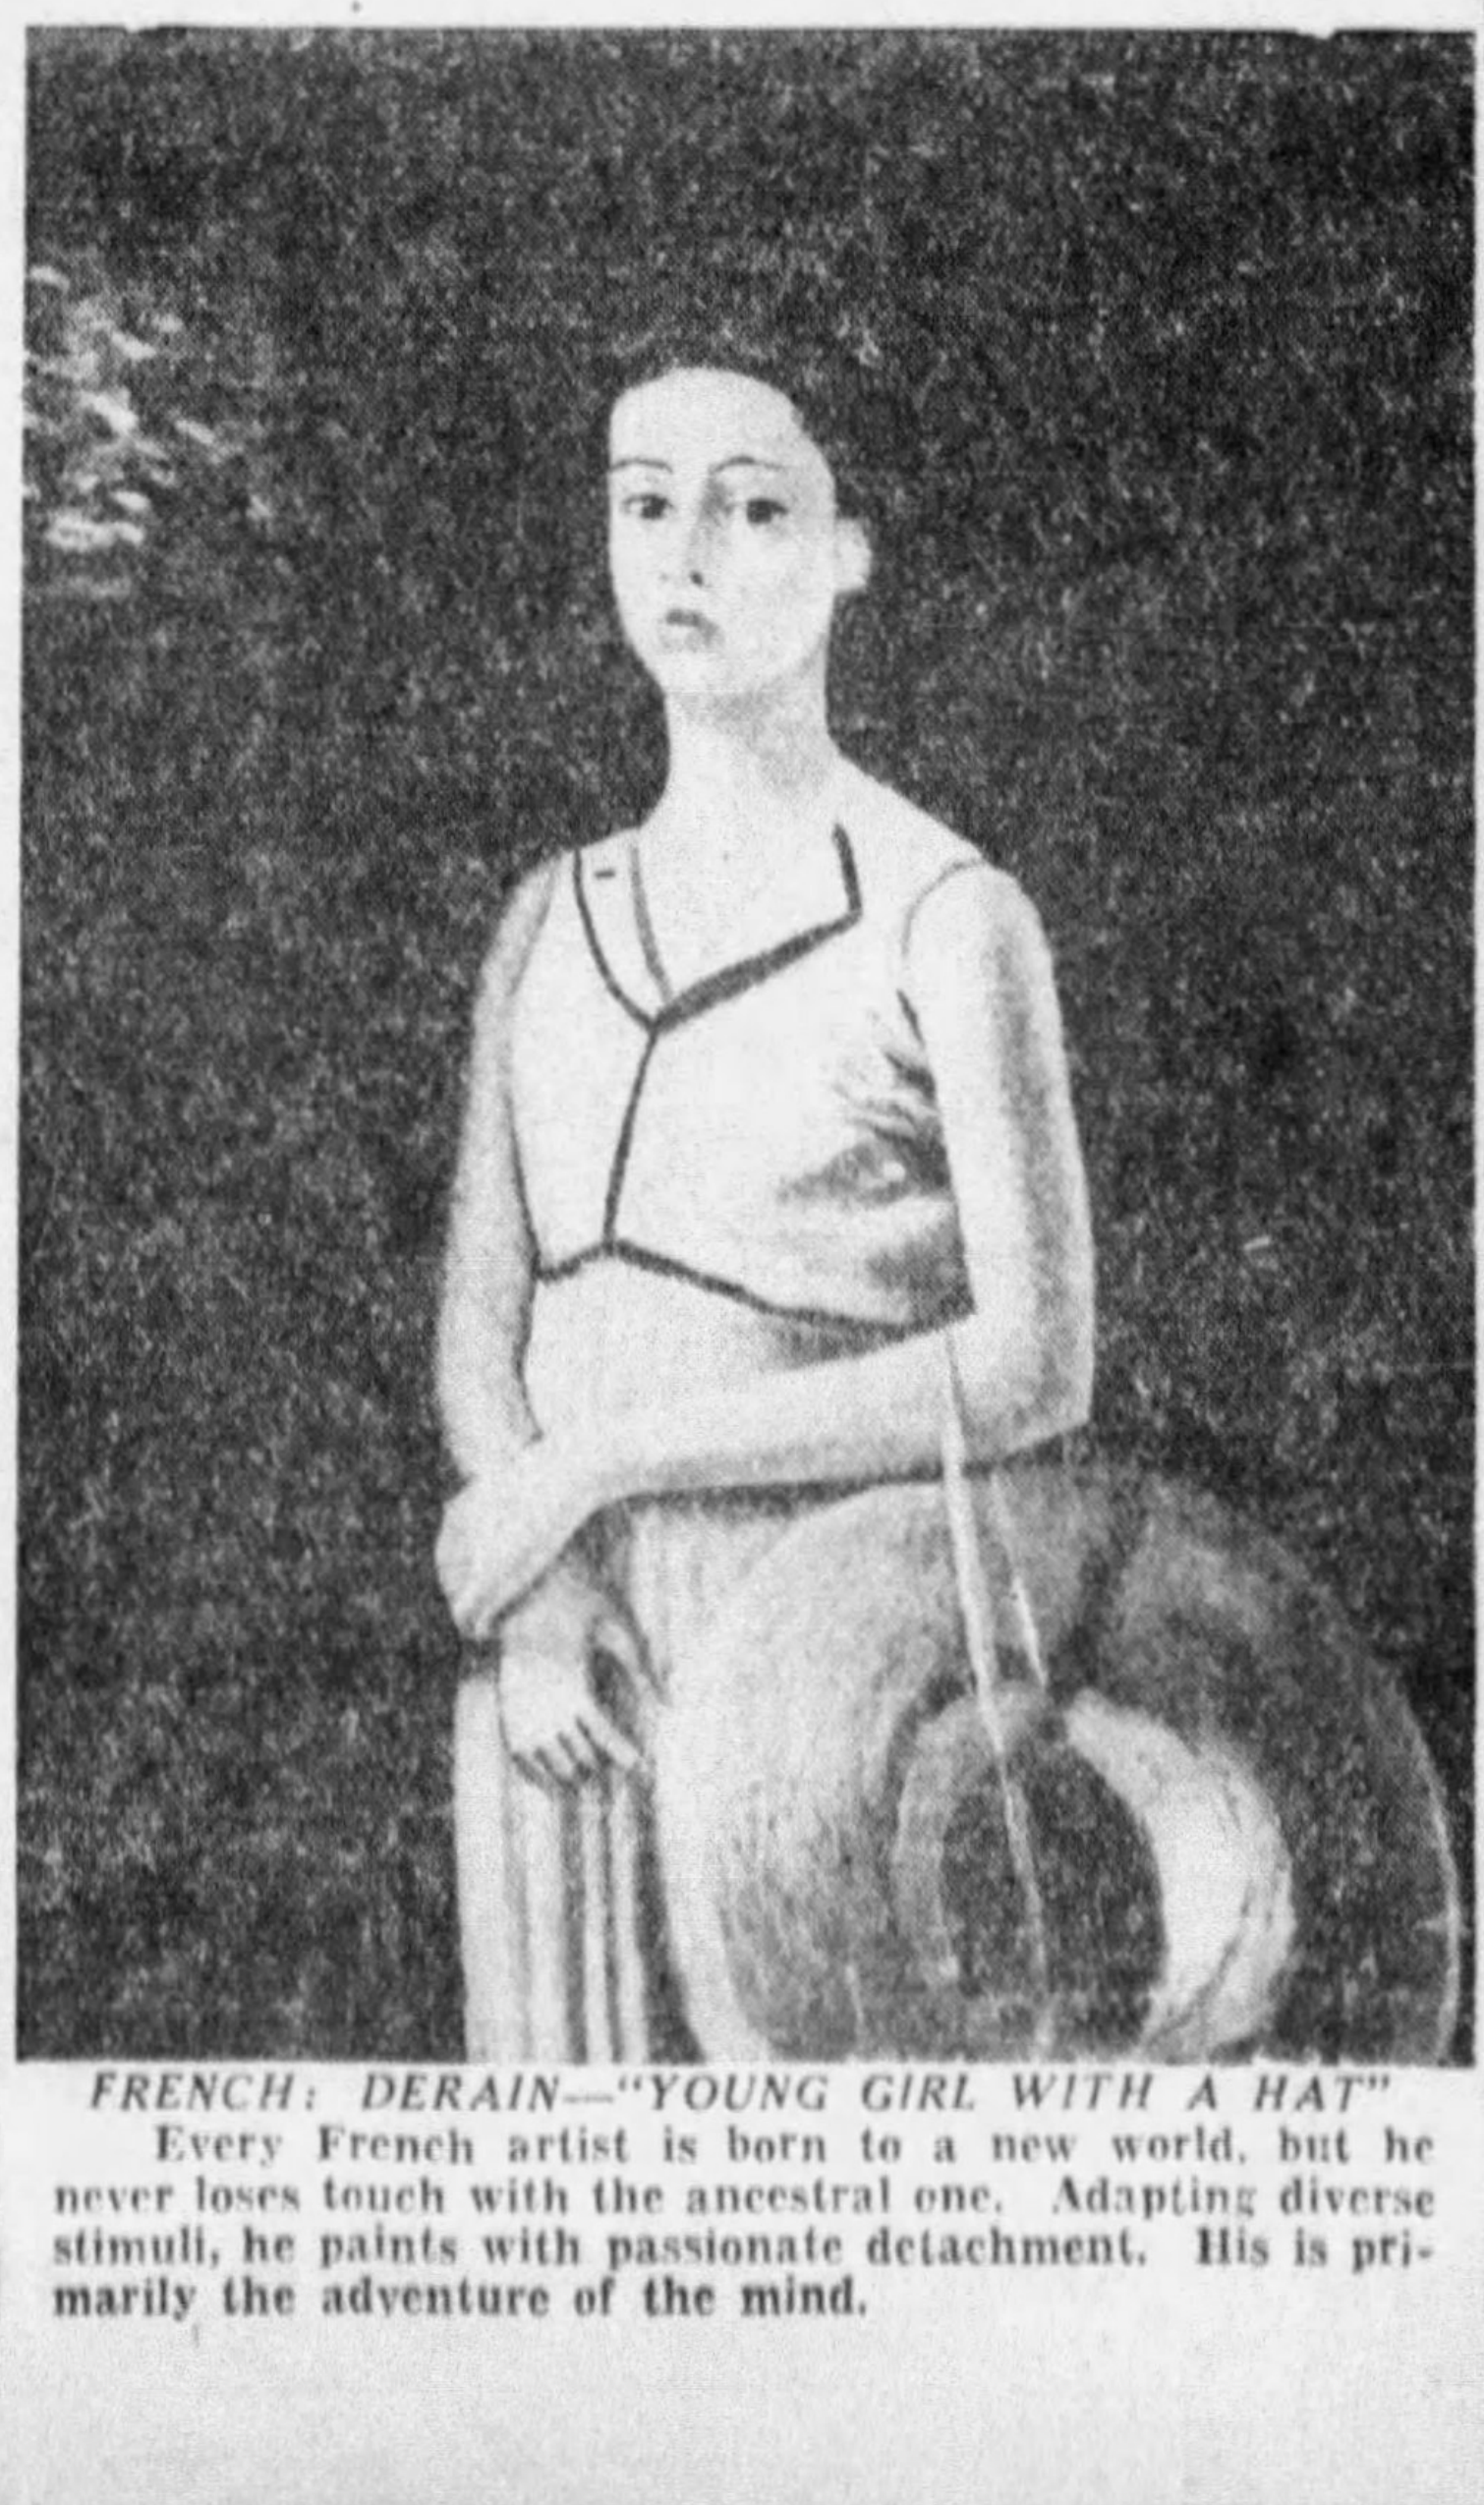
ITALIAN: MONTANARI—"RUSTIC DANCE"

Three-fourths of the Italians show life through people living joyously. Young Italians formalize genre into meditative moods introducing classic grandeur. To all ages, art is a theatric gesture.



POLISH: SICHULSKI—"CARPATHIAN SPRING"

People and the earth about them in ritualistic relationship close to paganism dominate this best, small group. Unified by intuitive reverence for nature, old superstitions neutralize a new technic.



FRENCH: DERAIN—"YOUNG GIRL WITH A HAT"

Every French artist is born to a new world, but he never loses touch with the ancestral one. Adapting diverse stimuli, he paints with passionate detachment. His is primarily the adventure of the mind.

Great Need for More Foreign Works Emphasized

By PENELOPE REDD

Pittsburgh had a first peep at the newest Carnegie International at a private view last night.

Today the Thirty-first Exhibition of American and European paintings is open free to the public. Daily hereafter from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. Every Sunday from 1 p. m to 6 p. m., through December 10

Miss Redd

Living painters from 11 nations exhibit 351 canvases. Of this number 125 are invited from 125 American painters and with few exceptions interpret contemporary trends.

The other 226 pictures represent 149 artists from 10 European countries.

FROM GREAT BRITAIN—35 painters. The substantial tradition of the Carnegie Internationals is continued admirably by the skilled technicians in this section. The Scot, Cameron, is one of the stars as a conservative painter, while Paul Nash performs the same service for the contemporary artists. Nineteenth Century poise is maintained. However, the newest burden-bearers who are carrying on the task to push the British pattern forward, are omitted.

FROM FRANCE—32 painters. The nation that has ever roused the public with multiple personalities in art will do so again in this selection. From the poetry of Le Sidaner to that of Bonnard the group is an anthology with all the familiar great in canvases which will provoke the people to praise or disapproval. Conspicuously absent are the men of post-war prestige, who are promoting a return to romanticism by two routes—one, a super-charged emotional classicism; the other, an overstressed realism. Portents point to new stars on the horizon not forecast in this show.

Vivacious Group

FROM ITALY—17 painters. Always one of the more vivacious foreign groups, this year's showing returns approved favorites. Tito's gaiety and Romagnoli's opulent sensuousness speak the public's language. The absence of about 10 "metaphysical" painters who wander in the labyrinthian world of overtones makes this showing inconclusive.

Subjects Duplicative

FROM BELGIUM—Six painters. Carte and Saedeeler will please their considerable Pittsburgh following. And the best, a frequent occurrence, is found in an old canvas by James Ensor. Almost identical paintings by Saverys demonstrates a second habitual weakness of Carnegie Internationals.

FROM HOLLAND—Six painters. Sluyters and Schuhmacher with their wistful maidens are a long way from Saskia of the old days. This group might well have been relinquished in favor of dynamic Russia or pulsating Hungary since the Dutch in this show, as we see it, are doing nothing dully.

Jarocki Highlight

FROM POLAND—Seven painters. One of the most satisfactory nationalistic of all the groups. To the visitor who takes his art in an annual dose, a man like Jarocki will be a highlight. To benefit the sophisticated in art, five pertinent painters should be added.

FROM NORWAY, three painters; FROM SWEDEN, four. The best the old school has to offer is in the work of a man like Liljefors in his evanescent "Fox in Snow." Likewise the contemporary is powerfully demonstrated in Munch's "Sick Child," where tenderness triumphs over the artist's harsh idiom. In Scandinavia, contemporary formulae seem more artificially imposed than in other lands. Painting seems a veneer, not a functional expression. Perhaps material mediums, as the decorative arts, are more native to the Norse.

Typical Painters

FROM SPAIN—18 painters. The Brothers Zubiaurre and Diaz set the pace for the most consistently close-knit group in the exhibition. Not a single great man, but a high average of typical painters. Saturated with their own folk ways, they refrain from breaking down the visible world into the abstract, and rest content with a precisely defined picture of a reality strange to the American eye. Truant superrealists from Spain are not included.

FROM GERMANY—21 painters. A staunch survival of war and disaster is Max Liebermann, almost alone of the old German guard. Forty painters would be

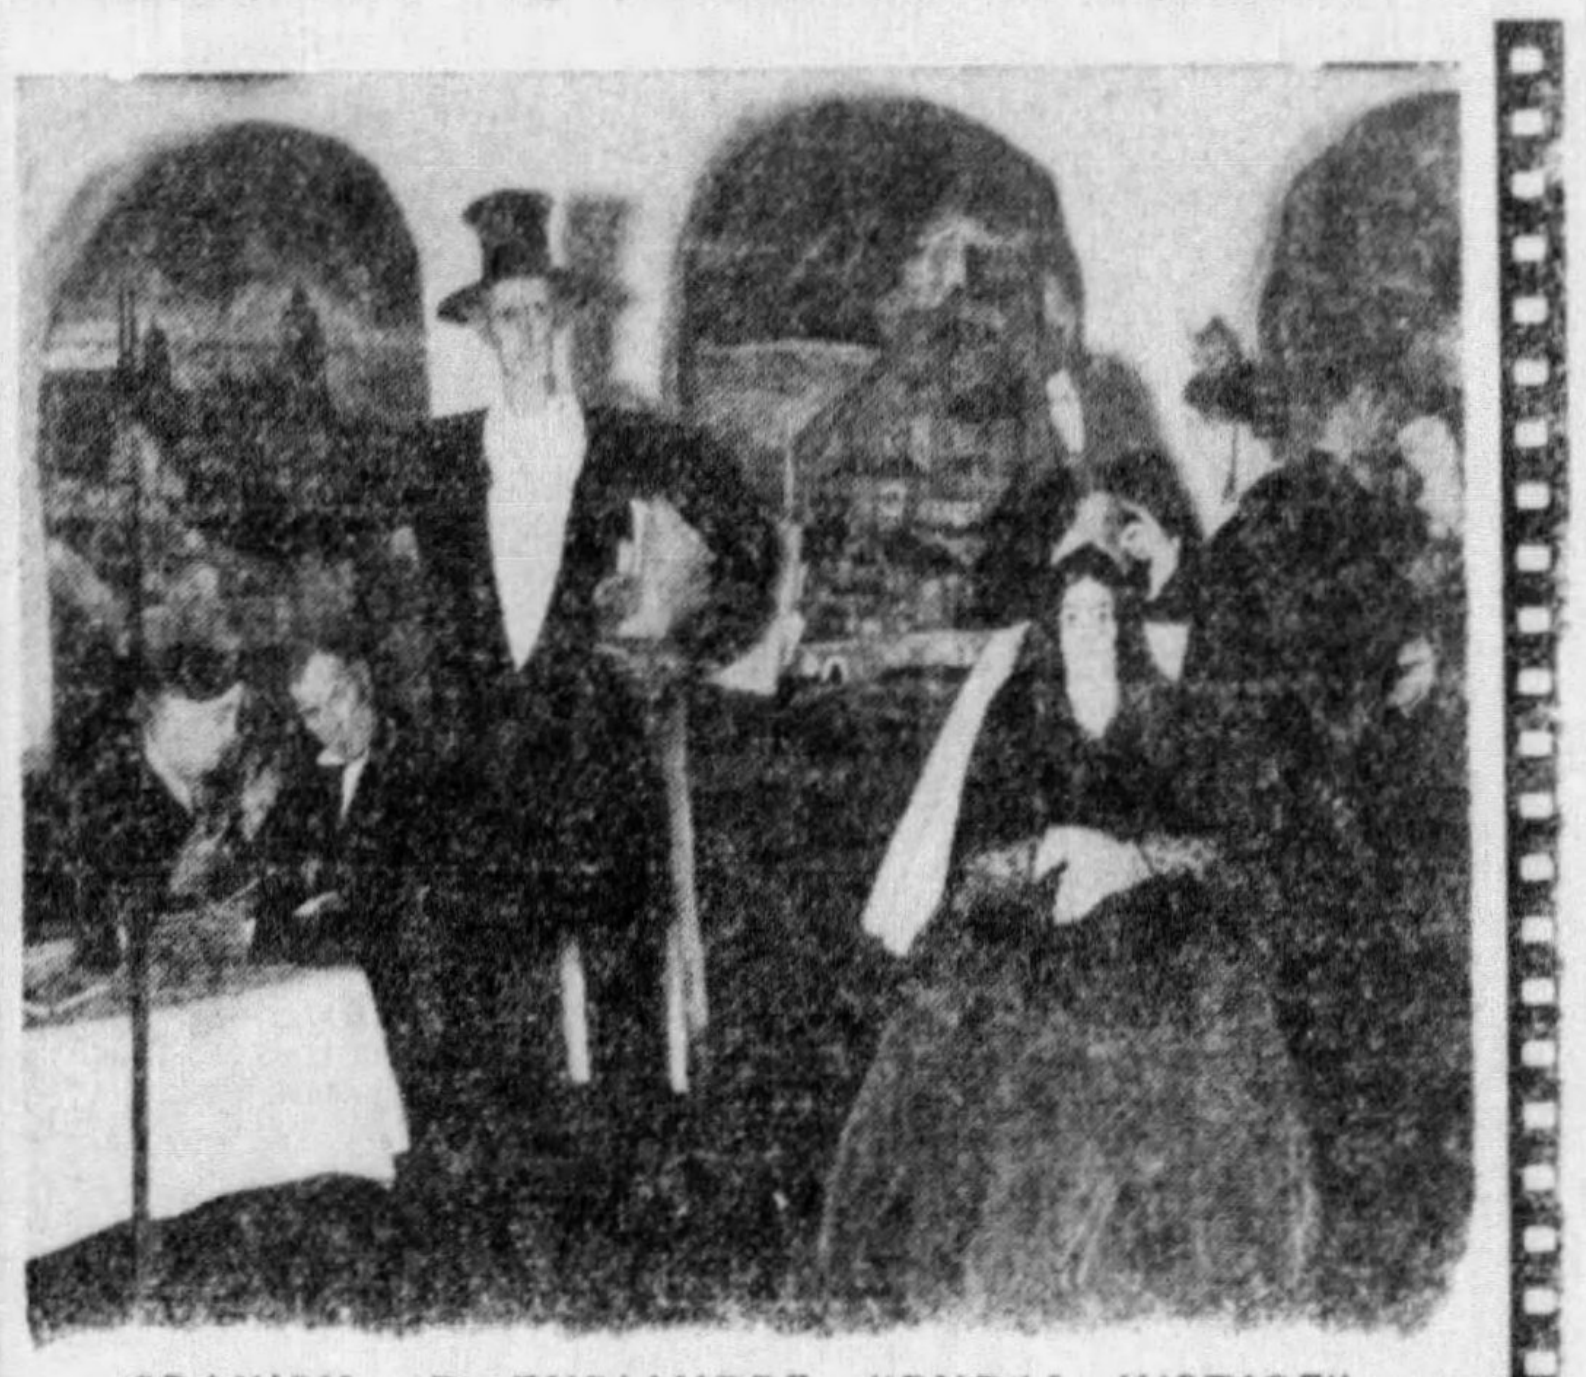
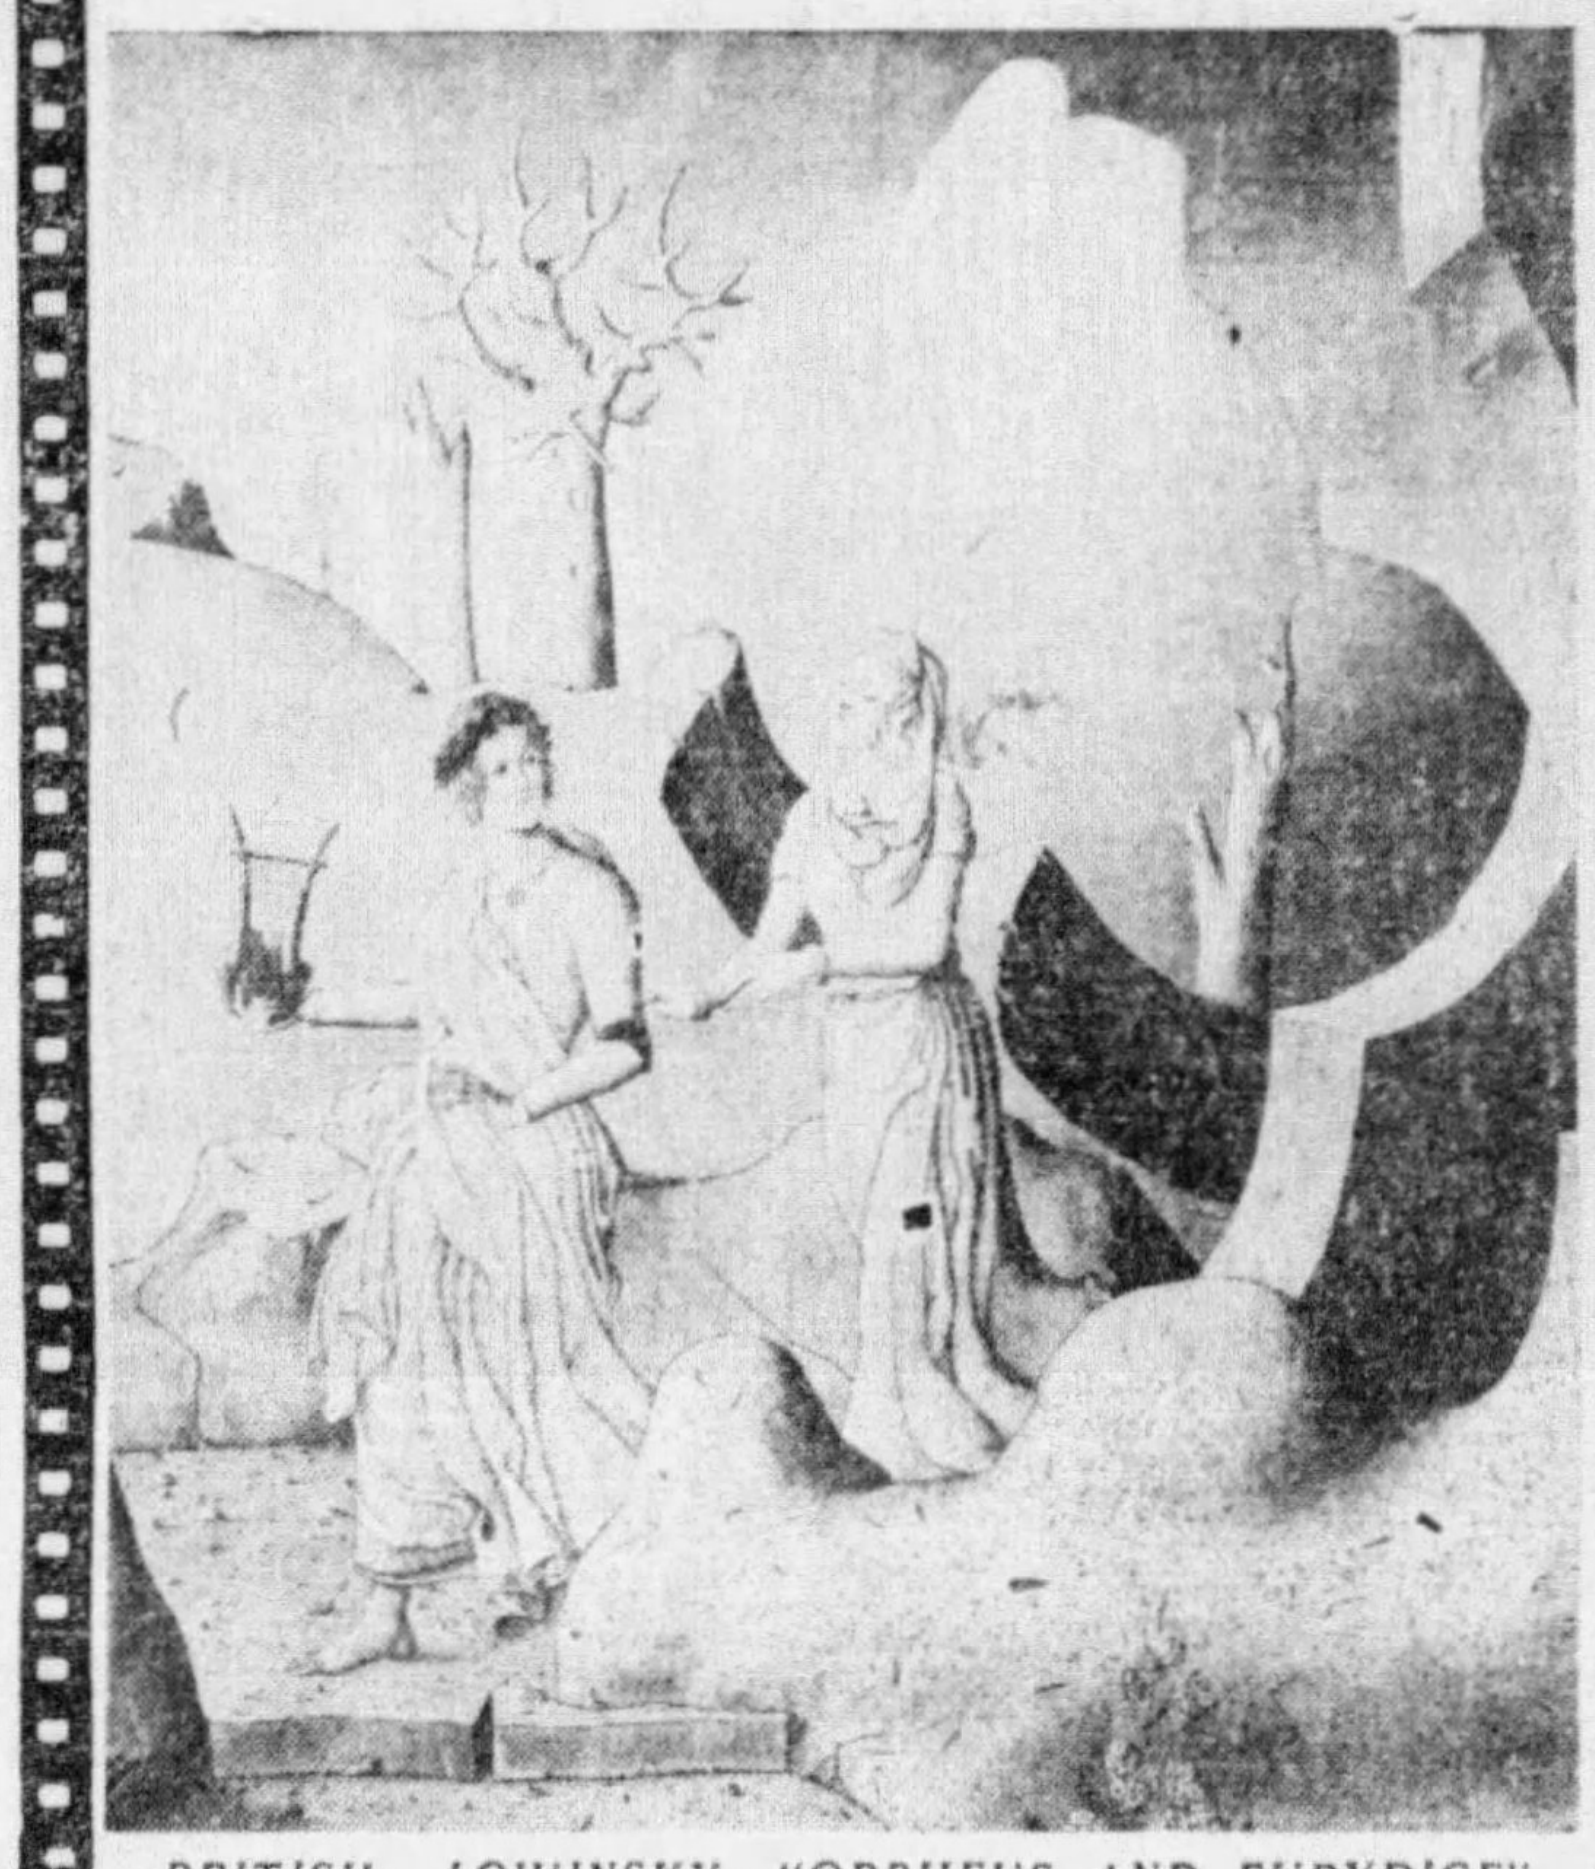
Wherein Miss Redd, the Sun-Telegraph art critic, pictorially presents representative canvases according to the nationalities of their respective artists, in a unique "movie" review.

Camera: Sun-Telegraph—Sub-Titles: Penelope Redd



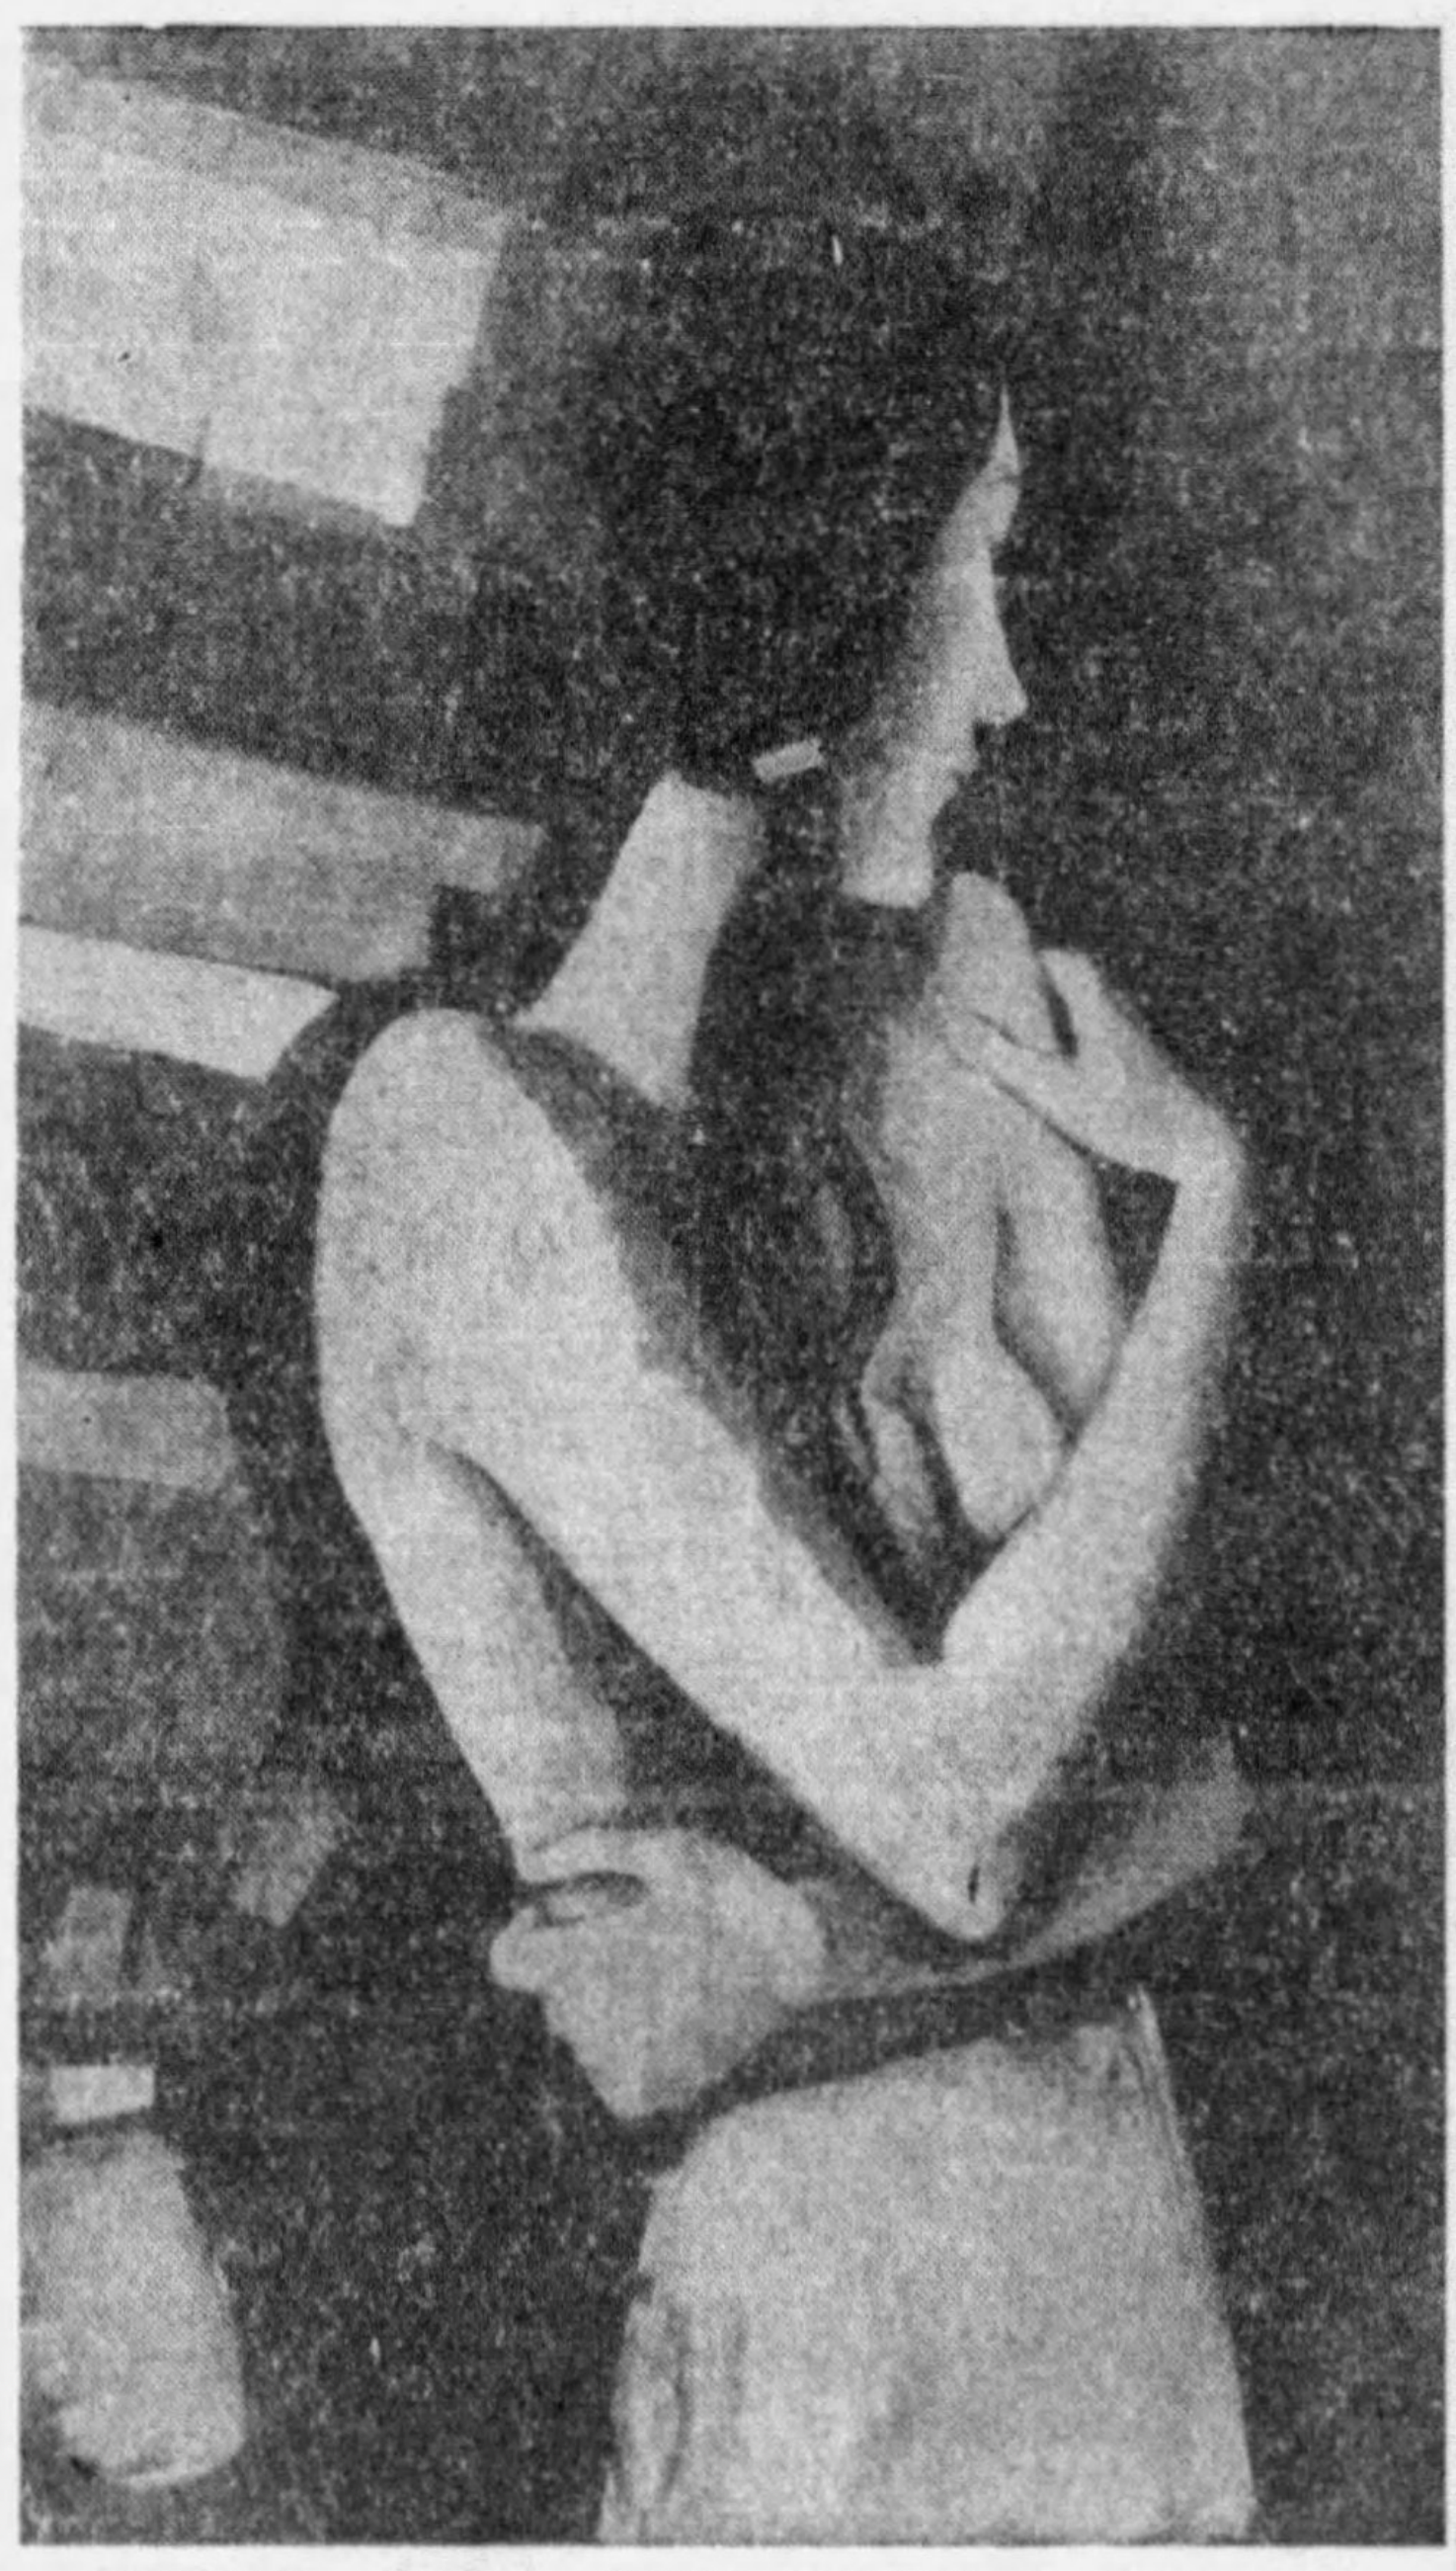
SPANISH: R. ZUBIAURRE—"RURAL JUSTICE"

Many provincial types, consequently subjects differ from other nations and give even mediocre artists' work a tang. Sound but not brilliant technic, resonant color characterize this peculiarly indigenous colony.



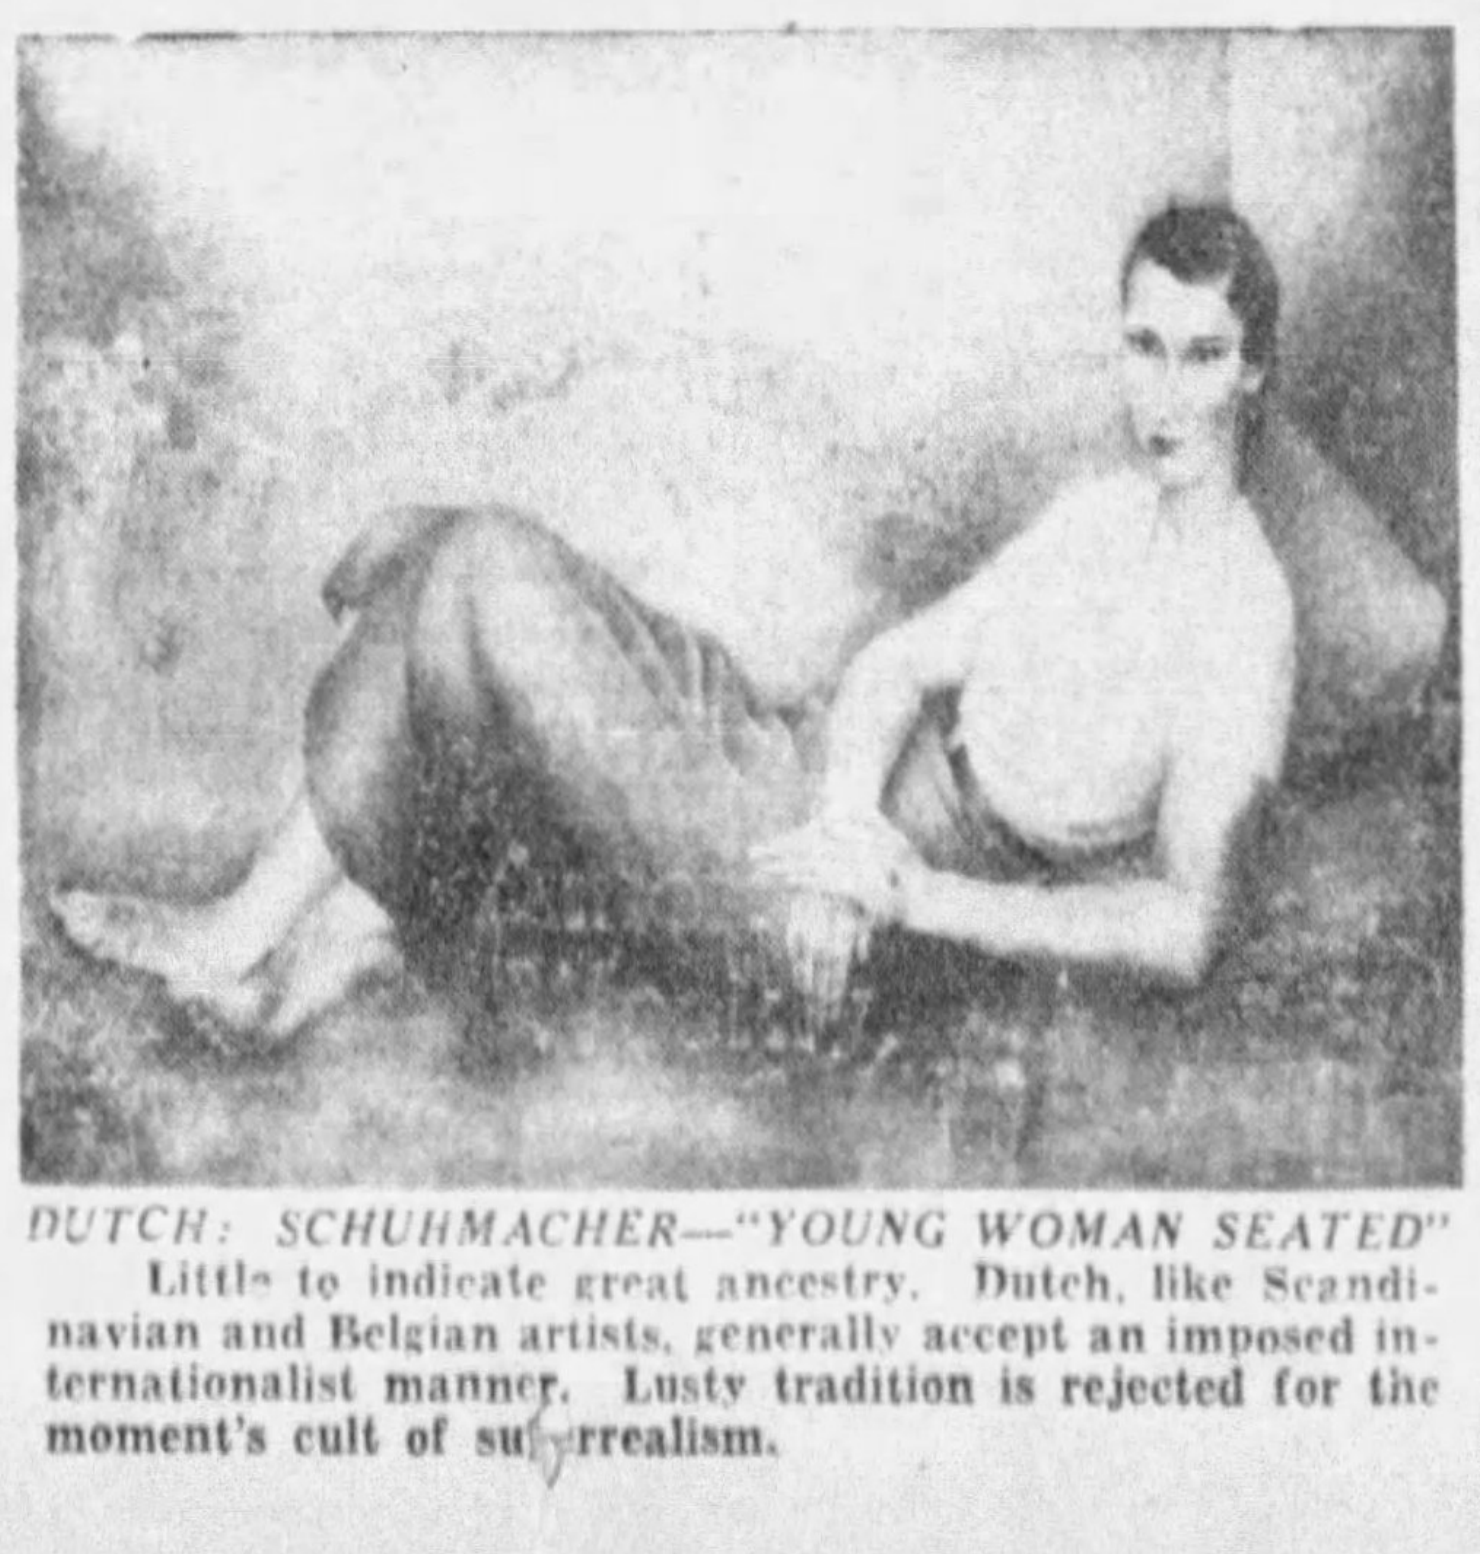
BRITISH: LOWINSKY—"ORPHEUS AND EURYDICE"

Portraits, myths and "puzzler" paintings lead in numbers. British painters constantly refer to traditional ways. Accurate drawing, sober color, logical composition make the literal Cameron and the modern Nash, kin.



GERMAN: HOFER—"GIRL BEFORE A CURTAIN"

Withdrawn from life about them; introspective, the Germans turn to nature easily accessible, as in many paintings of flowers and landscapes of inland waters. Subdued in thought; often erratic drawing and color.



DUTCH: SCHUHMACHER—"YOUNG WOMAN SEATED"

Little to indicate great ancestry. Dutch, like Scandinavian and Belgian artists, generally accept an imposed internationalist manner. Lusty tradition is rejected for the moment's cult of superrealism.

WORKERS TOLD PEOPLE MUST BE FED

Federal Aide Denies Strings on Relief In Strike Areas

With the personal assurance of the Federal Relief Administration that people have got to be fed and we're going to see that they are fed," the Welfare Fund's campaign for $2,837,890 is on. C. M. Bookman, assistant federal relief administrator, brought the words of his chief, Harry L. Hopkins, to a meeting of welfare leaders in Schenley Hotel last night.

Hopkins in Washington issued a formal denial of the report that unemployment relief would be withdrawn from families of men engaged in industrial strikes.

RELIEF CHIEF CONCERN

His statement said:

"The Federal Emergency Relief Administration is concerned with administering relief to the needy unemployed and their families. Each case applying for relief to the local emergency relief agencies should be treated on its merits as a relief case wholly apart from any controversy in which the wage earner may be involved.

"The Federal Emergency Relief Administration will not attempt to judge the merit of labor disputes. The administration authorizes local relief agencies to furnish relief to the families of striking wage earners after careful investigation has shown that their resources are not sufficient to meet emergency needs."

Bookman said:

"Our latest figures show that the number of families on our relief lists in the nation has dropped from 4,500,000 last March to 3,150,000. But that means that there are still 15,000,000 individuals looking to us for help."

CITES PROBLEMS

To the question of how the national government proposes to help these 15,000,000 persons Bookman said:

"The Agricultural Adjustment Corporation reports to us the number of surplus cattle and the Surplus Relief Corporation then purchases that number of cattle. We do it the best way to remove the surplus and at the same time get the best price for it. We then distribute the cattle to the states."

Eric Biddle, executive director of the State Emergency Board, described before last night's meeting the state relief setup and requirements, and John W. Lawrence, general chairman of the 1933 Welfare Fund Campaign, spoke on the problems confronting the present campaign workers. William S. Moorhead presided.

Federal Relief in City, County Shows Decline

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Demands for federal emergency relief in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County during the month of September showed a decrease of 3 per cent in the number of families receiving aid and a drop of 22 per cent in the volume of obligations incurred from public funds, it was announced today by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Families and single resident persons on relief rolls in Allegheny County, including the city, in September were 58,977 against 60,997 during August. Obligations against public funds for September were $821,191 against $1,056,701 in August.

COAL FOR POOR RELIEF AIM

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Plans for distributing thousands of tons of hard and soft coal to the nation's needy during the coming winter were being worked out today by the relief administration.

One suggestion under consideration called for distribution directly from retail dealers. Persons needing and unable to buy coal would obtain orders from local relief agencies.

The retailers, railroads and coal operators would be asked to reduce their charges on relief coal.

That suggestion went out to coal men today, although it has not yet been approved formally by the administration.

Man Hit by Brick Dies in Hospital

Struck on the head with a brick, Percy Robinson, 30, Negro, of 133 Elm street, died early today in Mercy Hospital. Robinson was admitted to the hospital Saturday. Police have no record as to the manner in which he came to his injuries.

Socialist Labor Leader to Speak

Verne H. Reynolds, presidential candidate in 1932 on the Socialist Labor ticket, will speak at Moose Temple, Penn avenue, tomorrow night, on "An Era Is Ending—Another One Dawns."

of appraising—at least, appraising of pictures—done at the preview, and John Kane, one of Pittsburgh's several exhibitors this year, is one of them.

'THE LOVELY LADIES'

John—former house painter and storm center of Pittsburgh's artist folk—put it nicely as he held salon near his painting:

"Sure, and we didn't come to see the pretty pictures tonight, but to meet our friends and see the lovely ladies."

And the lovely ladies were there in all their glory, with their men in their starched shirts, to launch the show on its way.

They gathered in little groups before the paintings or met in jovial circles in the corridors to discuss the paintings—and the dresses; the artists—and the other spectators.

There was plenty of room, generally around the nudes, of which there seemed to be many. But John J. O'Connor, director of the fine arts department, denied their frequency when he said:

"Some day I'm going to take a census of the nudes in these shows. And I think there are fewer this year than usual."

LITTLE GIRL AND STEER!

The crowd gasped a little at John Carroll's "Cowboy Dream" in the United States section, but the "ohs" and "ahs" didn't break up the show.

The picture is of a steer rampant with a little girl perched insecurely on his back. And the little girl forgot her clothes.

But they gathered with bow ties quivering under Adam's apples before Alexander J. Kostellow's picture, entitled "After Dinner"—depicting a group of men and women and a baby, obviously in the steel district of Pittsburgh, with smoking stacks glimpsed through the window.

And down in the German section, connoisseurs marveled at the indifference of the crowd to Max Peiffer-Watenphul's "Still Life with Flowers." Only a scant few admired the lacy co-ordination of vases and flowers and colors.

AND WHAT'S THIS?

Then there was the "Peasant of Palos," by Daniel Vazquez Diaz, in the Spanish section, for onlookers to worry about.

The source of trouble here seemed to be why a man should carry an ax in one hand and an apparently alive wildcat in another, the arm of which is bandaged as though from scratches.

And if they needed anything more to talk about, it was the prevalence of Adams and Eves.

The depression is generally thought to have convinced artists that this is no earthly paradise—so maybe more eyes have been turned on the possibilities.

Anyhow, Spanish Timoteo Perez Rubio did "Paradise" with a lion apparently representing the biblical serpent and nothing to indicate the encroachment of modesty and the donning of clothes.

AND LOOK—EVE!

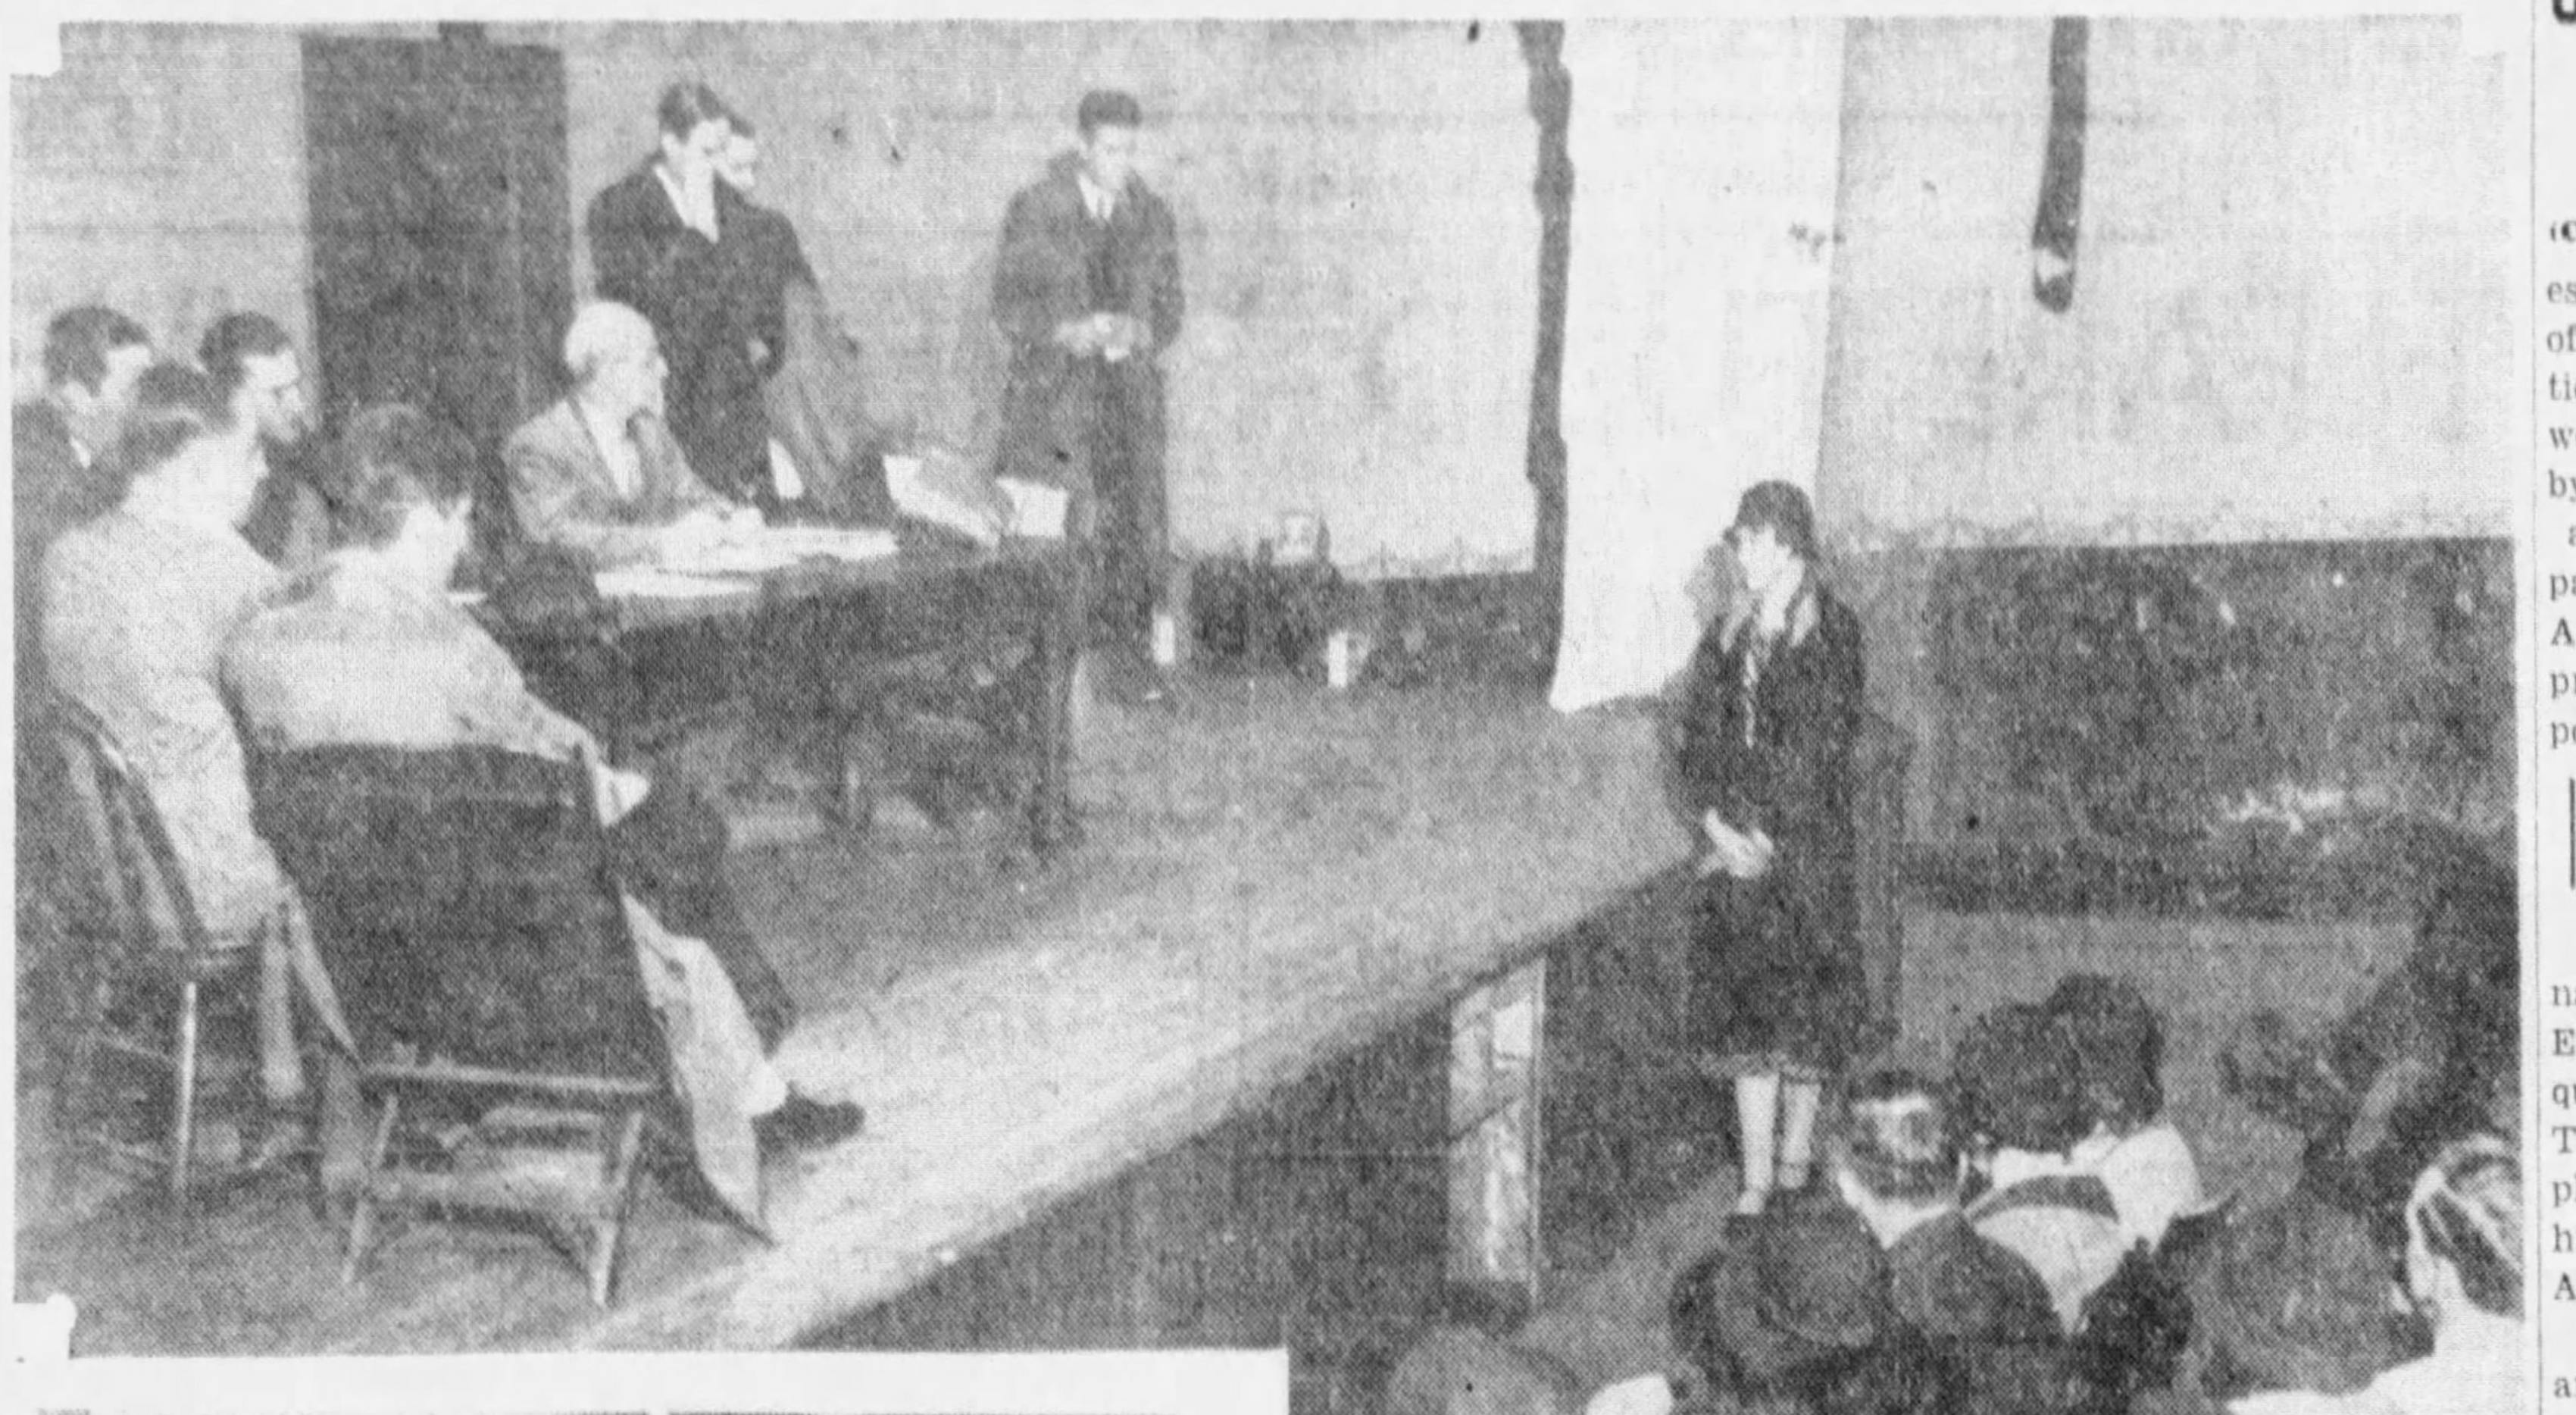
More bareness came in Edouard Goerg's "Adam and Eve" and, if that wasn't enough, a clotheless "Eve" feeding an apple to the serpent was contributed to the American section by Katherine Schmidt.

Some in the audience lifted eyebrows and said the show was conservative and some thanked goodness the show was conservative and Christ Walters, president of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh, flitted here and there and said:

"Yes, it's a good show. I like the European section, too."

And society and artistry and bourgeoisie put on their wraps and went home to a sound night's sleep, vowing to return and see the pictures.

'Squire Holding His Hearings in a Theater



SOME OF THE 100 WOMEN 'WITNESSES' IN 'SQUIRE'S COURT

The scene in an unused theater in Preble avenue today as Alderman George A. Young held his hearings there to accommodate more than 100 women whom Constable Norbert Sexton hoped to have identify some of the four men held for court as conspirators in the investigation of a "beauty shop racket." These are Sun-Telegraph pictures.

MISS GERTRUDE STEWART . . . . . HER SCALP WAS BURNED

FUNDS SOUGHT BY ST. FIDELIS

As hard times threaten to close the doors of St. Fidelis College in Herman, Pa., five miles north of Butler, students and officials are planning a drive for funds to save the half-century-old boarding school for boys who expect to enter the priesthood.

Founded in 1879 by the Rev. Hyacinth Epp, a German, the school has to its credit more than 250 priests, many of them serving in churches in the Pittsburgh district, who had their early training at St. Fidelis.

A great many of the 150 boys now at St. Fidelis are unable to pay for their schooling. The Rev. Bertrand Brookman, director of the school said:

"Plans for meeting this emergency include a week's leave of absence November 1, to permit students to go back to their homes, try to interest their friends in our predicament and sell subscriptions to the St. Francis Home Journal, religious magazine of the Franciscan order. Boys who finish at St. Fidelis go either to the Capuchin Franciscan Order or to the diocesan seminary, usually at St. Vincent's in Latrobe. We hope the boys will be successful in their efforts to keep the school open."

CITIZENS RALLY IN BOND DRIVE

HARRISBURG, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—A statewide citizens' committee was organized today to campaign for approval of the $25,000,000 state expenses bond issue, one of 12 to be voted on at the November 7 election.

Leaders of civic, educational, medical, charitable and labor groups and representatives of the American Legion and other organizations are members of the committee.

Under acts passed by the 1933 Legislature, $20,000,000 of the bond issue proceeds is set aside for state aid to those out of work, and $5,000,000 goes to state-aided hospitals and colleges.

Members of the committee include John F. Casey, Dr. Walter Donaldson, John W. Hallock and Miss Jessie Turnbull, of Pittsburgh.

351 CANVASES IN EXHIBIT essential to a satisfactory review of contemporary Teutonic aspirations in painting. Escape from a world awry to solitudes haunted by insecurity is even more characteristic of current German painting than this section reveals. A pathetic but we hope not a prophetic exposition of contemporary art.

Needs More Painters

The thirty-first Carnegie International needs about 75 more European painters to report adequately the art trends of the day. This might have been accomplished by limiting European exhibitors to one canvas as in the American section.

Apparently economy has proven an incubus in assembling the collection rather than acting as a challenge to exercise ingenuity in creating a sparkling show.

In every section but the American it stops short of today's expression. There are few remarkable canvases, few to engage the curiosity, and almost none to compel an informed person to make a second visit to the exhibition.

On the other hand, the show has many famed names and the pictures are installed with the expert sensitiveness that assures every painting the best possible presentation.

SUSPECT SHOT, NEAR DEATH

The condition of Larry Rosenblatt, alias Chatmore, 23, of 3054 Texas avenue, Dormont, one of two men shot by City Detective Edward T. McEntee, when, he said, they attempted to hold him up near Millvale early yesterday, was still regarded as critical at Allegheny General Hospital today.

The other man wounded was Peter Stewart, 20, of 1302 Wareman avenue, Brookline, who was shot through the shoulder.

The pair, detectives said, admitted robbing a Dormont jewelry store last Friday night.

New Map Shows Brownsville Area

A new edition of the topographic map of the Brownsville quadrangle, an area of about 228 square miles in Southwestern Pennsylvania, south of Pittsburgh, has been published by the United States Geological Survey. Scaled about one mile to the inch, the map is drawn in fine detail, even showing individual houses. The area was first surveyed in 1899-1900.

DEMOCRATS RAP MELLON, COYNE IN FIRST RALLY

Democrats opened their municipal campaign last night with a meeting in Frick Training School, Fifth avenue, at which a crowd of between five and six hundred cheered attacks upon the Republican city administration, Senator James J. Coyne and W. L. Mellon. The crowd made up in enthusiasm what it lacked in numbers.

William N. McNair, candidate for Mayor, Council candidates and nominees for the judiciary spoke, McNair and James L. O'Toole, Jr., candidate for the County Court, carrying the burden of the attack upon the Republican regime. Attorney Cornelius D. Scully presided and introduced the speakers.

McNair asserted that the mayoralty fight was not necessarily a contest between parties, but between the independent citizenship, both Republican and Democratic, and financial and political profiteers who, having seized control of the city government through the Republican party, now are attempting to retain that control.

LAUDS INDEPENDENTS

Lauding the independent Republicans, whose leaders the Democrats during the primary said were as much Mellon agents as are Coyne and Mayor John S. Herron, McNair now invited them to participate in his campaign. He took an indirect shot at the Citizens' League, which refused to indorse him, when he said:

"It is now time for those independent Republicans who, having failed in their laudable attempt to overcome the enemy within their own party gates, to determine whether for the good of their party and for the good of the community as a whole, they should withdraw from further participation in this election or join with a rejuvenated and forward-looking Democracy in a common and righteous cause."

The Citizens' League fought Herron in the primary.

Mr. McNair also revised a statement he made in the primary when he declared he would fire all Republican city employes if elected, when he said last night:

"If I am elected there will be, I assure you, a new deal in the City-County Building, a new deal whereunder every political parasite will be removed from the payroll and every conscientious and able employe will be assured continued employment, protected to the utmost by a Civil Service Commission that will function without regard to party politics."

ASSAILS RAILWAYS

State Chairman Edward Martin came in for attack, and McNair used his recent statements as an evidence that this municipal campaign is part of the effort by the Mellon leadership to retain its control of state affairs. The Public Service Commission, though it is a Pinchot-appointed group, came in for frequent attacks by many of the speakers, and McNair assailed rates of the Pittsburgh Railways and the Duquesne Light Company, as well as freedom of utility companies from taxation.

He intimated he would try to do something about this, presumably through legislation at Harrisburg.

John J Kane and Thomas F. Gallagher, members of the Legislature and Democratic councilmanic candidates about whose legislative record the Democratic campaign is modeled, attacked the Republican control, as did Walter Demmler and John M. Huston, other Council candidates. William A. Magee, who has a nomination on the Republican ticket, was not present.

G. O. P. CENSURED

Attorney A. Marshall Thompson, candidate for Common Pleas Court, asserted that it was not right that Republicans should dominate the bench, and reiterated the resentment of Democrats against those Republicans who ran in the Democratic primary.

The Republican organization was censured for defeat of old age pensions in the Legislature, and this proposition was cited as one of the foremost principles of the Democratic party, with the votes of the delegation from Allegheny County as supporting evidence.

Congressman Matthew A. Dunn, who was elected to Congress as a Democrat after having been defeated in the Republican primary last year, was introduced to speak on behalf of the constitutional amendment to permit pensions for the blind. He eventually did so.

PROBE FINDINGS ON MACHINES AWAITED

The County Commissioners' action in refusing to have ballots printed for districts in which voting machines are to be used next month was to be followed today by the report of the Harris investigating committee as to what caused the breakdown of voting machines last primary day. The committee is expected to recommend that the machines be used only in some city districts.

Under the law, the County Commissioners are required to send out the machines to the cities in alphabetical order. This would mean the three third-class cities would be equipped before Pittsburgh.

If the recommendations of the committee are to the effect that only part of Pittsburgh be equipped with machines, the Commissioners will begin at the first ward.

It was pointed out, however, that the County Commissioners are not bound to follow the recommendations of the committee.

Senator Frank J. Harris and his two colleagues, Attorneys Edward O Tabor and William B. McFall, held a short meeting yesterday and began framing their report, expected to be completed late today.

In moving that the ballots not be printed for districts in which the machines are to be used, County Commissioner C. C. McGovern revealed that he spent two days this week studying operation of voting machines in Buffalo, N. Y. He said:

"It's a lot of hokum to put three machines in one district. In Buffalo they have been using the machines for 33 years and have as many as 1,100 and 1,200 vote on one machine at an election. They do not have a straight ticket, either."

He said the problem here could be solved by printing and broadcastng pictures of the face of the vote machine showing the location of the different candidates. He declared he was in favor of printing 500,000 sample ballots if necessary.

COUNTY BLAMED FOR BAR BILL DUPLICATION

Although he admits that there had been $1,588 paid by the county in duplication of bills to the Bar Association committee probing the ethics of members of the bar, Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the committee, today laid the blame for the duplications on county employes who handled the bills.

His first knowledge of the duplications came last August when Chief County Investigator Leo A. Riordan began a checkup of the bills of the committee, Anderson declared. At the time he learned of the duplications the county owed him a much larger sum and for that reason nothing was done about the matter, Anderson said.

ANDERSON STATEMENT

Mr. Anderson's statement follows:

"On September 5 the county's chief investigator filed with the County Commissioners a report dealing with my administration of the funds of the Wright committee. Immediately thereafter Main & Co., at the direction of the Commissioners, began an exhaustive investigation of the committee's finances.

"The Main & Co. report discussing all the features of the account including the so-called duplications (which, by the way, the report shows to be errors of county fiscal offices and not mine) was filed yesterday. The net result of that report, after crediting the county with the said duplications and resolving every question in its favor is to show an unpaid balance of $1,607.62 still owing to me."

THREE DUPLICATIONS

In a report of Main & Co., made public by the County Commissioners, there are three duplications. The first, amounting to $515, was made as the result of employes in the Bureau of Accounts and Statistics erroneously including a carbon copy of a letter to Anderson, notifying him that the bills had been approved.

The second duplication of $500 was made in twice paying Mr. Anderson's salary for May, 1932.

Mr. Anderson presented a statement July 1, 1932, listing his salary for several months and several other items. He did, auditors state, make a notation which stated, "Salary for the month of May has already been approved by the Commissioners." This statement of bills also contained an item of $400 for services to an investigator. The investigator had previously rendered a bill for $150, but later amended it. The $150 had been previously paid, and in paying the later statement county employes did not deduct the $150, previously paid, from the $400 amended bill.

ERROR LAID TO COUNTY

The third duplication, of $572.50, was made through an error in the County Commissioners' own office, Anderson states. He declared that bills totaling this amount had previously been paid him and that Chief Clerk William T. Rees telephoned him, asking for a carbon copy of the statement, the original having been lost. He said that he delivered a copy of the statement to Clerk Rees and later when he called for more payments at the Court House, he was paid another $572.50 on the carbon copy of the statement.

Anderson admits that there is some money paid to him by the county not yet delivered to certain creditors, but points out that he also has paid out a greater amount to persons whose bills have not yet been approved by the county.

The shooting followed an argument over a $7 board bill, the testimony disclosed.

CHARGES PLOT AGAINST G. O. P.

John V. Sevin, Republican committeeman of the Second District of Emsworth, has informed the County Commissioners that county road department employes are being influenced to vote against the Republican party.

Sevin in a letter said two road officials stationed at the Camp Horne road headquarters had insisted that six or seven county laborers attend political meetings.

Nations Have Been Wrecked Because of Selfishness

How much do our friends owe us?

Should they agree with all our opinions; give us all their time and attention and the full run of our hearts?

Or are they entitled to a few notions, interests and affections of their own, outside our personal program?

Sybil wants to know. And perhaps you have a story like this in your own life.

For years Sybil and Mavis have been chums. All through Hi, they went to the same parties and picnics—hunted in couples, shared everything.

Then came graduation. Jobs. And still, although they worked in different places, they were inseparable. Until along came Ruth. She worked where Sybil did. They liked each other, went places together—sometimes with Mavis, sometimes not. For Ruth liked Mavis, too.

Then came the first rift in the lute. Ruth got married and chose Sybil for her bridesmaid. And Mavis was hurt—began to make little jealous, catty remarks. Sybil tried to smooth things over; thought she had. For Ruth included Mavis in her parties, asked her to week-ends. But—

Now there threatens to be a real break.

Ruth planned a trip to the mountains; set the date especially for the time that Mavis and Sybil had their promised vacations.

FRIENDSHIP THREATENED

But at the last minute Mavis couldn't go—and she is raising Cain now because Sybil didn't give up the trip, change her vacation date, so she and Mavis could go together.

"I'm glad it happened!" Mavis storms. "It just shows what kind of a 'friend' you really are!" And she won't be pacified. "It's just all right for you!" she sobs. "You've just showed yourself up! Showed just how disloyal you are. I'm through!"

And Sybil is deeply hurt. She loves Mavis. But Ruth had made all her plans; invited a crowd; couldn't change her date. And Sybil felt that she owed it to a hostess not to gum up her trip.

"How much can one girl expect of another, in the name of friendship?" she moans. "I love Mavis. She should know it, after all these years. I don't want to lose her, but I didn't think it would be right to let Ruth down, either. Should I have done that? If I like one, can't I like the other! Must I give up to Mavis, to prove my friendship?"

MONSTROUS THINGS

A "silly little story?"

Yet wars have been waged and nations wrecked over just such "silly little stories." For back of that "silliness" lie human selfishness, human jealousy, human greed, human fears—and these aren't "little things" at all. They are monstrously big things, and responsible for all the tragedy on earth.

So think of that, as you try to answer Sybil.

Had Mavis a right to control Sybil's life because they were friends?

Should any of us try to own those we love, or demand that they live for us exclusively?

Is that sort of exclusive possession a proof of real love? Or will real love rejoice in the loved one's happiness and freedom, regardless of their source?

My slant is that unless you can share your friends, generously, you're not much of a friend, yourself.

What's yours?

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Interesting Analysis

The famous match of 150 rubbers to test their respective theories of bidding between my husband and Mr. Sidney S. Lenz was played almost two years ago, but the memories of it still are fresh in the minds of Bridge players. Only the other day I received a letter from Master Mat Green, of New Orleans, La., analyzing the play of one of the hands in that match. Master Green is only 17 years of age and is earning his way through high school in New Orleans by teaching the Culbertson System. He claims, and I believe with reason, to be the youngest certified Bridge teacher in the world. In studying a record of the more interesting hands in the match he was particularly interested in the following:

East, Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.

Mr. Lenz
♠ K Q 6 4
♡ 8 5 2
♣ K 10 4 3

Mr. Culbertson
♠ A J 10 9 8 7 3
♡ J 7 4
♢ Q 8 4

North
West East
South

♣ Q J 8

♡ 10 9
♢ 9 6 5 3
♣ A 9 7 6 5 2
Mr. Jacoby

The final contract was six hearts by Mr. Theodore A. Lightner, Mr. Culbertson's partner, and in the play Mr. Lightner made six against the Opening lead of the Ace of clubs by Mr. Jacoby.

My correspondent points out that against the opening lead of the Ace of clubs there is an opportunity for a rather pretty play to make seven on the hand. The play should go as follows:

The Ace of clubs is trumped in the Dummy, and the closed hand entered by the lead of another trump. Then a second club is ruffed with Dummy's last trump, and the closed hand re-entered by leading a diamond. The adverse trumps should then be drawn, followed by three more rounds of diamonds. After this, East should lay down his last two trumps, and before the lead of the last trump the following situation develops:

♠ K Q

♠ A J 10

North
West East

♣ Q

♣ 7 6 5

Now, when East leads the heart 3, North's hand is hopelessly squeezed. To discard the club King of course establishes the Queen in the closed hand. To discard a spade is equally futile as in that instance the remaining two tricks are won in the Dummy.

While the analysis is absolutely accurate, as a matter of fact Mr. Lightner played the hand correctly, as the analysis fails to take into consideration a possible 4-1 split in hearts.

TODAY'S QUESTION

I hold:

♠ A K Q 5 4 ♡ A K J 6 4 ♢ K 6 ♣ 2

First Hand opens the bidding against me with one club. Should I double or bid one of my suits?

Answer—You should bid two clubs. While this immediate Overcall of the opponents' suit usually indicates the Ace or a void in that suit, the strength of this hand justifies deceiving your partner to that extent. There is danger that your partner may make a Penalty Pass of a Takeout Double and your hand is far too strong for a simple Overcall.

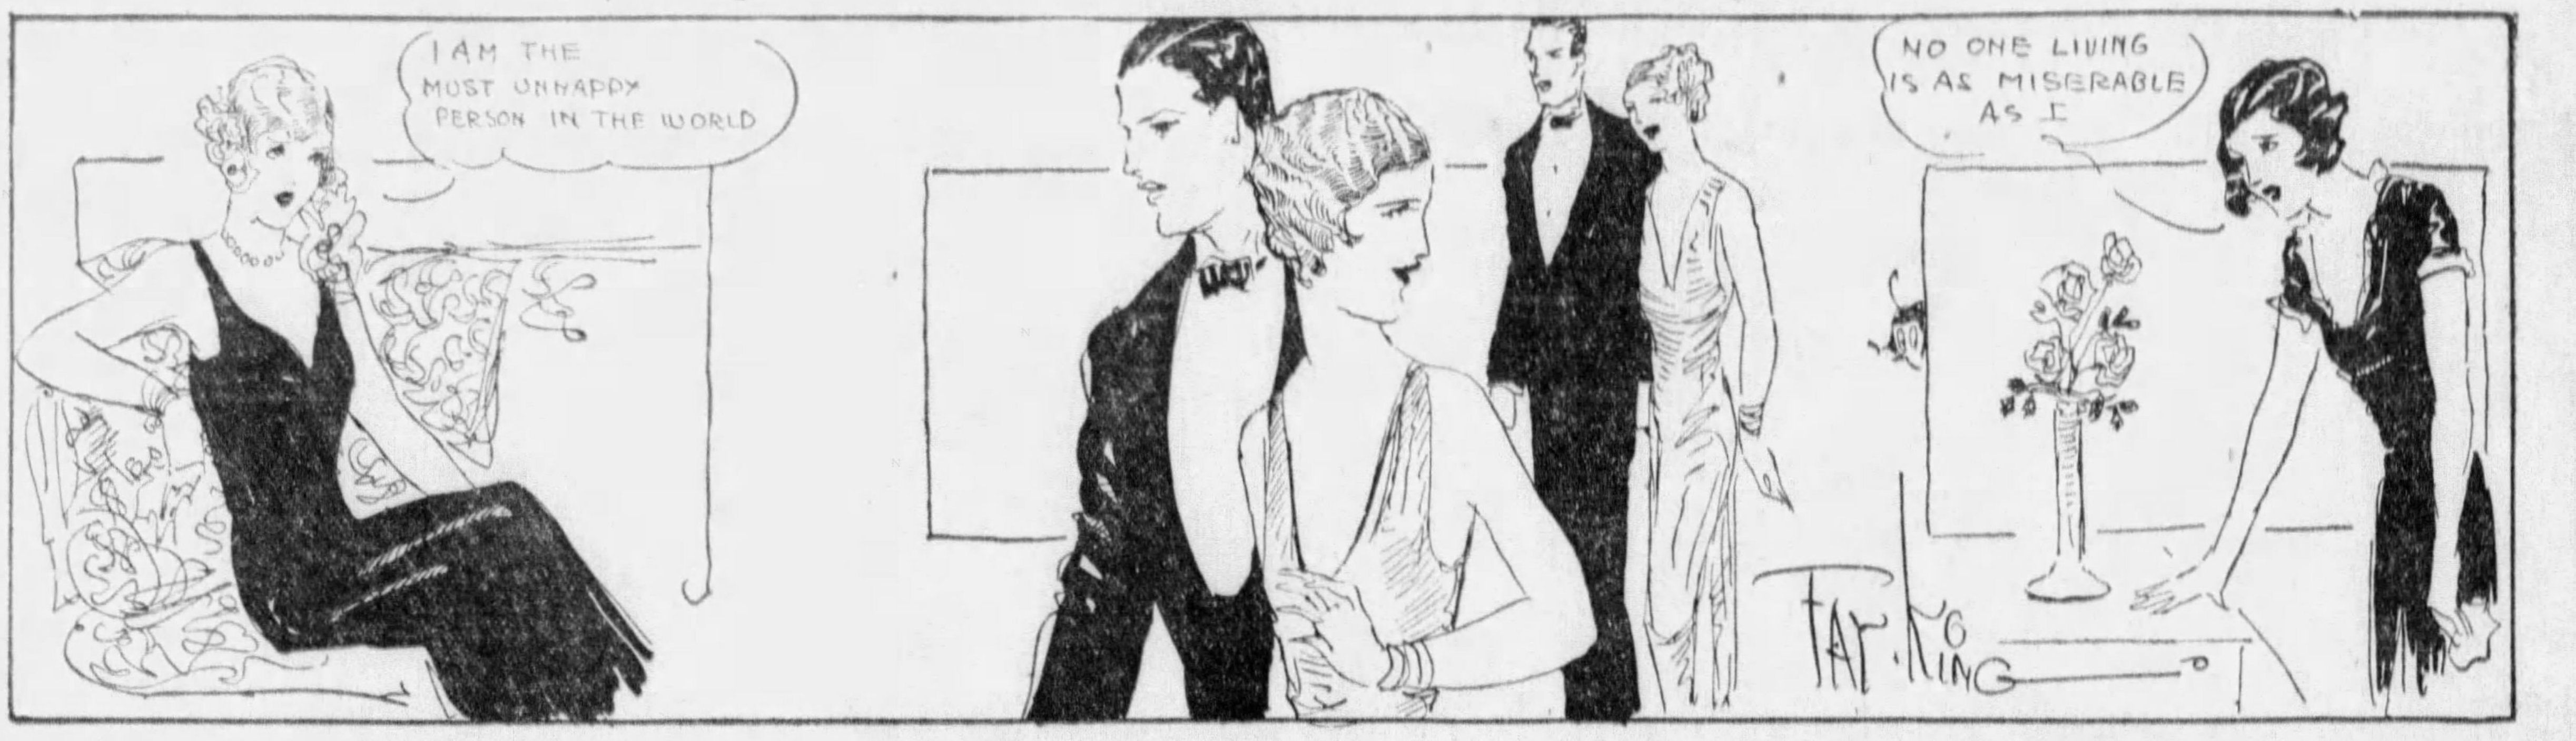
Household Hints

Dish towels should be soaked in boiling water into which a dash of soda has been sprinkled.

Wipe off the rubber rolls of the wringer with a cloth wet with gasoline and they will look like new.

If you find you have not enough fat to fry the croquettes in deep fat, don't spoil them by even trying. Put the croquettes in a greased pan and bake in a hot oven, turning so they are browned all over.

Fay King Writes About the Heartaches That Are Concealed



I AM THE MOST UNHAPPY PERSON IN THE WORLD
NO ONE LIVING IS AS MISERABLE AS I
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

We see groups of persons all well-dressed and apparently gay and we begin to think that they have all the lucky breaks in life.

We do not stop to consider that we see them only on public parade where all heartaches are carefully concealed.

They, too, have their cares, worries, dark hours. No one shouts moods of misery to the world.

If we could know every other heart, as we know our own, self-pity would disappear. We would know then that it is not our heart alone that sinks to depths of despair and dungeons of discouragement.

The rich, beautiful and successful also know their times of tears and unhappiness. No one living is entirely happy.

Those who seem more content are only braver.

Katie Falls in Line With Madge's New Plans

I might have known how my faithful little maid would react to my news of an extra guest for dinner, and the necessity of changing her plans. Never since she first came to work for me have I known her to flinch or be temperamental at extra work. Fly into tantrums she will, on what sometimes appears to be no provocation at all; but when anything really vital is at stake, Katie is what Dicky calls "all to the mustard."

She gave my announcement the tribute of widened eyes and a relieved grin.

"Ees dot all?" she asked carelessly. "Dot nuddings to feex. You shoost vait till I get paper und pencil und sit down und find out vot you vant. Ven he cooming?"

"In about three hours."

"Shucks! Dot's easy as poonkin pie. Me, I kin get oop eight course dinner in tree hours. Now tell me vot I feex."

It was no idle boast she had made; I knew that. And it was with a sense of relief that I settled back in my chair while she went to the kitchen desk, bringing back pencil and paper, and sat down in a chair opposite mine.

MENU ARRANGED

"First ting," she said, with an assurance born of many culinary conferences with me, "dose special tomato cocktails und little gowapes in living room."

I nodded, not trusting myself to speak, so mirth-provoking do I always find Katie's attempt to pronounce the word "canapes".

"Vot you vant in dem tings," she went on; "dose black fresh eggs?"

"Caviare, yes, but not alone," I told her. "Fix them the way you did the last time, with cream cheese and finely grated onion, and serve them on crisp crackers instead of toasted rounds."

"I know," she said. "Den oysters, don't you tink, or clams? Vich?"

"Oysters," I decided, with remembrance of Philip Veritzen's gastronomic tastes. "Then that cream of mushroom soup you make so deliciously."

"Yah; I got dot down pretty fine," Katie assented largely. "Now, vot for main course?"

"A chicken pie will be just the thing, Katie. Then we'll have mashed potatoes and lima beans and asparagus tips with butter sauce, and a combination salad."

"Und for desert we have dot apple fluff dot Meester Veritzen like, und den a bit of cheese und some toasted crackers, und coffee in living room."

"That will be a wonderful dinner," I said, "but, Katie dear, it will be a great deal of work."

"Ven you ever know me keeck at vork?" she asked loftily, but with truth. "Und dees be noddings. Ve pretty near ready for vedding anyvays—house all clean all but final doosting from cellar to attic—und ven dey feenish dot stairway, all decorations dey oop. Dees silver polishing all vot yet to do, und dot Jeem kin feenish dot easy ven he get troo roosting mit sheekens."

She gave an irrepressible little giggle, knowing, as I did, that Jim would be back in harness as soon as I should leave the kitchen.

"So you see," she went on, "all I have to do now ees to cook und serve dot dinner. Don't worry. I feex. But I don't use best napkins for Meester Veritzen. Dose all ready for day after tomorrow, ven vedding coom along."

KATIE READY

"Of course not," I told her, rising. Then, as the savory smell of the stew came to my nostrils, I added, "It's too bad we can't use that stew."

"I'll bet dot Meester Veritzen he like it shoost as vell as sheekens," she said, "but old vomans she tie herself oop in stitches all ofer house eef ve serve stew to Meester Veritzen."

"What will you do with the stew, Katie?" I asked hurriedly, to stop the ribald comment upon Philip Veritzen which I knew was trembling upon her tongue, and which I wished neither to condone nor reprove.

"You no need to ask dot, mit Meester Hank und Meester Beel coming from school tomorrow. Und Mees Marion und Mees Carolyn and Meester Ronald und Meester Bob? Dey all hollow down to deir shoes. Und no vunder! School cooking!" Her voice dripped contempt. "I serve me dot stew for loonch tomorrow, und you see dose youngsters go to it. Now, don't you worry one bit more. You see flowers on table; dot's all. I feex."

Scarlet Fever Danger Lies in Complications

Scarlet fever is a dreaded disease, and like diphtheria, is a dangerous one because of its serious complications. The child who recovers from it may bear many scars through life as a result of this infection. Ear complications, heart disease and kidney disease are a few of the dreaded complications of scarlet fever.

Not all children contract scarlet fever. This is probably due to a natural immunity or protection against the disease. Others are extremely susceptible to the infection and if exposed to the germs of scarlet fever will surely contract it.

The majority of people have heard about the "Schick test," which determines whether a child is susceptible to diphtheria. But few are familiar with the "Dick test," which is a similar test for scarlet fever. Unfortunately, too few persons take advantage of these great contributions of modern science. They do not avail themselves of the protection and security made possible by these tests.

By means of the Dick test, it is possible to determine whether the child is susceptible to scarlet fever. The test is simple and painless, consisting of hardly more than a slight pinprick of the skin of the arm. A tiny drop of a solution is injected. If this area becomes markedly reddened it is called a "positive" reaction and its presence means that if the child is exposed to the disease he will contract it.

When the Dick test is "positive," it is advisable that the child receive inoculation of scarlet fever vaccine. This vaccine is a preventive against scarlet fever and though not entirely successful in all instances, it is believed to be of great value in the majority of cases.

Bear in mind that scarlet fever is an extremely contagious and serious disease of childhood. It is a disease that requires expert medical attention and must never be neglected. Too often the disease is overlooked and the doctor is not called.

This is dangerous, since great damage may occur to the muscles of the heart, or the disease may involve the kidneys. In addition, neglect of the disease and failure to take the necessary precautions will lead to the spread of the disease to other children.

The victim of this disease must be isolated from all other children. The child should be kept in one room away from others and quarantined from four to six weeks. Neglect of this simple precaution may lead to a serious spread or epidemic of scarlet fever.

Here's the way to tell if you have Acid Stomach

You Can Get Rid of it Quickly!

The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness
Neuralgia
Auto-intoxication
Frequent Headaches
Feeling of Weakness
Loss of Appetite
Indigestion
Nausea
Sleeplessness
Mouth Acidity
Sour Stomach

WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Some 80% of the people of today have Acid Stomach, according to many authorities! This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," "biliousness," are the usual indications. So you can easily tell if you have Acid Stomach.

You Can Quickly And Easily Correct It

But if you do have it, don't worry about it. Today it can be corrected in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid.

What This Does

That's all you do. But do it regularly. EVERY DAY.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy you feel.

Everywhere people are doing this—doctors advocating it. Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips'" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

"FOR TWO YEARS this navy blue and white print, which cost only $2.98 to start with, has been washed in Chipso without any fading," Mrs. Baker says happily.

Chipso washing has saved this blue and white print for MONTHS MORE of sturdy wear since Helen inherited it from an older playmate.

"Chipso's SAFETY FOR COLORS," says Mrs. Baker, "is shown by the clear tones of this coral cotton crepe trimmed with darker silk cross-stitch rabbits."

"This shell-pink, fine lawn dress had received A LOT OF WEAR AND CHIPSO WASHING before Mildred began on it," Mildred's mother says.

20 TIMES, at least, this suit has come back from a Chipso washing minus the grimed-in dirt but with its blue checks as saucy as ever.

SABRA HELEN MILDRED MRS. O. E. BAKER EDWIN

"Chipso keeps even 'hand-me-downs' good looking" this progressive mother finds

Brand new clothes truly are a rare experience to the four young Bakers of Chevy Chase, Md. For as soon as Helen has outgrown a dress, here is Sabra ready for it. Thanks to safe Chipso washing, the older children's baby clothes were still good for Edwin and Mildred when they came along. Even Helen inherits from older playmates, since theirs is a cooperative neighborhood.

Mrs. Baker likes CHIPSO because for seven years it has helped her to subordinate the clothes problem.

She finds that Chipso's quick, rich suds take dirt out of grimy play clothes without the hard rubbing that wears materials thin. And Chipso keeps colors looking bright and new because it does its fast work with RICHER SUDS instead of with harsh ingredients that are hard on colors.

"We do every bit of our big washing at home and everything goes into Chipso suds," declares Mrs. Baker. "The children's sweaters and my blankets come out of a Chipso wash soft as down. The colored clothes stay bright and the white clothes are really white.

"I keep a big glass pickle jar full of Chipso on the kitchen sink for dishes, too, and we always use Chipso for scrubbing. Chipso takes up grease, yet it is as soft as a toilet soap on my hands."

Chipso is not adulterated with the harsh substances contained in inferior soaps which gradually weaken fabrics and dull their color. Chipso loosens dirt harmlessly by RICHER SUDS. That is why Chipso-washed clothes stay new-looking for years.

Don't endanger the clothes you have spent good money for by washing them in cheap flakes or strong granulated soaps and powders. Get Chipso from your grocer. At its low price, Chipso is the biggest value in rich safe soap on the market today!

Carnegie Tech and Notre Dame meet on the gridiron for the eleventh time at the Stadium Saturday. With Notre Dame held to a scoreless tie by Kansas in its opening game and rallying to beat Indiana by only 12-2, last Saturday, the fans are wondering just what sort of a team Coach Hunk Anderson will bring here tomorrow. Here are two shots from the Indiana game, together with a closeup of one of the stars of the Irish, a powerful senior tackle. These are International News Photograph Service pictures.

IRISH OFFENSE DUE TO CLICK SATURDAY

Andy Pilney

Carnegie Tech's football team already has made quite a reputation for itself as a strong defensive aggregation. Temple University could not get near the Tartan goal line in the game here, and Xavier University, with a hard-driving attack, was unable to penetrate Plaid soil further than the 40-yard line. A fast-charging forward wall, led by Bunny Burzio, former all-W. P. I. A. L. guard at Jeannette High School, now on the crippled list, has been the answer to the Skibos' rugged defensive play so far.

It remains to be seen how Coach Don Lovewell's forwards will stand up against one of the strongest offenses in the country at the Stadium on Saturday. Despite the fact that Notre Dame could not make any sustained drives against Kansas in the Irish opener, and scored only two touchdowns against Indiana last Saturday, there is no doubt that Hunk Anderson has the backs and the blockers to go places once his machine gains momentum. Notre Dame gained 300 yards against Indiana, and Carnegie fears that the whole team will be just ready to click here.

Andy Pilney and Don Elser are the newest Irish threats, and when two sophomores are good enough to edge such stars as Nick Lukats and Steve Banas out of the lineup, they must be better than ordinary. Both started to show their true ability in the Indiana game, and now that they have been tested under fire, they probably will be hard for Tech to stop.

IRISH HAVE ELUSIVE RUNNER IN PILNEY

Pilney is a runner on the order of Marchy Schwartz, Jack Elder and other elusive Notre Dame left halfbacks of previous years. He weighs only 170 pounds, but his change of pace is said to rate with the best that any other Irish halfback of recent years has had.

Elser weighs 215 pounds and is well proportioned. He is said to be built much on the order of Murray Armentrout, Carnegie's tall captain of a few years ago, though, of course, he is much larger than Armentrout. Elser has speed not usually found in such a frame and reports have that when he is under way it is almost impossible to bring him down.

And if Pilney and Elser can't get going, Anderson can turn to Lukats and Banas. Not a pleasant prospect for the Plaid.

GIBSON PRAISED FOR SCORNING ALIBIS

In admitting that George Gibson was the victim of circumstances to a great extent this year, and also pointing out that six other National League cities would have been glad to finish as high as Pittsburgh did, an old ball player says that one of the traits he admires in the Pirate manager is that Gibby never stoops to alibis, but takes the bumps of the fates without a whimper.

The observing old-timer calls attention to the fact that Gibson had plenty of ground on which to explain the Pirate pennant failure as having been due to no fault of his own. To Lloyd Waner's off year, the protracted early slump of Lindstrom and the sour pitching and catching, he adds the loss of hitting form by the outfield just when the hurlers went bad, and the fact that Earl Grace, the main prop behind the bat, was out of commission for two long spells by reason of a leg infection, with a consequent bogging down of the club.

Any one of these items might have accounted for the narrow margin of five games by which the Bucs lost the pennant, and the vet contends that all the more credit is due Gibson because he took his misfortune without a murmur.

BUC PILOT ALWAYS PIRATE AT HEART

At that, it's a safe bet that the loss of the pennant was no harder for the most rabid Pirate rooter to take than for Gibson himself. With the solitary exception of Connie Mack, who has led the A's through 33 campaigns, no other manager in the big show has been part of his city's baseball picture as long as Gibson has been part of Pittsburgh's, and none of them has a greater heart interest in his team.

Apart from the present managerial side, Gibby is heart and soul with the Pirates, and has been for the greater part of 28 years, or ever since he came here from the Montreal club on July 2, 1905, to join Heinie Peitz and Fred Carisch on a catching corps that had been reduced by the failure of Harry Smith to report. He has had other engagements in the meantime, but at heart he always has been a Pirate. Long-service men develop a feeling for a town and a club that make them particularly valuable to that city. Max Carey, Wilbur Cooper and others never were quite so good after they left Pittsburgh. The extra zeal assured in Gibby's case, some-

TEREBUS TECH HOPE AGAINST NOTRE DAME

Howard Harpster has just about decided to entrust the important left halfback job at Carnegie Tech to the smallest boy on his squad for the biggest game of the year. When Notre Dame and the Tartans square off Saturday at the Pitt Stadium at 2:00 o'clock Steve Terebus, Johnstown, Pa. sophomore, probably will hold down the job filled in the past by Dutch Eyth, Murray Armentrout, Bill Donohoe, and other Tartan heroes of yore.

Terebus is one of the smallest boys playing college football today. He weighs an even 148 pounds and stands slightly over five feet five inches in height. He was a brilliant performer at Johnstown High, but he didn't get much of a tumble on the Tartan Plebe team two years ago because of his size.

MADE FINE COMEBACK

Discouraged, he neglected his studies, and had to leave school. He returned the second semester last year, attended summer school, and regained his eligibility.

Steve came fast in training camp last fall, and soon was pressing Bill Spisak and Owen Bowser, Plebe flash last year, for a regular position.

Johnny Sayles, senior fullback, who has been hampered by injuries much of his career at Tech, will likely draw the fullback assignment over Joe Mihm. Harpster figures his backfield carries more offensive threats with these two boys in action.

CROFT TO PUNT

With Sayles at fullback, Croft will be pulled out of the line to do the punting. His kicking showed a great improvement at Cincinnati.

The Plaid may have to go into the battle with the Irish minus the services of Bunny Burzio, star guard. Burzio has been suffering from a strained back, and was ordered from practice last evening and placed under the care of a physician. In the event he is unable to start, Henry Dreshar will get the call.

Graduate Manager Buddy Overend desires to call the attention of the fans to the fact that there are no general admission tickets on sale for the game. All seats are reserved, even the lower priced ones.

TARTAN PLAYS FOOL IRISH

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Carnegie Tech's offense and defense as displayed by a strong Notre Dame reserve team, stopped the Irish varsity yesterday in scrimmage.

The reserves completed two long passes for touchdowns to defeat the regulars, 13 to 0.

It was a big shock to Coach Hunk Anderson and he kept the varsity out an extra hour to drill on fundamentals and lecture on the poor blocking and tackling. The squad leaves for Pittsburgh tomorrow morning.

Amateurs to Box At McKeesport

STREET SIGNS WITH BELLS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Joseph Bearwald, president of the San Francisco Mission Baseball Club of the Pacific Coast League, announced he had signed Charles (Gabby) Street, who managed the St. Louis Cardinals when they won the world championship in 1931, to manage the Mission Club.

Bearwald said Street accepted terms offered him recently and will leave his home in Joplin, Mo., soon to start organizing the Pacific Coast club for the 1934 season. The Missions' president did not disclose the salary involved.

Street broke into baseball at Jacksonville, Ky., in 1900. For several years he played semi-pro ball and then went to the old Central League, getting brief trials with Boston and Cincinnati before coming to San Francisco as a catcher for the Seals.

Joining the Washington Americans in 1908, Street served as a big league catcher four years. He was the regular receiver for Walter Johnson.

Street made the rounds of the minor leagues after the war until he was called to the St. Louis Cardinals as a coach. In 1930 he succeeded to the managership of the club. Under his leadership the Cardinals won the National League pennant two consecutive years and became world champions in 1931. Street severed his connection with the Cards early this year because of differences with President Sam P. Breadon.

IRISH TO KEEP ANDERSON

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—Reports that Heartley (Hunk) Anderson would be displaced as coach at Notre Dame at the close of the current season were discounted here today with press announcements from Lafayette, Ind., which said that Noble Kizer, former Irish star and now coach at Purdue, stated that he had not received any offer from his alma mater. Kizer said:

"I must emphatically deny this. I would not leave Purdue under any circumstances. Coach Anderson and myself have been friends for a long time and I would not do anything that would jeopardize the feeling of cordiality between us."

SMITH SURPRISED

SANTA CLARA, Cal., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—Maurice J. (Clipper) Smith, Santa Clara University football coach, said that no overtures had been made to him regarding replacing H. W. (Hunk) Anderson at Notre Dame. He said:

"I'm surprised. I don't see why I should be considered as there are 50 Notre Dame men with better coaching records than mine. Also I'm embarrassed, because I think Anderson should be given a better chance; he hasn't lost any games this year, and he's one of my best friends."

DUKES PRIMED FOR BIG TEST TOMORROW

By JESS CARVER

Gus Dorais, famous Notre Dame quarterback, coach of the Titans of the University of Detroit, will arrive here with his invading football squad early this afternoon. The Detroit team hopes to smash the winning streak of Duquesne University's Dukes at Forbes Field tomorrow night.

The Detroit squad will comprise more than three teams. Headquarters will be established at Webster Hall and arrangements have been made for a workout under the lights tonight in Forbes Field.

TITANS HAVE EDGE

The Titans will have a 10-pound advantage per man in line and backfield. The weight edge, coupled with the speed of the invaders and their knowledge of the Notre Dame system, also employed by Duquesne, will make tomorrow's game the Dukes' biggest test so far this season.

Gus Dorais is pinning his hopes on his two backfield stars, Dick Lutz and Douglas Nott, the all-around talent of his ball-carriers and passers and a surprisingly effective running attack. The Dukes sent Joe Bach and Buff Donnelli to scout the Titans and their report failed to quiet the jangled nerves of Head Coach Elmer Layden.

The 1933 Dukes have one big advantage over last year. The team spirit and the will-to-win is there in abundance. That spirit may bring the Red and Blue through tomorrow and help right up until the time of the Pitt game, when they meet their biggest test of the schedule.

Secrecy again veiled the movements of the Dukes on a wet campus gridiron yesterday. Elmer Layden plans to use his regular eleven, injuries have not made any shifts necessary and the casting of Jim McDonald in a fullback role is regarded as a good stroke.

Goal Lines

Coach Bill Amos dispelled any notions his Grove City College players might have that they are good, at a brisk drill yesterday when he pointed out glaring faults they had shown in winning from Edinboro. In outlining a strenuous week of work, he pointed out that Grove City has not yet faced a Conference rival, and that the real test will not come until the last half of the season.

Imbued with confidence derived from an untied and undefeated record to date, the Geneva College gridders are confident that they can regain the Tri-State Conference championship when they oppose the Yellow Jackets of Waynesburg at Reeves Stadium here tomorrow evening. The Geneva record at this time numbers victories over California Teachers, West Virginia Wesleyan, Thiel and Westminster.

In 1930 Geneva won the Conference crown with Howard Harpster and Don Lovewell, the current Tech mentors, at the helm. In 1931 the club repeated but last year Waynesburg beat Geneva 6-3 in an Armistice Day clash at Uniontown and by so doing relieved the Covenanters of their two-year grip on the title.

Although Waynesburg had little trouble winning over Bethany Saturday in its initial Conference contest, the game resulted in Adam Donnelley, quarterback and kicker, and Johnny Surdock, understudy for Rab Currie at halfback, suffering injuries which may make it impossible for them to perform against Geneva.

After a grueling afternoon workout yesterday Coach Hank Day ordered his W. & J. varsity out to College Field for a drill under floodlights last night as intensive preparation was completed for the Xavier game at Cincinnati tomorrow night. Today's drill will be only brief with light signal practice to constitute the workout. The squad, 28 or 30 strong, will entrain on a Baltimore and Ohio train tonight at 10 o'clock for Cincinnati, arriving early tomorrow morning.

GAMBLERS PLUNGE ON DOPED RACE HORSES

INSIDERS PAY WELL FOR LIVE INFORMATION

CHAPTER IX

Horse Doping

By FRANK G. MENKE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—After Ralph Oyler led the federal narcotic raiding squad at Arlington Park, Chicago, agents for the government were sent to other race meetings to gather new data relating to the possession and the use of cocaine, heroin and morphine at those places, which investigations still are being conducted.

Oyler, with the sanction of Harry Anslinger, commissioner of narcotics in Washington, consented to my accompanying him while he visited a track, conferred with the operatives, studied their day-by-day reports, and advised as to the next moves.

The agents, posing as former horsemen in quest of equine bargains, practically had the run of all the barns. Little escaped their attention because, as they put it, "only the blind would have been unable to see the 'doctoring.'"

And all of this after the Arlington raid, proving that, with the first scare over, the horsemen who drug their animals were back at it again.

Form Charts Revealing

The older of the two agents picked up a newspaper, showing the race entries for that day, indicated the name of a horse, and said to Oyler:

"They 'doctored' this one two days ago. He finished far back. Form charts said something about 'dull race.' The way I figure it is that the stuff didn't work in time—it exploded after the race. I heard last evening that they were going to 'hit' (meaning drug) him again today. They boast they won't miss this time. You might watch that horse as he parades to the post. Maybe you can tell if they 'hit' him. I can't get away from the barns to advise you, but, if there is some brisk betting on that number, you can draw your own conclusions."

The horse was around 8 to 1 in the approximate opening odds. This was cut to 5 to 1 on the next reading and then 3½ to 1. The close was about 11 to 5. This proved heavy wagering. No doubt the trainer and the stable hands had made their individual plunges and the likelihood was that a "big shot" gambler had been "tipped" and was in to make for a "cleanup."

Race track gamblers ever are seeking "live information." If a trainer will advise when he has a horse "prettied up" for a winning race, they will respond by making a wager for him. Usually they bet $100 to $250 for the owner or trainer. If the horse triumphs, the trainer or owner gets the winnings. If it loses, the trainer or owner gets a terrific verbal lacing—and sometimes a physical one. "Sure thing" gamblers dislike "shooting the works" on faulty information.

Horse Shows Effects

When the horses came out of the paddock that afternoon, Oyler, an assistant and myself put field glasses on the one named by the agent to study him as closely as possible. He was sweating profusely; his skin seemed to be twitching. He was swishing his tail, and, most obvious of all, he was snapping his head up and down, then from one side to the other with spasmodic jerks, as if trying to shake himself loose from pain or some strange sensation. Oyler pointed out:

"Those are symptoms of cocaine influence. Of course, actions like that are not infallible indications because some horses naturally are nervous and do a lot of fretting. But when a horse looks like this one, and acts like this one, and you know a big betting plunge has been made, you can just about decide he has been 'doctored.' I think the form charts tomorrow will say something about this horse running 'a greatly improved race,' and maybe the turf writers will have something to say about another 'flip-flop.' Let's look at the charts dealing with his most recent races."

Inconsistent Racing

Based upon three previous races shown in the chart, all of which described the animal as "outrun," the horse had no possible chance to win on that particular afternoon. He had been beaten when the winner's time was 1 minute 13 4-5 seconds for six furlongs (three-quarters of a mile). He lost when another winner's time was 1:14, and he was whipped by almost 30 lengths when a horse ran the distance in 1:14 1-5. Then came a discovery!

Just previous to those three contests, this same horse had won by a comfortable magin in the comparatively remarkably fast time of 1:11 4-5.

Track conditions for all four races had been the same; the weight carried by the horse was approximately equal; the jockey was the same on each occasion. Yet the horse which had won in 1:11 4-5 about three weeks earlier had been thoroughly beaten in 1:14 4-5, 1:14 and 1:13 1-5!

A horse which runs six furlongs in 1:12 is traveling at the rate of 52 4-5 feet per second. Therefore this animal which had won in 1:11 4-5 ran that day at the rate of about 53 feet per second, but averaged less than 50 feet on his three successive losing afternoons.

'Loaded' Animal Wins

Which meant—what? Oyler said:

"Dope perhaps is your answer. They probably had him loaded and the drug exploded at the proper time on the day he ran in 1:11 4-5. The other three days were afternoons when they let him run without drugs, or when the cocaine didn't 'hit' him at the right time. So he turned in one of those 'dull performances.'"

The horse was fractious at the barrier. His wild actions held up the start. Eventually they were away. This particular animal wasn't quite prepared for the rise of the barrier and broke in a tangle. But the jockey quickly unsnarled him, gained clear passage, the animal ran as if some fiend with a thousand lashes were in pursuit, caught the leaders one by one, went to the front with a terrific burst of speed and won in 1:12—running like a wild horse at the end.

That night the agents reported to Oyler:

"They 'hit' that horse twice; once about an hour before the race and later about 10 minutes before they took him to the paddock."

The Irish of Notre Dame. Coming to play the Tartans of Carnegie Tech on the football field at the Stadium on Saturday. It will be their eleventh meeting on the gridiron.

What about the thrills of those other 10 games?

Tonight, at 7 o'clock, over WCAE, you'll hear them reviewed and paraded out of memory's pages by Max Hannum, director of athletic publicity of Carnegie, and Harry Keck, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, during the weekly program of the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The series began in 1922 and has continued annually with the exception of 1927, and Carnegie has won two of the games, in 1926 and 1928, and in 1925 gave the Ramblers the scare of their lives in a 40-19 battle.

If you like your football thrills recalled, don't fail to listen in on this broadcast.

Fight Results

At Montreal—Pete Sanstol defeated Bobby Leitham, 12 rounds; Joe Ghnouly defeated Roger Bernard, 10 rounds.

At Charleston, S. C.—Jack Kilbourne knocked out Eric Lawson, 2 rounds.

At Dusseldorf, Germany—Vincenz Hower defeated Hans Schoenrath, 12 rounds, for German heavyweight championship.

At Mt. Clemens, Mich.—Johnny Miller defeated Eddie Anderson, 8 rounds.

thing that keeps him fighting for more than his salary and personal success, is another item in favor of his retention.

NO TEN-SECOND MEN ON GRID, SAYS DORAIS

Quite often you hear of a football player in some part of the country who is said to be able to run 100 yards in 10 seconds while wearing full gridiron equipment. But according to Gus Dorais, head coach at the University of Detroit, and Notre Dame's quarterback in the playing days of Knute Rockne, there "ain't no such animal."

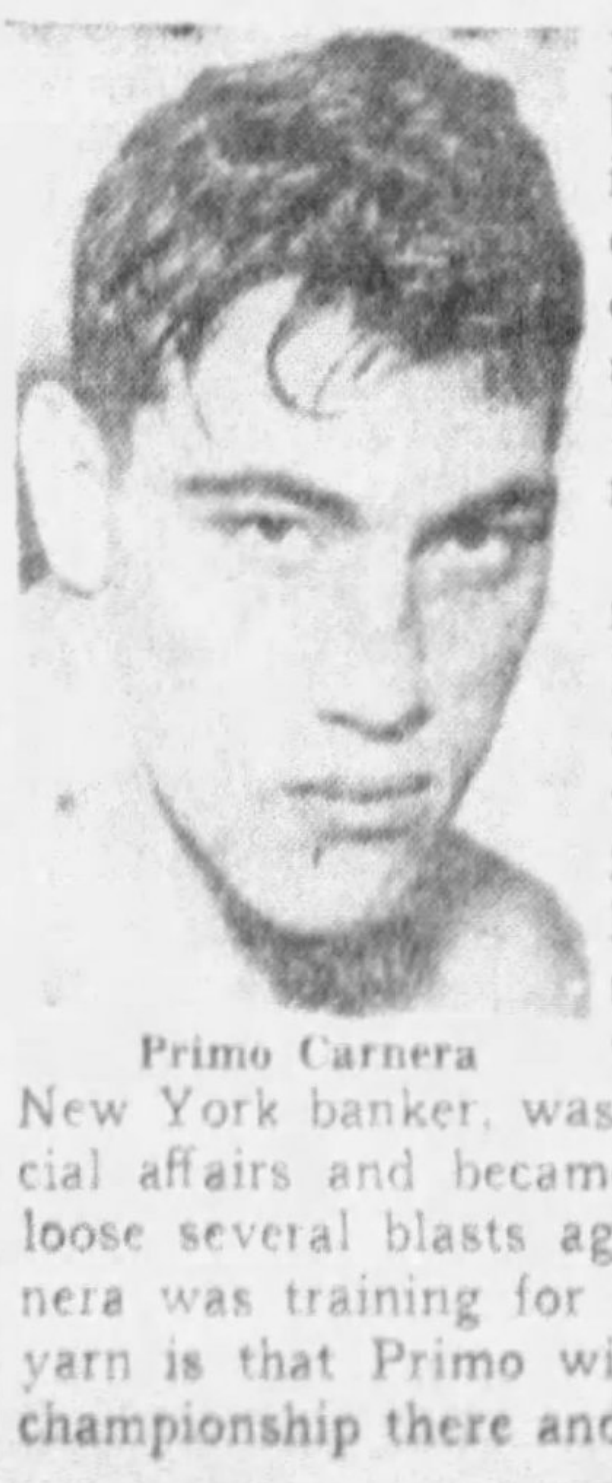
Gus Dorais

Dorais, who will bring his Detroit team to Pittsburgh for a battle with the Dukes at Forbes Field tomorrow night, doesn't believe the man ever lived who could put on football shoes and suit and run the hundred in ten flat. Gus says he never knew of one who was timed accurately, and insists that no matter how great a player's natural gifts of speed may be, the handicaps are too severe for him to get away with the feat in question. Not only would the athlete be weighted down by extra heavy shoes and clothes, but he would have to run on grass.

If a man were able to run 100 yards under those conditions in even 12 seconds, Dorais would call him the exception. Anyhow, Gus argues, even if there were 10-second men, or nine-second men, or eight-second men, they wouldn't help a great deal in football. The pigskin sport is a game of five-yard and 10-yard sprints, and coaches look for the man who is quick on the get-away rather than for one of sustained speed.

RUMORED CARNERA MAY STAY IN EUROPE

If some of the big boxing men in the East know what they are talking about, there is a strong chance that Primo Carnera will not return to the United States after his "defense" of the world heavyweight championship in a 15-round bout with the washed-up Paulino Uzcudun in Rome next Sunday. According to Wilbur Wood and others in touch with the inside workings of the Carnera syndicate, the Man Mountain will walk out on Bill Duffy, who cut himself in for a slice of Primo three years ago, when Leon See was the present titleholder's manager.



Primo Carnera

When See's contract expired, Carnera discovered that he was penniless, in spite of the hundreds of thousands of dollars he had earned. See was said to have made bad investments for his fighter. Also several of Duffy's hangers-on continuously ran up a tremendous expense bill while traveling with the Italian giant. Louis Soresi, a New York banker, was appointed to look after Primo's financial affairs and became his official manager. Soresi turned loose several blasts against Duffy and his crowd while Carnera was training for the Jack Sharkey fight, and the latest yarn is that Primo will be kept in Europe to "defend" the championship there and that Duffy will be dealt out.

PITT GRIDDERS ARRIVE IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—A visit to the Century of Progress Fair and a workout at Stagg Field was on the program today for Pitt's touring footballers, who stopped off here en route to Minneapolis, where they'll tackle Minnesota's powerful Gophers Saturday afternoon.

The Panthers arrived here early this morning and established headquarters for the day at their old stopping-off place, the Hotel Windemere. Thirty-two players are in the party, including six ends, six tackles, five guards, three centers, three quarterbacks, six halfbacks and three fullbacks. The squad will depart tonight for Minneapolis.

LINEUP SHIFTED

Prior to leaving Pittsburgh yesterday, Coach Jock Sutherland gave his charges a long workout, during which time he made three changes in the lineup. Miller Munjas was inserted into the quarterback slot in place of Bob Hogan, Heinie Weisenbaugh took Weinstock's place at fullback and Bob Hoel worked at left tackle in the stead of Meredith. This is the lineup that figures to start against the Gophers.

Following is the makeup of the Pitt squad:

Ends—Joe Skladany, Harvey Rooker, Verne Baxter, Bob Timmons, Vin Sites, Karl Seiffert.

Tackles—Bob Hoel, Frank Walton, John Meredith, Stan Olejnicsak, John Love, Art Detzel.

Guards—Doc Hartwig, Tar Onder, Frank Kutz, Ken Ormiston, Bill Glassford.

Centers—George Shotwell, Nick Kliskey, Leslie Wilkins.

Quarterbacks—Miller Munjas, Bob Hogan, Walt Balasia.

Halfbacks—Howdy O'Dell, Mike Sebastian, Hub Randour, Dick Matesic, Mike Nicksick, Leon Shedlosky.

Fullbacks—Heinie Weisenbaugh, Izzy Weinstock, Len Rector.

EXPECT 30,000 CROWD

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Pittsburgh's reputation exerted an influence on Minnesota's football boxoffice as well as the practice field yesterday.

Officials said a crowd of 30,000 or more with favorable weather, largest of the season at Memorial Stadium, was in prospect. The Gophers continued to touch up their offensive with dummy scrimmage.

PIMLICO GETS TOTALISATOR

By FRANK G. MENKE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Future wagering at the Pimlico race track, in Baltimore, will be through the totalisator machine, a fool-proof, cheat-proof device, which will supplant the old form of pari-mutuels.

There will be a private showing of the machine on Sunday, at which time its entire functioning will be described in detail. The totalisator will be used during the Pimlico race meet in November.

This contrivance, mechanically operated, insures for the race players an absolutely 100 per cent payoff, and utterly abolishes the chance of cheating.

No tickets are printed in advance of the sale. When the customer wishes a ticket, he names the horse, the seller punches a button, the machine prints it automatically, and drops it out. As each sale is made, it is recorded on a huge electrically controlled board in plain view of all players. They know, by one glance at the board, just how much money has been bet on each horse and exactly how much money is in each pool.

When the horses reach the post, the stewards, or any other delegated official, press a button which locks the machine.

When the bell rings, ending the wagering, the ticket sellers turn back to the accounting room all money realized from sale of tickets, and also all unsold tickets. Those with suspicious minds always have contended that this system permitted the possibility of error. They pointed out that the figuring wasn't completed until long after the race was run.

Swim, X-Country Entry Lists Open

Entries now are being received at A. A. U. headquarters, Vandergrift Building, for two A. M. A. championship events to be staged in November—the Pittsburgh Aquatic Club's swim at the Natatorium on November 2, and the individual and team cross-country run over the Schenley Park course on November 25.

The swim program includes senior women's 100-yard free style and low board fancy diving, and senior men's 100-yard free style.

Teams of eight men are to be entered in the cross-country test.

CLINIC TONIGHT

A basketball clinic will be held tonight in the Carnegie Library Club of Homestead. The speakers will include Chick Davies, Duquesne University coach; Bill Campbell, Homestead High coach, and Jack Scarry, coach at the Carnegie Library Club. The members of the Duquesne University varsity squad also will attend.

GRID FRAY TONIGHT

The Tarentum Firemen and the Burns A. A. meet at Parnassus this evening in a Lightweight Conference sandlot fray.

Tech Has Chance Against Irish, Steffen Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—(INS.)—Judge Walter Steffen, long-distance strategist, of the Carnegie Tech football team, today said the Pittsburgh eleven has the best chance of whipping Notre Dame Saturday it has had in four years. He added:

"Notre Dame hasn't got that hard-smashing, knockdown type of game that has marked the Irish teams of the past."

He scouted Notre Dame Saturday in the Indiana game, and will be on the bench with Howard Harpster Saturday in Pittsburgh.

POP APPROVES FIVE DOWNS SUGGESTION

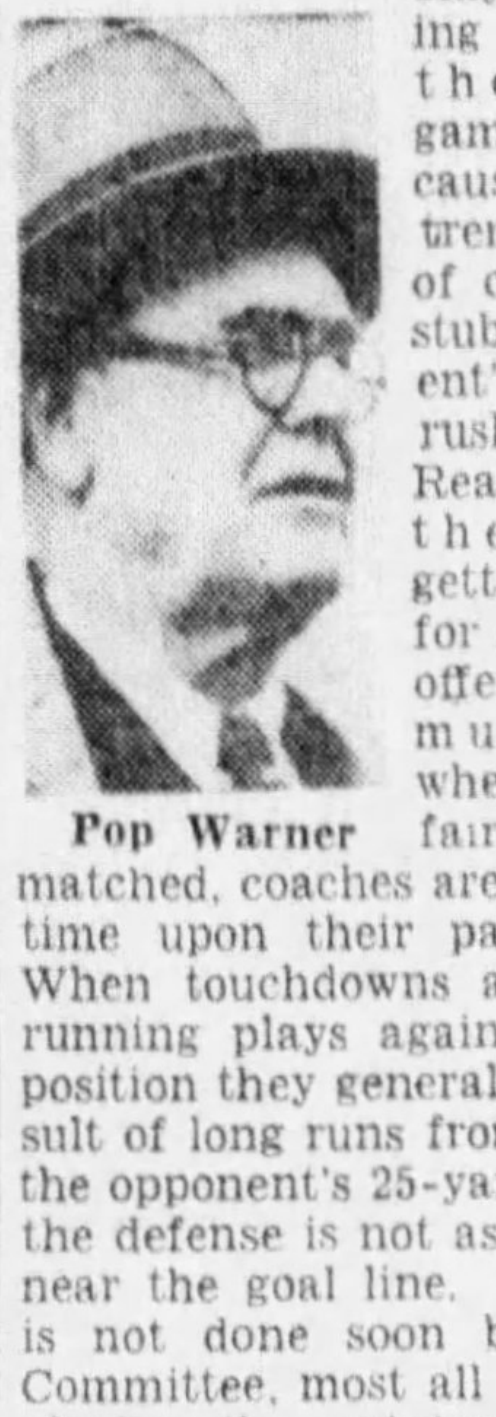
More games have been won by the forward pass route to date than ever before. This is due not only to the growing cleverness in the passing game, but because of the extreme difficulty of crossing a stubborn opponent's goal by a rushing attack. Realizing that the defense is getting too strong for a ball-toteing offense to make much headway where teams are fairly evenly matched, coaches are putting more time upon their passing attack. When touchdowns are scored by running plays against tough opposition they generally are the result of long runs from out beyond the opponent's 25-yard line, where the defense is not as tight as it is near the goal line. If something is not done soon by the Rules Committee, most all teams will be playing the uninteresting "Punt, Pass and Prayer" game.



Pop Warner

NEW PLAN SUGGESTED

While I believe that the best way to encourage the rushing game, and also to more often insure a victory for the better team and somewhat de-emphasize the elements of luck in football, is to award one point for each first down in addition to the present methods of scoring, another interesting suggestion which is worthy of consideration by the Rules Committee, has lately been made. Dink Templeton, a former Stanford player and now an able critic of the game, calls attention to the growing impotency of the offense against the modern defense, and suggests that five downs be allowed the offensive team instead of the present four downs.

Most teams kick on fourth down regardless of the distance to gain except when near the opponent's goal line, so that an average of more than three yards has to be made on three consecutive plays to gain the required distance. With five downs the average distance to be gained before being forced to kick would be two and one-half yards on four consecutive plays.

FIVE DOWNS ADVISED

Templeton suggests that the fifth down be used only for kicking. This would permit the use of the fourth down for a try at gaining the required distance without the severe penalty of having to surrender the ball at the spot if the try failed.

I would add to that suggestion the exception that if the ball was within the opponent's 25-yard line the fifth down could be used for any kind of a play, because a punt then is of no great advantage and the extra down is needed near the opponent's goal more than when it is far away from the goal, where the defense has to be more open. Certainly something should be done to encourage more rushing, and this five-down idea looks to have considerable merit.

Judging from the games thus far played, Colgate, Pittsburgh, Princeton, Fordham, Columbia and Syracuse are going to be about the best teams in the East. It is almost certain that one of these half dozen teams will be returned the Eastern champion.

Names in News

TED YAROSZ, Monaca middleweight title claimant, will be the guest of honor at a testimonial banquet at the Travelers' Hotel, in East Liverpool, O., tonight.

KLEIN, at end, MACHLOWITZ, at fullback, and WALZ, at tackle, stood out in yesterday's practice session as New York University drilled against Colgate plays in New York.

FRANK HAAS, rangy end, was advanced to the Purdue varsity eleven as the Boilermakers took steps to strengthen their forward passing attack for the game with Chicago University in Chicago Saturday.

VERNON HUFFMAN, star sophomore halfback, has been declared definitely out of the game with Northwestern Saturday by the Indiana University team physician.

COL. JACOB RUPPERT, owner of the New York Yankees, stated in New York that while high-priced BABE RUTH may be the next manager of the Yanks, he'll have to wait at least two years, as the contract of JOE McCARTHY, present manager, has that long to run.

CONNIE MACK, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, announced that MICKEY COCHRANE, veteran catcher, would remain with the A's in 1934 unless present plans were changed, thus spiking a rumor that COCHRANE will manage the Detroit Tigers.

MASS MEETING PLANNED

The student body of South High School has joined in the movement to obtain an athletic field and gymnasium for South High School, sponsored by leading business men of the community. A mass meeting will be held within the next two weeks, it was said today, for the purpose of organizing a permanent committee to push the project.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The Office Wise Guy says Pitt is playing Centre in two weeks so it will know when it reaches the middle of its schedule.

The most important factor in effective football play is good blocking . . . The cheers may go to the men who carry the ball or throw the forward passes or kick the goals, but none of them would get anywhere without the aid of first grade blocking, which means taking the defense out of the play to pave the way for the execution of the maneuver . . . Howard Harpster, Carnegie Tech's coach, illustrated this aptly when he said that, in last week's 3-0 squeeze over Xavier at Cincinnati, Tech failed to score other than by a field goal because his men were not "knocking anybody down." . . . That's a hard way of putting it, but it is true that no football team can go places unless it goes seriously about its work and knocks down the opposition . . . Standing around waiting for the other fellow to do it results in those drab, punchless, scoreless affairs.

Minneapolis is not the name of a Greek restaurant, but the place where Pitt plays Minnesota on Saturday . . . A news service is canvassing sports writers for their opinions of an all-time all-America backfield . . . How about Mose Kelsch and three other fellows? . . . Sammy Mandell, former lightweight champion, turned down a bout with Joey Speigal at Clarksburg, W. Va., when he learned Joey is a southpaw. Incidentally, the reason Mandell is continuing to box these days is because he is property poor . . . He owns some of the choicest bits of real estate in Rockford, Ill., his home town, and has to fight to pay the taxes to keep from losing the property.

Army plays Illinois in the Cleveland Stadium, Saturday . . . Penn and Dartmouth furnish an Eastern feature at Philadelphia . . . Bunny Burzio, the most consistent player on the Carnegie Tech line this fall, hails from Jeannette, Pa. . . . Pete Zaremba, of the Beaver Valley, 6-foot-3 tackle of the New York University team, probably will wind up being a sports writer . . . He's the intercollegiate hammer-throwing champion already.

Frank Klaus, former middleweight champion, whose Jimmy Belmont boxes Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, in the main bout at the Moose Temple next Monday night, recently saw a wrestling show in Camden, N. J., and came away a mat bug . . . He thinks grunters and groaners earn their pay by the manner in which they toss each other about with such reckless abandon . . . Probably reminds him of the rough and tumble days when he was biffing it out with the likes of Eddie McGoorty, Stanley Ketchel, Billy Papke and those other tough babies.

Bill Tracey, Klaus' neighbor, who was the bankroll man behind the Ted Yarosz-Vince Dundee show at Forbes Field, was a big winner on the recent world series . . . He had the Giants in three of their four winning games, couldn't get a bet on the only game Washington won and laid off the last game entirely. . . . But he wasn't so smart. . . . He thought the Senators would win what proved to be the final game and would wind up the series in New York, so he left his automobile there and had to go back by train to get it. —HARRY KECK.

SOCCER LEAGUE CARD HEAVY

The revamped Central District Soccer League swings into action on Saturday afternoon, eight clubs finding action in the new schedule. The best game of the day brings the Union Switch and Signal and Arsenal teams together in Lawrenceville.

Beltzhoover and Carnegie will tangle, with Joe Luxbacher handling Carnegie, and Fritz [illegible]issmann looking after the interests of Beltzhoover.

Other games in the Central League find Aliquippa crossing the bridge and meeting Ambridge and the Dunwicks facing the Rovers in another Lawrenceville tilt, which appears to indicate that Lawrenceville is coming back as a soccer center.

JOHN CONNOLLY LOCAL HURLER OF PROMISE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Another prize baby is ready to crawl out of Allegheny County's cradle of baseball and shift for himself. This time it is a pitcher and one who bids fair to match the deeds of Al Mamaux, Steve Swetonic, John Miljus, Bill Doak, Elmer Knetzer, Jim Shaw, et al.

John Connolly

The latest member of the district diamond colony is John Charles Connolly, of Duquesne. John reached 21 only this month, but he did a man's size job for the Springfield (O.) club of the Mid-Atlantic League the past season. Working under the guiding influence of Jake Pitler, once a Pirate second-sacker, Connolly won 13 and lost 10 games. His team finished fifth.

John was sent to Springfield by the Pirates after a Pittsburgh scout had followed him around the local sandlot belt. Connolly was a star for the Ferris Club of the North Side. He also pitched around the lots of Duquesne while he attended Holy Name High School.

The new Bucco has the hall-marks of a slab star. He is [illegible] feet two inches in height and scales around 170. Veteran members of the Pittsburgh club who saw him in action predict big things for him.

Connolly, one of six children, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Connolly, of 1408 Kennedy avenue, Duquesne. His dad is a locomotive engineer for the Carnegie Steel Company at Duquesne, and he'll take the engine out on the main line if his boy makes big league grade.

JENKINS DEFEATED

The Brookline Merchants football team defeated the Jenkins eleven, 7 to 0, yesterday, McCurdy passing to Early for touchdown in the second period.

STOCKS PIERCE SUPPORT LEVELS

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Financial markets were afflicted with chills and fever again today, and, despite intermittent tonics, nervous sinking spells were frequent.

Several stocks displayed resistance to selling pressure at times, but the majority were inclined to slip to levels that, in some instances, violated the support figures of the chartists. The rails and a few industrials were rather heavy. There was an attempt to rally prices after noon, but the trading volume continued largest on the downturn. Grains and cotton sagged a bit. The dollar was a little reactionary in foreign exchange transactions. United States government securities were firm, but other bonds were hesitant.

There was some increase in short selling reported, but the total is still considered too low for the "safety cushion" which most brokers believe necessary for a healthy market. That the short account has not grown to any great extent in past weeks is indicated by the fact that no important listed issue is now lending at a premium.

Although some commission houses were enveloped in gloom, and there were the usual whispers of large blocks of leading stocks "over-hanging," industrialists were cheered by nine-months' earnings reports of several of the larger corporations which are now beginning to make their appearance. Profits of several of the companies were substantially ahead of the same period last year.

Various financial observers, in estimating the domestic business advance during 1933, hold that the recovery movement is not only apparent in the United States, but that trade in other parts of the world is showing decided improvement. In Great Britain, for instance, they find that economic recovery is exceeding expectations, unemployment is decreasing and gains are being recorded by railway, steel, coal, iron, cotton, electric, motor, wool, hosiery, pottery and shoe industries. Several British economists, it is said, are now convinced that the upturn is the beginning of a permanent advance.

Wall Street, notwithstanding the scattered rays of business sunshine, was still highly confused regarding currency stabilization possibilities and international affairs. The banking section, however, feels that, owing to numerous complications both here and abroad, Washington will be unable to announce any definite monetary policy in the immediate future.

COTTON WEAK UNDER SALES

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 3 to 5 lower under scattered selling, and on the decline in foreign exchange. October, 8.97; December, 9.14; January, 9.18; March, 9.35; May, 9.46; July, 9.60.

Offerings were not particularly heavy, but there was comparatively little demand, with December selling off to 9.06 and May to 9.40 right after the call, or about 9 to 10 points net lower.

The decline was checked at this level by buying of July through brokers with Wall street connections. December rallied to 9.17 and May to 9.49, or back to about yesterday's closing quotations.

At the end of the first half hour, December was holding around 9.10 and May 9.45, or about 5 to 6 points net lower.

The market steadied slightly in the morning on reports of partial rallies in the wheat and stock markets, while trade demand seemed to be a little more in evidence. General business remained qniet, however, and the market at midday was dull with December selling around 9.14 and May, 9.47, or about 2 to 3 points net lower.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 19.—Cotton, no receipts, spot good business done; prices unchanged; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 6.13; good middling 5.83; strict middling 5.63; middling 5.48; strict low middling 5.33; low middling 5.08; strict good ordinary 4.88; good ordinary 4.58. Futures closed quiet and steady. October, 5.29; December, 5.28; January, 5.29; March, 5.32; May, 5.36; July 5.39.

Westinghouse Electric Reduces Net Loss

WESTINGHOUSE ELECTRIC and Manufacturing Company reduced its net loss for the third quarter of the year in comparison with the previous quarter as well as with the corresponding quarter of 1932.

But the most encouraging indication was a sharp increase in orders received. This increase leads to the belief that further improvement may be expected in future quarters as these orders are filled.

The net loss for the third quarter was $1,513,645. This compared with a net loss of $2,078,424 in the previous quarter and with a net loss of $2,715,123 in the third quarter of last year.

Sales Billed Show Little Variation

THE RISING TREND of business in the electrical industry was indicated by an increase in sales billed in comparison with the second quarter. But they showed little change from the level of last year. Sales billed, meaning actual orders delivered, amounted to $17,474,213 in the three months ended September 30.

This compared with $15,926,335 in the previous quarter and with $17,482,376 a year ago. The fact that a smaller loss was reported in the third quarter than in the second quarter might be explained by the increase in business. But the fact that billings were slightly smaller than a year ago while the loss was materially reduced, reflects great improvement in efficiency.

Orders Booked Provide Basis for Optimism

BOOKINGS PROVIDE greater grounds for optimism than either billings or earnings since they give an indication of future production and profits.

Orders received in the third quarter amounted to $22,547,717. This compared with $17,557,964 in the previous quarter and with $14,126,064 a year ago.

For the second consecutive quarter the bookings have exceeded the net sales billed. The third quarter bookings are the largest for any quarter since the third quarter of 1931.

Unfilled orders have increased from a low point of $23,337,000 to $28,508,000 as of September 30.

PAINT TRADE ACTIVE

"After making the poorest showing of the last decade during the first three months of the current year," says Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., "There was an abrupt upturn in the paint trade in the second quarter which developed into marked activity in the third one. Running contrary to the trend of production, sales of retailers and wholesalers have been improving since August."

MEN'S CLOTHING PRICES

Most of the leading low-priced lines of men's clothing will be priced by the end of this month, while the more expensive ranges will be ready by the middle of November, according to manufacturers. Increases of 15 to 20 per cent over the prevailing fall styles are contemplated, it is said.

TRADING DULL ON LOCAL MARKET

Stocks on the Pittsburgh Exchange had another dull day. Trading was in light volume and no definite price trend was apparent until the afternoon when a heavy tone developed.

Lone Star Gas common and the 6 per cent preferred both opened unchanged from yesterday's previous closing level, the common at 6 and the 6 per cent preferred at 70.

Columbia Gas and Electric lost further ground. This stock opened at 12¼, off three-quarters of a point from yesterday's close. Further weakness was shown later.

Vanadium Alloy Steel, which has been unactive recently, appeared at 18, up a point from the last previous sale.

WHEAT RALLIES AFTER DROP

CHICAGO, Oct. 19. — (AP.) — Sharp setbacks in grain prices early today followed downturns of securities and of foreign exchange. Lack of aggressive new buying support for wheat was apparent. Opening 1⅝ to 2¾ cents lower, wheat afterward rallied somewhat. Corn started 1⅛ to 2 cents off, and subsequently recovered a little.

Free selling which at times developed in the wheat market tumbled prices down to 3 cents under yesterday's finish, but rallies of a cent or more ensued, with the market afterward fluctuating rapidly.

Rallies in wheat prices were promoted by evidence of government sponsored buying at around 76 for December contracts.

Corn and rye were off owing to sympathy with wheat weakness and as a result of more liberal country offerings of corn. Provisions fell sharply, responsive to downturns of hog values and of grain.

TAPEREADERS' MONEY VIEWS HELD RASH

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—It would be rash to assume, as some tapereaders have done, that President Roosevelt now sees eye to eye on monetary matters with the most conservative bankers in Wall street.

Naturally the Chief Executive does not want to appear as the advocate of "unsound money." It is regrettable that the conservatives have confused soundness" with inflexible "orthodoxy."

A reading of the President's state papers indicates that he is not satisfied that in past years we had genuinely "sound" money in the United States. With credit substitutes the chief circulating medium, the wholesale failure of banks, which were in a sense credit mints, was a simple indication that all was not well. Moreover, there have been in the last two decades violent fluctuations in the purchasing power of the dollar, another indication of a departure from the ideal.

STABILIZATION VIEWS

In spite of the bond conversion plan, there is no reason to doubt that the President's memorable message against premature stabilization of the dollar still reflects his views. If this is accepted as true, there is no reason for such vast uncertainty as to the President's monetary position. He wants to stabilize when the dollar is at a level which approximates where it stood when most business debts were created. When this approximate equilibrium in the economic situation has been reached, it will be self-evident, and the President's action at such time will be definitely predictable.

If, in the meantime, private industry wants to raise long-term capital, it can meet the exigencies of the market place by offering either convertible bonds or bonds with stock purchase warrants. Securities of that type will offer a perfect hedge against monetary uncertainties.

AMERICAN VIEW

The official American view, as revealed at the London Economic Conference, was as follows:

"Revaluation of the dollar in terms of American commodities is an end from which the government and people of the United States cannot be diverted.

"We wish to make this perfectly clear. We are interested in American commodity prices. What is to be the value of the dollar in terms of foreign currencies is not and cannot be our immediate concern.

"The first task is to restore prices to a level at which industry and, above all, agriculture, can function profitably and efficiently.

"The second task is to preserve the stability of this adjustment, once achieved."

In response to a widespread demand for a clarification of his monetary policy, Mr. Roosevelt, it seems to me, would do well to restate this admirable message of last July. The bond incident calls for a new orientation.

'SOUND MONEY'

The misuse of the term, "sound money," recalls the lively statement of John Maynard Keynes, British economist, who pointed out:

"A 'sound' banker, alas! is not one who foresees danger and avoids it, but one who, when he is ruined, is ruined in a conventional and orthodox way along with his fellows, so that no one can really blame him."

Since the objective of the recovery program is to put men and women back to work, the epidemic of strikes must be regarded as an untoward development. Nevertheless, if one views the business situation dispassionately, the strikes have at least one offsetting benefit — they are preventing the dangerous piling up at this time of excessive inventories.

There are indications from Washington of a desire to emphasize the policies which are trade-building in character. The plan for making at least a billion dollars in frozen bank deposits available has already been announced. There have been indications, too, of greater speed in connection with job-creating public works!

Insurance Company Names Confused

By reason of the similarity of names a Chicago life insurance company, the National Life Insurance Company of the United States of America, mentioned in today's papers as in receivership, has been confounded in the minds of some people with the National Life Insurance Company of Montpelier, Vt. The Vermont Company has no connection whatever with the Chicago Company and like the other New England Life Insurance Companies is in an unassailable financial condition having steadily increased its resources and reserves during the depression.

Pennsylvania Car Loadings Decrease

Pennsylvania Railway System loadings for the week ended October 14 totaled 90,933 cars, comparing with 91,531 cars handled in the week preceding and 92,466 cars in the similar October, 1932, period. From January 1 to date, loadings total 3,498,311 cars, as against 3,438,061 cars in the corresponding period of last year.

HOLMES RENEWS PROXY FIGHT

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—R. C. Holmes, a director and former president of the Texas Corporation, today renewed his "battle of proxies" with the present management of the corporation, with whom he is at odds over policies.

In a pamphlet addressed to stockholders Holmes accused "the so-called Lapham group" on the board of directors of "coercing" stockholder-employes of the corporation "into turning over to their superiors the proxy blanks sent them" in an effort to block the calling of a special meeting of the board recently requested by a group of stockholders.

Holmes further charged the management with extending this coercion to stockholding suppliers of materials and services to the corporation, who, he said, have been given to understand that their business may suffer if they favor the special meeting.

In his initial attack some weeks ago Holmes asked the stockholders to petition for a special meeting for the election of 12 new directors, which would increase the board to 25.

Shortly after this the Texas Corporation announced the resignation of Henry G. Lapham as a director and the addition of three new members to the board. J. H. Lapham is a director and chairman of the executive committee.

The company, in reply to Holmes' original charges, asserted he was seeking to reinstate himself as head of the company.

Holmes quit as chairman of the board last May following differences with the Lapham interests. A month earlier he had been succeeded as president by W. S. S. Rodgers.

Position of French Franc Under Suspicion

There are indications that the French franc may momentarily replace the dollar as the main target of offense in foreign exchange dealings. Apparently reflecting renewed apprehension over the French government's ability to balance the budget, the franc slumped sharply after a strong opening with a net advance of more than five points. French currency suddenly turned weak in the afternoon, slumping some 17 points or more, while sterling held relatively steady. Other currencies in the "gold bloc" were likewise weak, the guilder sliding 1¼ cents. Revival of doubt of France's ability to hold fast to the gold standard was held up widely as accountable for the "flight" from the franc. Houses here with Paris offices and connections were reported rather active on the selling side of stocks early in the afternoon coincident with the break in French exchange. Whether this selling represented long liquidation or offerings for short account, it was not possible to ascertain. It was assumed, however, that the bulk selling was for speculators, who, mindful of the threatened split in the French cabinet over the budget situation, were inclined to attempt to anticipate possible withdrawal from gold and a decline which would permit covering on a profitable basis.

The action of the railroad shares on yesterday's late rebound proved anything but encouraging to most observers. The rebound in that quarter of the list was regarded as lacking in the snap which might have been expected in view of the extent of their decline. Railroad shares, it was pointed out, have, as measured by a most popular market average, experienced a correction of more than 60 per cent of the advance recorded from the year's low to the July high. In other words, rails have canceled upward of 60 per cent of the rise scored from the extreme lows of late February and early March just before the banking holiday to the peak set on July 18. Meanwhile industrials have lost about 47 per cent of the advance.

The American Institute of Steel Construction reports that uncertainties caused by the delay of the National Industrial Recovery Administration to consider the provisions of the proferred code for steel construction resulted in a decline in bookings and shipments of fabricated structural steel during September. Bookings were about 30 per cent under August and shipments dropped 20 per cent.

News that suscriptions were received for the cash offering of the new Treasury 3¼s in a total amount equal to almost four times the $500,000,000 put on the market, failed to stir up much interest in the investment market. Federal loans were a shade easier if anything. Thus far only a nominal market has developed for the new 12-year 3¼s on a "when issued" basis. The issue is dealt in with and without interest, bids on a "with interest" basis are reported around 101 24-32s, while bids for the bonds on a non-interest basis are reported about 101 10-32s.

Bank of France.

PARIS, Oct. 19.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows these changes in francs: Gold decreased 37,000,000; sight balances abroad unchanged; bills discounted at home increased 141,000; bills bought abroad unchanged; advances decreased 50,000,000; circulation decreased 879,000,000; current accounts increased 983,000,000. Rate of discount, 2½ per cent.

BANKS TO SELL NEW STOCK

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—After many conferences and discussions over the past several weeks, leading New York banks today announced their decision to participate in the administration's nation-wide credit expansion plan to the extent of some $200,000,000.

According to the vote of approval of the New York Clearing House, the financial institutions will expand their capital by issuing capital notes or preferred stock which will be sold, largely, to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Under the leadership of the New York banks, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation hopes that at least $1,000,000,000 will be added to the total of the capital structure of the country's banking houses.

While late today the boards of directors of five banks had voted to issue additional capital, it was understood others would take formal action soon. The five banks are the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, the Guaranty Trust Company, Bankers Trust Company, Bank of the Mahnattan Company, and the Chase National.

Forbes

Do Employers Deserve Any Gratitude?

By B. C. FORBES

EMPLOYMENT is the supreme objective in this and other countries, is it not?

Mr. Forbes

Therefore, why not gratitude to large employers?

I RECENTLY asked that question, and in the London Times appears a reply. It comes from Selfridge, the famous London merchant. It reads, in part:

"B. C. Forbes, the widely read and influential American journalist, says:

"'Why not gratitude to large employers?

"'What rejoicing in a community when it is announced that the government has agreed to lend or spend millions on the construction of some local project! It is the furnishing of employment which usually is hailed as the greatest desideratum.

"'I once tried to sound out John D. Rockefeller on what had given him the greatest satisfaction in life. He instantly replied that what he had been able to do in providing employment for individuals and families at decent wages afforded him the most genuine satisfaction.

"'Does it ever occur to us to feel grateful, even in these days, to organizations that employ many thousands of men, paying them, not from tax money we ourselves contribute, but out of their own treasuries? Should we not recast our mental attitude toward our appraisement of such concerns?'

"We quote those questions here," Selfridge comments, "because we think they help to a more comprehensive estimate of the part played by the big distributing houses in the economic life of the nation. They enjoy already in large measure the confidence and the admiration of the public.

"The public knows them as centers of interest and of progressiveness, as providing the finest modern buildings in our cities, as control centers for prices so that the public can always compare local with standard values. But not always do they realize what a powerful constructive force they are in the nation by virtue of the amount of employment they give.

"The figures of our own organization alone may help to contribute to an informed answer to Mr. Forbes' questions. The Selfridge group of businesses in London and the provinces give regular employment to between 14,000 and 15,000 people . . . "

IN THE Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald, Pierre Van Paassen strikes a somewhat different keynote. Thus:

"B. C. Forbes recently raised the question whether we should not show gratitude to large employers as well as to the government when it puts people to work . . . .

"The public realizes quite well the role the big concern is playing in society, I should think. They are indeed a constructive force by virtue of the amount of employment they give. But it would be wrong to think that they give the employment from altruistic motives. They are in business for profit. And yet again that is no reason to withhold admiration and confidence. They are centers of progressiveness."

Note he concedes that, while employers are in business for profit, "that is no reason to withhold admiration and confidence."

WHAT AMERICA needs above all at this time is not recrimination, not ill will, not gratuitous antagonism, but magnanimous and harmonious co-operation.

OVER-EMPHASIS OF INFLATION FACTOR SEEN

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Probably the "inflation" factor is being over-emphasized in talk about the stock market. There has been no sufficiently important change in the outlook concerning inflation to explain the recent weakness.

I believe that the real cause of the most recent weakness is to be found in the fear of increasing "collectivism" and of government control over business.

Government price-fixing. Attacks on high salaries. Announcement that procedure will be begun against NRA chiselers. Continued emphasis of the labor aspects of codes. Proposed increases in processing taxes. Increasing participation by government in banking. This is the sort of thing which must be worrying some business leaders.

ATTRACTION REDUCED

Stocks are equities in business enterprise. Their value depends upon business profits. Inflation or no inflation, therefore, to the extent that government runs business the attraction of private equities is reduced.

I think that business managements bowed to NRA with the idea that they would be able to retain control, and be able to direct the flight of the blue eagle. As they come to realize that laborers, farmers and small "independents" have more votes, they realize that the facilities for making profits are likely to be reduced.

It seems to me that the recent break in stocks has been explained illogically. No real indications of an end to inflation or a return to "sound money" are apparent. Nor is it at all clear that war scares in Europe would pull funds away from this country or cause selling of our stocks.

MORE INFLATION SIGNS

As a matter of fact, the indications point more strongly to inflation. The "liquidating" subsidiary of R. F. C. means more "reserve bank notes."

Talk in high Washington quarters indicates a willingness to consider the interest of non-interest bearing notes which would be practically the same as "greenbacks." The government is now conducting price-pegging operations for farmers which both emphasize the aim to raise prices artifically and increase government debt.

Certainly the bond market has shown poor response to the talk of "stabilization." Gold has risen again, and the dollar declined.

So if you want inflation, I would not worry about that. The thing to watch is the business situation and the outlook for corporate profits.

HALF OF RISE LOST

The market at the low on Tuesday had lost just about 50 per cent of the big rise from the lows of April to the July peak. It was down very close to the temporary stabilization level of early May, which came after the gold embargo and the Senate vote for inflation and just before the beginning of open market operations and repudiation of gold clauses in bonds.

This general level may serve as a sort of base for a "trading range" for a time, pending the working out of such mixed forces as:

1—Price-fixing vs. inflation.
2—Government control over business vs. stimulation of business.

STRENGTH DOUBTFUL

After the support given the market on Tuesday, and the rally at July lows, one might expect at least a little show of strength, particularly as the million-share last hour on Monday suggested climax selling.

But I am frankly in doubt. The rails made new low. The volume fell off on the upturn. The thing may have been mostly short covering induced by government operations in the wheat and cotton markets. Yesterday's decline may be all the more discouraging because it occurred without any large volume of selling pressure.

At the best, no more than minor rallies and irregularity seem probable, pending a resort to some strong inflationary stimulant. No one can be sure that further declines will not occur.

Woodin Announces New Sale of Bills

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Secretary Woodin announced yesterday that tenders for approximately $80,000,000 of 91-day treasury bills would be received at the federal reserve banks and branches up to 2 p. m., October 23. The bills will be dated October 25 and will be sold on a discount basis.

SIX UNBEATEN AA TEAMS SET FOR GAMES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Six undefeated members of the class AA division of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League see action Saturday afternoon in the most pretentious football program offered by the double A group so far this season.

New Castle and New Kensington, tied for the lead at present with two victories and no defeats, both swing into action against undefeated opponents. New Castle invades Turtle Creek Union to help the Haldy charges usher in their double A campaign, while New Kensington opposes McKeesport.

While Turtle Creek is making its first start in the select group, McKeesport will be striving for its first triumph, having been deadlocked by Monessen.

Jeannette and Greensburg, deadlocked for second place as a result of scoring triumphs in their class AA openers, play their second games Saturday afternoon. Jeannette is host to Wilkinsburg at Jeannette, while Greensburg entertains Clairton at Greensburg.

LEADERS IN ACTION

The championships in several groups should be cleared up considerably after this week's games.

The Section I title in the City League may be settled tomorrow afternoon when South, pace-setter at the time with two victories and no defeats, invades Westinghouse Stadium to meet Pro Burton's Silver Lakers. Westinghouse, tied by Schenley last week, must win to prevent South from clinching the crown.

The situation in class B likewise will be cleared up considerably in the Elizabeth-East Pittsburgh game at Elizabeth. Both teams are undefeated and untied in the class B fight, Elizabeth showing the way to all rivals with five class B triumphs. Ben Thomas, line-crushing fullback of Elizabeth, will lead the attack of the Byler charges against the Terracemen.

The class A contenders, six in number, all play class opponents this week-end, which promises to result in another reduction in the field of title aspirants.

HOMESTEAD AT SCOTT

Scott meets Homestead tomorrow night at Scott, Duquesne entertains Swissvale in the afternoon at Duquesne, while Butler invades Beaver Falls, Monongahela goes to Monessen and Redstone plays at California Saturday afternoon. Ambridge, the defending champion, is idle.

Tomorrow's City League card offers three games in each division. Besides the South-Westinghouse embroglio at Westinghouse, Allderdice entertains Schenley and Peabody is the attraction at Fifth Avenue in Section I. The Section II frays find Carrick, the present leader, at Langley, South Hills at Oliver and Allegheny at Perry.

The Girl Who Won

By MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER IX.

Nollie started in amazement at Mrs. Judson.

"Go in your place?" she repeated slowly. "Wear the blue satin?"

"And why not? Doesn't the dress fit and suit you to perfection?"

"Yes. But—" Nollie was awfully taken back at the suggestion.

It was more than a suggestion. Jinny Judson, swiftly as was her wont, had definitely made up her mind that Nollie should go.

"Mr. Hiram's a nice old chap of the southern school that's dying out, and as kind as they come. I picked the show myself. It's a comedy, and an amusing one."

Synopsis

Nollie Day, pretty and ambitious, longs to escape the unhappy life she leads with her aunt and uncle in the small town of Yapahunk. She wins a $50 newspaper prize and goes to New York. After three days of fruitless search for a position, Nollie's funds become depleted. Exhausted, she faints on the street and later finds herself in a tawdry house, where a woman called "Daffy" tells Nollie she could make "easy" money. One of Daffy's friends makes advances to Nollie. She strikes him and flees from the house in fear. Nollie secures a position as public stenographer in an exclusive hotel. Mrs. Virginia Judson, a wealthy widow, takes an interest in her. Mrs. Judson asks Nollie to model some of her gorgeous gowns for her. Later while she is preparing to sail for Europe, she asks Nollie to substitute for her at a theater party.

Now Go On

"It's awfully kind of you, Mrs. Judson, but—"

"It isn't kind at all. The favor's on your side, not mine. This is the only way I can fix it without having him hurt."

"But I shouldn't know what to talk to him about," protested Nollie, "I've never been out anywhere . . . not in your sense of the word. You see—he'd certainly see, too, and it wouldn't be fair to him—that I'd be right out of my element?"

"Bunk! With your prettiness and charm, he'll be tickled pink! And you can keep the dress and the wrap."

"It's too much to accept—"

But her protestations were swept aside by the determined Jinny.

She took the blue dress and the wrap from the top lid of a trunk and put them on a hanger.

Then she lifted the phone and called up the hotel hairdresser.

"I've a fancy to turn you into a work of art, and make a pretty girl prettier . . . "

MORE GIFTS

A woman in a white uniform appeared at the suite. There was a younger girl with her, carrying a box of manicure implements.

"You're to give this young lady a good facial and a hairwave, while the other girl does her nails." As she gave her orders, Mrs. Judson closed and locked her trunks. At the shoe box she halted. "Gracious! Your feet, child. You can't meet my friend in outdoor shoes with a Chanel gown—" and she started rummaging.

"I—I can buy a pair—" began Nollie, embarrassed.

"It's half past six and the stores are closed. I've any number of evening slippers here." She pulled out a pair or two, in brocade and silver. She insisted Nollie try them on. The second pair fitted the girl perfectly.

"And these stockings go with them. They're the correct 'nude' shade. Catch." And the widow flung Nollie a pair that were filmy as gossamer.

She wouldn't be gainsaid. She insisted that Nollie do her this favor.

"I've no means of reaching my old beau, and it'll set things straight if you turn up in my place and explain how I've had to dash off unexpectedly sooner to Europe. Not a word about the other farewell party—" and she put her finger to her lips, cautioning her.

WIDOW LEAVES

She was in a smart tailored suit, correct wear for going abroad an ocean liner in the summer. Over her arm she carried a light wrap. She bade goodbye to Nollie.

"I'll tell them at the desk to have the trunks taken down to the ship immediately. And I'll settle this along with my bill—" she lowered her voice as she glanced toward the two women from the beauty-parlor — "and you keep the dress and cloak and slippers, like a good child—just a little parting gift because you're doing me this favor."

She was gone before Nollie could thank her.

A little over an hour later, the two women from the beauty-parlor having done their work and left, Nollie stared at her own image in the mirror.

She scarcely recognized herself. Heavens! she was beautiful!

Her face glowed like a lovely rose after the "facial."

Such strange things had been done to that young face! Brisk tappings and massage, and a variety of sweetly smelling creams, and ice . . . then rouge put skillfully on her cheeks just in the right place, and an application of a pale mauve powder.

The blue of her eyes had been accentuated by a blue cream rubbed on the upper lids, and a faint pencilling on the lower.

LIKE A DREAM

A blue mascara, too, in a darker shade, had been applied by brush to her eyelashes.

It was all most exquisitely done, so that there was practically no hint of the artificial.

About her softly blooming face and making an enchanting frame for it, her hair—done in the newest style—curled. In wide, loose water-waves, and in a swirl behind that suited her.

She put a hand up to her hair as she stared at herself in the mirror. Her fingernails bore a high varnish.

Oh! was she real? Was this a dream? Was this vivid creature in the exquisite blue gown really one Nollie from Yapahunk?

The sharp tingling of the phone roused her from her reverie.

Mrs. Judson's voice drifted over the wire.

"Everything okay? You won't run out on me? Did the waiter bring you up a sandwich?"

And at that moment, a hotel servant did appear with a tray for her.

How artfully kind Mrs. Judson was! She had even paid for this food when she settled her bill. She had thought of everything.

Nollie arrived at the theater and, as instructed, got her ticket, in the name of Mrs. Judson, at the boxoffice.

An usher took her to her place. The lights were up. The play had not yet started.

But almost immediately it did. The seat at her left was vacant.

Not for long. A man edged his way along the row, bowed to Nollie and sank into it.

The "old fogey from the South?" Oh, NO! THIS wasn't Mr. Hiram. Never! This was the handsomest young man she'd ever seen in all her life!

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Eyebrows should be oiled and brushed, if they are to look well groomed. Pass a few drops of brilliantine over the bristles of the brush, sweep the little fuzzers upward, skip along the top line to smooth down the edge. When shaping the brows, notice the shape of the eyes. Don't, if you would be pleasing in appearance, extend the line too far over the temple when soul lanterns are roundish. Bring the far corner down, and the inner one, too, forming a graceful arch. Pluck eyebrows on a slant, the way the hairs grow out from the skin. You won't shed so many tears and the shafts won't break.

Good looks may be a legacy handed down by a beautiful grandmother, but charm is something that you create yourself. It is so easy to be charming, it is astonishing there are any growling people or tiresome whiners in all the world. Never introduce depression or dull subjects into the conversation. Be a good listener. Don't be afraid to laugh. Cultivate delightful manners. When you have a nice thought, go ahead and say it. Cultivate poise, ease. Don't chatter. Chatterers are tiresome. Don't talk about clothes eternally, as do some women. Read the newspapers and the best magazines. Keep in touch with what is going on. Then use your eyes for observation, your head for heavy thinking.

LINCOLN READING HIS PROCLAMATION OF EMANCIPATION TO HIS CABINET

It was published January 1, 1863. President Lincoln, as commander-in-chief of Army and Navy, declared all slaves held in the rebellion territories free. (The slaves elsewhere already enjoyed freedom.) Abolition of slavery was prompted not only by humanitarian reasons; it was a military measure in the Civil War and also a political expediency to ward off European suspicion of conquest in the South. THE CHILD KING LOUIS AND HIS "TUTOR" (World History)

After the execution of Louis XVI, his son, Louis XVII (1785-1795), also kept prisoner, was styled king of France by the Royalists and foreign powers. His life was brought to a premature close by the cruel treatment of a "tutor" (jailer) the drunkard cobbler Simon—a sacrifice for the sins of his ancestors.

MOSSES AND LIVERWORTS (Bryophyta, cca. 20,000 species)

They constitute the second phylum (main group) of the plant kingdom (the first and most primitive being the Thallus plants). Green and leafy, they alternate sexual (gametophyte) and spore-bearing (sporophyte) generations.

Mosses have stems and leaves, rhizoids (filamentous outgrowths) but no true roots. They are important in forming carpets of vegetation in woods, hillsides and fields, retaining moisture. Liverworts are skin-like structures, grow in moist places and in water.

Above: The life story of a common moss (Polytrichum) more or less typical. a, entire plant (gametophyte and sporophyte); b, capsule in which spores are formed (section); c, spore; d, germinating spore; e, spore germinated to a protonema with bud forming leafy plant (gametophyte); f, tip of gametophyte with 2 archegonia; g, archegonium (section) with egg; h, tip of gametophyte with antheridia; i, antheridium; j, single sperm; k, gametophyte with sporophyte developing in enlarged and transformed archegonium (after Ganong, Dodel-Port and others).

HAMLET WITH THE SKULL OF THE COURT JESTER YORICK

"Alas, poor Yorick!—I knew him,

"Horatio; a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy; he hath borne me on his back a thousand times. And now, how abhorred in my imagination it is. My gorge rises at it!

"Here hung those lips that I have kissed, I know not how oft. Where be your gibes now? Your gambols? Your songs? . . . .

THE RED CEDAR

(Juniperus Virginiana)

Right: With about 40 species, it belongs to the Pinaceae family. Its needles are bluish-green, mostly scale-shaped, ovate, or awl-shaped, sharp-pointed. Staminate flowers are short-stalked, yellow; pistillate small with pointed bluish scales. Fruit is dark blue berry, with 1 or 2 seeds maturing in one or two seasons. The range of the Red Cedar is from Nova Scotia to Florida, growing almost everywhere; planted as ornamental and Christmas tree. Its wood is light, soft, weak but durable, fragrant, used for posts, chests, furniture, pencils, tubs.

SINGLE FLOORS (Gen. Science)

They consist of joists (2"x12" on edge 12" to 15" apart) and the tongued-grooved flooring (1") nailed flat on top. In front of flues and openings for stairs joists are trimmed, supported by a "trimmer" and 2 "trimming joists." Herringbone bridging (strutting) adds to rigidity. Above: Plan (top) and section.

Bugs Baer

Take a Billion for the Children

Appropriations for government loans are still coming in by mail, telephone and carrier pigeon. Our state just put one over that was too big for a pigeon. They had to tie it to a turkey.

One of the most interesting requests was from a Rocky Mountain state that wants to tidy up the mountains a bit. There was some talk of a huge siphon system to drain the Great Lakes, fill in the Grand Canyon and stop Niagara Falls as soon as we have enough postcards printed.

Eighteen trainloads of artificial leaves just left for the petrified forest. We don't want visitors to think that things wont grow on our land. Gutzon Borglum is busy carving a huge statue in the Black Hills. If we can borrow ten million off Washington we intend to have Gutzon, if that's his name, make a duplicate of the Statue of Liberty so that America can boast of the world's largest book ends.

Our public building program is coming alone fine. Now all we have to do is to build some roads to them. The big white post-office is much bigger than the little red schoolhouse. But if the children write fast enough they will catch up.

We are going to keep on improving with Washington money until the government coughs hoarsely, rolls its eyes, falls on its face and does a swan dive into its own perspiration. Everything is as lovely as ribbons on a toy dog.

We don't know what is going to happen when the time comes to pay back. Why should the grasshopper take singing lessons from the ant? We have looked into the proverb and have discovered the sluggard is the most industrious. The ant only works before a rainstorm and then he runs around underfoot. And, so long as the federal appropriations hold out, we will be happy.

We never had billions to play with before. And the sensation is delightful, free of care and void of penalties. There ain't nothing nicer than a 60-span, steel cable, cantilever bridge over a frog pond. Specially when it has a counter-weighted draw that you can pull up to let the ganders and the drakes sail by. The government doesn't care what you do with its money so long as it improves the property, looks nice and absorbs the excess reserve.

Everything is dandy. And will be until the Secretary of the Treasury scrapes his shovel on the bottom of the bin.

Safety in Small Mines

Provision Should Be Made for Regular Official Inspections to Eliminate Hazards.

Applications received by the Zoning Board of Adjustment for permission to open two small coal mines in Pittsburgh have directed attention to the lack of provision for official inspection of such mines.

According to P. J. Callahan, of Bridgeville, inspector for the State Department of Mines, the state law provides for no inspection in mines employing less than 10 men.

Callahan says he sometimes goes in on his own initiative when he hears of dangerous conditions, but admits that if the matter were brought to a test he has no jurisdiction in the little mines.

He says he is usually successful, however, in getting conditions improved, and offers to take up any cases of dangerous small mines pointed out in his territory. He deserves credit for his zeal.

There is no other inspection from any official source. If the operators of small mines carry compensation insurance, representatives of the insurance companies insist on certain safety standards. But it is apparently no extraordinary thing for some of the mines to go without any sort of supervision.

The aggregate number of men employed in these small mine operations may be large under present conditions and, of course, their lives are as precious to them and their families as those of the men employed in state-inspected mines.

The Legislature should amend the present laws to protect the employes of small coal operators.

The Greater City Plan

Support is Needed in Other Counties to Assure Adoption of Constitutional Amendment.

As was to be expected, the Civic Club of Allegheny County has indorsed the proposed constitutional amendment which paves the way for the formation of a Greater Pittsburgh taking in all of Allegheny County.

We do not see how any civic or business organization in the county which gives the subject due consideration can fail to approve of the project. It will not interfere appreciably with the autonomy now enjoyed by the smaller municipalities, but will make for certain economies and add prestige to the community.

Opposition is to be expected from some of the justices of the peace and constables, because the Metropolitan District plan contemplates the setting up of a new kind of ''poor men's courts" in which the judges will be men trained in the law who will be paid salaries instead of the fees that the squires now receive. But there is no other class of citizens who would have even selfish personal reasons for opposing the plan.

Nevertheless, it is far from sure that the enabling constitutional amendment will be adopted, because not the citizens of Allegheny County alone but those of the whole state must pass on it, and voters in other counties may oppose it in ignorance of what it involves.

Efforts should accordingly be made to induce the civic clubs and boards of trade in other counties to indorse the amendment and to educate the people in their communities to the fact that the Greater Pittsburgh plan does not affect them, but is highly desirable from our standpoint.

Need of Slum Clearance

Numerous Pittsburghers Live Amid Conditions That Encourage Crime and Disease.

A report of the Pittsburgh Housing Association tells of a house on Webster avenue, in which 16 persons live in four rooms. They lack sanitary facilities; for while there is a bathroom off the kitchen, the wooden floor is so old and rotten that it is not used.

On going up a dark narrow stairway one finds two rooms. The front room has two folding beds where a grandfather, a boy of 18 and two women sleep. In the back room are two beds in which eight persons sleep—two families with two children each—and a makeshift crib occupied by a baby. One window is broken, and rags have been stuffed in to keep out the cold. On the third floor there is another bed in which three persons sleep.

This is not a unique case. It is merely a sample. Hundreds of other families live in Pittsburgh amid conditions just as shocking. That is one of the reasons why we have crime and disease and racketeering and cheating at the polls.

The NRA offers to bear a good share of the cost of getting rid of the slums and erecting comfortable, sanitary houses for poor people.

Write or telegraph Gov. Pinchot and ask him to include in his program for the special session of the Legislature housing legislation which will permit Pennsylvania to accept the offer of the NRA.

Arbor and Bird Day

The Observance Should Not Be Confined to the Public Schools and Women's Clubs.

Gov. Pinchot has issued a proclamation designating tomorrow as Fall Arbor Day and Bird Day.

We also have a Spring Arbor Day, and opinions differ as to which is the better for tree planting. John M. Phillips, former president of the State Game Commission, advances some good reasons why fall is the better time for planting walnuts.

Under Mr. Phillips' direction the Boy Scouts of Allegheny County are going to plant thousands of walnuts next week.

The observance of Arbor Day generally is confined to the public schools and the women's clubs. We are glad to see Gov. Pinchot taking cognizance of this and calling upon ''all Pennsylvanians of older growth" to join with the children in the planting of trees and shrubs, the protection of wild birds and flowers, and ''the full appreciation of nature, which is one of the best and easiest of all roads to happiness."

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—I walked leisurely along Broadway today the first time in many weeks. With three exceptions, there was not a familiar face. Yet this is the season when former years revealed a living gallery of show folk. Producers' offices hummed with activities. But now—

Four of the largest were empty with door signs removed. What was once the largest restaurant and dance place bore a bleak "For Rent" sign. Only the big cinema palaces reflected the former grandeur. It is depressing to see one of America's most colorful streets turn drab.

But the decadence cannot be overstressed. There are blocks on Broadway positively shoddy. And a shoddiness born of utter despair, a strained effort to recapture something now smothered in cheap ballyhoo. Sixth avenue has become a bright boulevard in comparison.

The Hollywood method of dating history. George O'Neill, playwright, was sitting with Carl Laemmle, Jr. in a projection room looking over old news films. The picture of Woodrow Wilson was thrown on the screen. Idly enough, young Laemmle threw out the question: "By the way, when did Mr. Wilson die?" Instantly came an assistant's reply: "1924—the Valentino year."

I think of nothing so expressive of Boyville along the Ohio as Joe Cook's sly reference to "a flat-bottomed rowboat with brass oarlocks." Unless it is the packages of dusty licorice root Courtney Cooper salvaged from a window in a small Oklahoma town and is passing around to friends.

The fad in chorus girl eating places is the stool-counter fish and chip cafe. One, blooming on an Eighth avenue corner in the 40s, has caught the fancy of the moment and is packed to capacity. But perhaps it is because it flaunts the most extravagant electric sign in the neighborhood. Moths to the flame.

Food is remindful that pretzel manufacturers are perplexed about the indifference of the newer generation to their wares. People past 40 relish what Lew Field called a cracker with cramps, but youngsters give them the go by. What is worse, they claim they are too salty, which every old-timer knows is their chief zip.

Two characters of an older Tenderloin were Popcorn Bill and Pretzel Ike, amiable bar-flies locally famed for gluttonish capacity for these mahogany yum-yums. There is a curio shop on West Twenty-seventh street I rarely fail to visit when in the neighborhood. Dark inside, its skull-capped old proprietor seems listless over prospect of business. He comes to you without greeting and waits in a bored way. The other day I found an old-fashioned glass-blown paper weight, which, when shaken, gives appearance of a snowstorm falling on a bleak log cabin. I purchased it for a trifle. As I started to go, he said: "A lot of people are going to miss that!" Evidently it has been a long-time favorite among the non-buying prowlers.

I differed with my wife at the Colony last night as to the reality of a jet black mustache adorning a worldling at the next table. She thought it was the real article. But I'm an old mustache guesser. Almost Hepner in person! Whenever a black mustache has the shine of a parlor piano, it has been dipped.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

These Ultra-Modern Lovers

Once every little girl hoped to be a good wife and make a happy home for some man; nowadays she hopes to be a beauty-prize winner and lure some man away from his happy home.

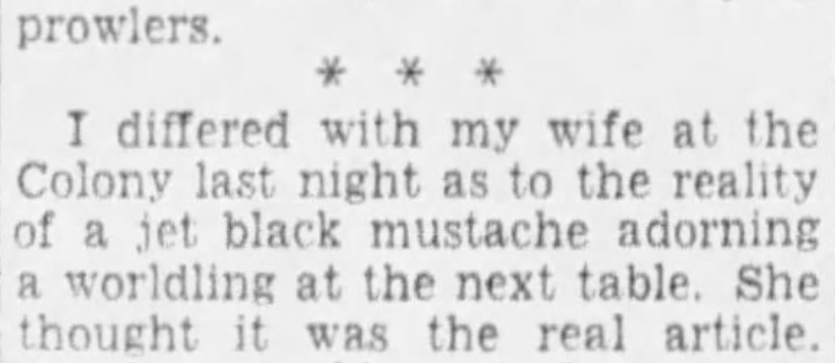
Men and women who make foolish marriages in their forties are the eternal optimists, who keep right on chasing illusions when they ought to be busy just dodging disillusionment.

* * *

A woman used to be content with one good hat a season and one good husband in a lifetime; but in these days a girl feels that she must have a new hat every few weeks and a new husband every few seasons.



WHAT'S TH IDEA OF A NEW HAT EVERY FEW WEEKS ?
WELL WHY NOT ?

A modern man loves to dream of marriage and the sweet home life—because it's so sweet to wake up and find himself still free!

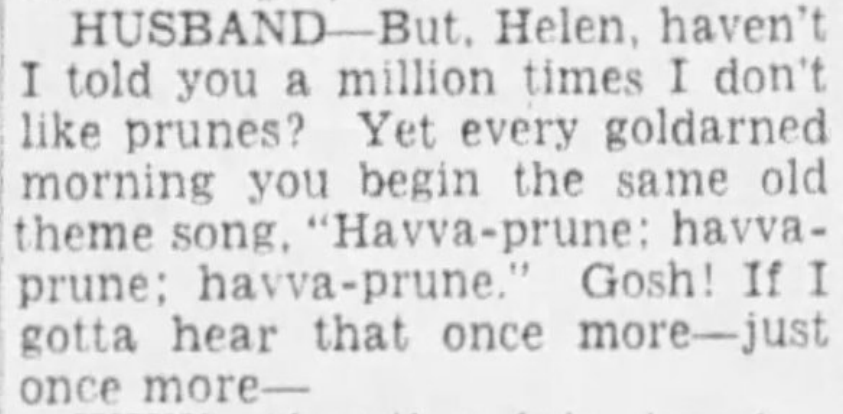
Apparently, everybody loves a popular screen star except the man (or woman) who is legally obligated to do so.

* * *

A woman's love is not quite dead until she stops forgiving a man, and begins learning to forget him.



AND SHE'S MY FAVORITE STAR I THINK SHE'S WONDERFUL !
WELL I DON'T SHE'S MY WIFE !

Somehow, that early morning scrap which makes a man bang the front door behind him, never made a woman-hater of him. It only makes him more susceptible to the first kind look from a pair of come-hither eyes.

The empty cradle used to be the theme of lots of the sentimental old songs; but you can work up much more poignant sympathy, these days, by pointing to an empty garage, from which the little pet runabout has departed forever.

* * *

It requires an overpowering temptation for a bachelor to get into a foolish entanglement, these days; but all a married man needs is a chance.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Why Do We Want to Run the Other Fellow's Life?

Why do we want to own our Dear Ones?

Why do we insist upon running their lives?

By what right do we meddle in each other's most intimate interests and affairs, heckle and nag, bully and criticize, instruct and interfere? As for example, how often have you listened to this familiar breakfast brawl:

WIFE—John, let me give you some prunes?

HUSBAND—Naw. Don't want any prunes.

WIFE—But, dear, you know prunes are good for you.

HUSBAND—I don't give a darn if prunes are good for me. I tell you I don't want any prunes, and I'm not gonna have any prunes.

WIFE—Well, you needn't yell at me. I'm sure I'm just trying to help you, and that's all the thanks I get, and—

HUSBAND—But, Helen, haven't I told you a million times I don't like prunes? Yet every goldarned morning you begin the same old theme song, "Havva-prune; havva-prune; havva-prune." Gosh! If I gotta hear that once more—just once more—

WIFE—(bursting into tears)—Yes, I knew you'd say that. You're sick of me. You wish you never had to hear my voice again. Well, you don't wish it any more than I do. I guess you think it's fun for me—cooking your old breakfasts—keeping your old house—while you go-o-o on ou-ou-out and—and—

HUSBAND—All right! ALL RIGHT! GIVE ME THE DARNED PRUNES!

Ever heard anything like that? Sure you have. And is YOUR face red!!!!! Well, then—why do we do it?

We SAY we do it because we love, because we want to help; and we honestly believe this is true. Mamma is quite sure when she opens her 30-year-old daughter's mail that she's "doing it for her own good." Friend Husband is equally convinced that he is registering devotion when he hounds the Little Woman's every footstep.

But of course they're just kidding themselves. Such meddling and snooping isn't love; isn't devotion. It's just old-fashioned human cussedness masquerading under a swell name.

Why do we try to own, try to run, the other fellow's life? Not because we love or wish to serve—

BUT BECAUSE WE WISH TO ADD IMPORTANCE TO OUR OWN LIVES.

Now, in itself, that isn't a bad desire. We should wish to make our lives important. And we should get busy and MAKE our lives important. But right there the trouble starts.

Getting busy on our own lives is apt to be dull, hard work. It requires thought, courage and perseverence, all of which are tough on our stupidity, cowardice and laziness. Yet we still want to put ourselves on the map; and our peevishness persists because we aren't on the map; so we look around for an easier way to achieve our end and—goody-goody there it is! We don't have to get busy on ourselves at all.

ALL WE NEED IS TO GET BUSY ON THE OTHER FELLOW!

Why do we try to own, try to run, the other fellow's life? That's why. Not because we love or wish to serve—

BUT BECAUSE WE WISH TO SERVE OUR OWN SELFISH ENDS; COMFORT OUR OWN FEELING OF INFERIORITY; GRATIFY OUR OWN VANITY.

And why do we resent it when the other fellow tries to own us, tries to run our lives, even though we, too, believe their beautiful line about Love and Devotion?

That also is why. Lies will out. In spite of all our sentimental pretenses, Dear Daughter knows that Darling Mamma is a mean old bully, and the Little Woman is hep to the fact that her Marvelous Lover is just a snappy snooper.

So there's the dirt on that cussedest of human blights—Possessive Love. But will it do you any good? I wonder.

Isn't It So?

The man who acts little makes a big mistake.

If women were permitted to do the courting there would be fewer male egoists.

What a great and glorious thing it would be if some enterprising man would get busy and corner the trouble market.

Owen Davis, Prodigious Playwright, and How He Works—Huey Long's Star Seems Descending

By Edwin C. Hill

MISS KATHERINE CORNELL, husky-voiced, dark-eyed darling of the American stage, is giving us a new play called "Jezebel." And a new play produced by Miss Cornell is an event in the world of the theater. Yet it is not about Miss Cornell or "Jezebel" that I am thinking for the moment, but rather of the author of the new play, Owen Davis.

Now in his sixtieth year, Mr. Davis first broke into print as a crack sprinter and football player at Harvard, as well as an honor graduate. After that he went out to carve a name and a fortune for himself as the speediest two-handed playwright that the American stage has ever known. More than 7,000,000 people in the last 30 odd years have sat enthralled, enraged or extremely bored while heroes, heroines and villains have spoken the lines fed to them by this man from Maine.

A young, handsome and hopeful giant was the Owen Davis who put down on the desk of Charles Frohman his first manuscript, a serious, pulsating drama in the best style of the sophomore class at Harvard. It fell to the lot of Charles Klein, quite a playright himself, to read the manuscript. Klein finished it and looked up at Davis: "You look like a strong man," he said. "I am," replied the youngster. "Well," said Klein, "take this masterpiece and throw it as far as you can, and never write another."

But Owen Davis kept right on building plays. Broadway might not appreciate his art, but the provinces and the old 10, 20 and 30 houses certainly did. Turning to melodrama, he proceeded to knock them dead in more than a figurative sense. Soon the country was plastered from one end to the other with posters in vivid colors showing pretty but terrified damsels being tied to railroad tracks, thrown off cliffs, and stabbed to the heart by black-mustached, sinister demons in the form of men.

Writes a Play In Three Days

IT took Owen Davis just three days to write the four acts of that famous thriller, "Her Marriage Vow," and it played for three years. Then came "Chinatown Charley," "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model," "The Gambler of the West" and "Convict 999." In one year he had 18 plays on the road and 90 others being produced by stock companies.

Came the dawn of the motion picture and with it the twilight of the melodrama. Whereupon our hero sat down and shot at another target — highbrow drama — and rang the bell as usual. When he gets an idea for a play he sharpens 30 or 40 lead pencils, stacks them on the left, like cord wood, and makes a long-hand draft on yellow legal cap with a full cast of characters, all the business and voluminous dialogue. Two weeks is the most he has ever given to this preliminary process. It seldom varies more than one day either way.

Only when the mood is upon him does he actually grind. Twenty-four hours at a stretch is not uncommon. Toward the end he looks like a stoker. It takes three hours to wash the lead pencil dust out of his hair and eyes, after which he takes four weeks in deliberate revision, then sends the completed long-hand manuscript to his stenographer. In this manner he has written and produced in first class theaters, during his lifetime, 172 plays.

But Owen Davis goes on, like Tennyson's brook, because he takes failure as a spur rather than as a discouragement. Before he ever sleeps, even, on a failure, he sits down and writes at least part of a new play. He has never lost the will to win.

Huey Long Seems On Down Grade

THE Kingfish maintains phenomenal silence as the opposition closes in from all sides. The present plight of the senior Senator from Louisiana reminds me of Eugene O'Neill's Emperor Jones when his throne began to topple. If Huey Long is to go down, he can lay his defeat to the weapon which few men have ever turned aside, and that is ridicule.

Strangely enough, this same weapon was the prize lance in Huey's armor when he came clowning out of Louisiana's bayous 15 years ago to carve out his empire. There was nothing he wouldn't or couldn't say in disparagement of his foes as he played town against country until one gulp he had swallowed up both the rural country and the political ring in New Orleans.

A lot of people had been gunning for Huey before the Sands Point affair. But he was a moving target, hard to hit, until he left himself wide open by his attack on the Roosevelt administration in his speech out west immediately after the Long Island social gathering.

Down went thumbs in Washington, and today we read of the prize Louisiana appointment, that of collector of the port of New Orleans, going to an anti-Long man. And we have the women's committee of Louisiana telling the United States Senate that they cannot be scared or bluffed out of their determination to put Huey on the spot.

President 'Power to Fire' Facing Test

By James T. Williams, Jr.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has taken the first opportunity to compel, if not to invite, the judgment of the Supreme Court of the United States upon one of the greatest powers of his exalted office—the power of removal.

This the President has done by removing from office summarily William E. Humphrey, Republican, who was appointed by President Coolidge and reappointed by President Hoover as a member of the Federal Trade Commission.

Mr. Roosevelt attempts to justify Mr. Humphrey's removal upon the ground that, as he believes, "the aims and purposes of the administration with respect to the work of the commission can be carried out most effectively with personnel of his own selection."

The order of removal followed the refusal of Mr. Humphrey to resign. This refusal Mr. Humphrey attempts to defend in these words:

"The statute creating the Federal Trade Commission says, 'any commissioner may be removed by the President for inefficiency, neglect of duty or malfeasance in office' . . . Congress intended that the Federal Trade Commission should be an independent, semi-judicial, continuing body, at all times qualified to deal fairly and intelligently with matters that come before it.

"The statute provides for rotation in office of its members. The vital purpose of these provisions was that the business of the country might at all times have, in the oft-quoted language of the Supreme Court, 'a tribunal appointed by law and informed by experience.'

'The very purpose of the statute, it seems to me, is destroyed by the power of the President to remove a member of that body because he wants in his place a member of his own selection."

Personality Is Absent From Case

PERSONALITY is fortunately and conspicuously absent from this case. The issue is joined on a question of high principle and the decision as to whether Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Humphrey is right must ultimately come from the highest court in the land.

Presumably, Mr. Roosevelt is proceeding in what is sure to be a famous case upon the belief that the decision of the Supreme Court in the Myers case, which was handed down in 1926, can be applied to the case of Mr. Humphrey.

The question in the Myers case was whether the President had the power to remove without cause a postmaster. The Senate was granted the privilege to intervene in that case. Through special counsel the Senate set up the contention before the court that a postmaster appointed by and with the advice and consent of the Senate could not be removed without the consent of the Senate.

This contention was overruled by the Supreme Court, Chief Justice Taft handing down the decision. From this decision Associate Justices McReynolds, Brandeis and Holmes dissented.

Mr. Roosevelt is apparently relying upon the decision of the court in the Myers case to vindicate his removal of Mr. Humphrey.

Either Decision May Aid President

BUT there is more than a question of constitutional authority involved in this case.

The Roosevelt Administration is apparently getting ready to deflate the National Recovery Administration and turn over the enforcement of the codes to the Federal Trade Commission after the National Recovery Act expires two years hence.

Mr. Roosevelt wishes to have in power a commission that will be sympathetic with the purposes of his Administration in compelling the enforcement of these codes.

If the Supreme Court sustains the President Mr. Roosevelt can then remove any member of a quasi-judicial body, like the Federal Trade Commission, under the same circumstances that Mr. Humphrey has been removed.

If the court decides against the President Mr. Roosevelt will thereby be relieved of the tremendous pressure which the politicians of his party are putting upon him to replace Republican members on these quasi-judicial agencies with Democratic appointees.

Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt takes the view that the President will win under either decision of the Court.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

For the Journey

For a journey one must choose
Hats and frocks, pajamas, shoes;
What to leave and what to take,
Grave decisions one must make,
Thus one's aspect for that stay
Will be dull, demure or gay.
As for me, on any trip,
Be it auto, train or ship
Or, without one place to roam,
Staying quietly at home,
May I always have along
Thought to make life like a song,
Choosing thoughts with far more care
Than the raiment which I wear,
Happy thoughts, all April-bright,
Tinged with rainbows of delight,
Thoughts of love and charity,
May I keep always with me!
